17,000-MILE DASH STARTS TO 'SELL' AMERICAS PEACE

Roosevelt Tells 4 Women 'Flying Deputies' To Emphasize to Southern Neighbors That Pacts 'Not Scraps of Paper.'

MODEL FOR WORLD, PRESIDENT SAYS

'People's Mandate' Group Will Publicize Peace, Commercial Treaties Drawn at Buenos Aires.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt urged "flying deputies" of the people's mandate committee today to emphasize on a 17,000-mile all-America peace flight that treaties are not scraps of paper but are meant to be kept. The fliers are four women.

The President expressed the belief that progress in the Americas toward peace during the last four years has had a very great effect in other parts of the world. He said the effect had been greater, perhaps, than would be realized from reading of the belligerent attitudes of some other countries.

World Watches Americas.

The people all over the world are beginning to say to themselves, the President asserted, that in the western hemisphere there is the most interesting thing that has ever happened—a whole continent has abolished war and has provided the machinery so any question between nations may be peaceably settled.

The Americas also, he said, have set an example to the rest of the world in treaty adherence.

Mr. Roosevelt received the people's mandate group a few hours before four representatives of the organization set out to urge republics in Latin America to ratify the anti-war and commercial treaties that come from the 1936 Buenos Aires conference. They also hope to give such publicity to the treaties as to promote popular sentiment for ratification and adherence.

16 Nations Yet to Act.

The Buenos Aires conference was called and attended by Mr. Roosevelt. Since its adjournment nearly a year ago, the United States, Ecuador, Santo Domingo and Nicaragua have ratified the various treaties proposed. Venezuela has ratified some of them. Sixteen American nations have not yet acted.

The deputies, who left here on southward flight tonight, are Mrs. Burton W. Musser, of Salt Lake City, only woman member of the United States delegation to the Buenos Aires conference; Mrs. Ana Del Pulgar De Burke, of Washington, D. C., a native Chilean; Mrs. Enoch Wesley Frost, of Texarkana, Ark., and Mrs. Rebecca Hourwich Reyher, of New York city.

They were introduced to the President by Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president emeritus of Mt. Holyoke College and chairman of the mandate committee.

A large delegation of members of the committee, including several men, met the flying deputies here and were present for the interview with the President. . . .

President Plans Visit.

Wishing the delegates God speed, the President expressed a yearning to go with them, asserting he hoped during the next four years to go down the west coast of South America as far as Chile.

He said also he was working with the Maritime Commission to inaugurate a steamship line down the east coast of South America, so travel between this and the Latin American countries would be speedier and more comfortable than present facilities.

Dr. Wooley later said the people's mandate organization was devoting itself to the American situation now, but hoped to extend its work to the rest of the world.

The "flying deputies" will reach Miami tomorrow, accompanied by Miss Jacqueline Cochran, the flyer. From Miami, the deputies will fly to Havana.

Nation-Wide Poll Reveals Voters Want Strict Paroles

Majority Believe Releases Do Not Help Restore Convicts' Usefulness.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Probably no phase of American penology has been criticized more consistently in recent years than the parole system. J. Edgar Hoover, chief FBI agent, reopened the controversy early this month when he blasted "country club" prisons and "sob sister" parole boards, charging them with "sentimental convict coddling."

His jibes drew fire last week from the defenders of parole. New York's Governor Lehman praised the system in a public address, and a former director of federal prisons retorted to the Hoover charges: "The public is entitled to a system that may rehabilitate some criminals, not to the sadistic satisfaction of seeing people suffer in prison."

What does the public actually think of the parole system?

Judging by the results of a national survey just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion, the average voter appears to have an unfavorable impression of the system. A decisive majority in the survey said prison boards should be more strict in granting paroles, while only a small minority felt the boards should either be less strict or about the same.

The Institute asked:

"Do you believe the parole system helps to restore prisoners to a useful place in society?"

|---|---|
| Yes | 46% |
| No | 54 |

"Should parole boards be more strict, less strict, or about the same as they now are in granting paroles?"

|---|---|
| More strict | 82% |
| Less strict | 3 |
| Same | 15 |

Dillinger Crimes.

What accounts for this coolness toward paroles? Undoubtedly one factor is that major crimes committed by paroled prisoners are always emphasized in the news.

CITY DOMINATES SOUTHERN REGION IN RETAIL SALES

Atlanta's 212 Points Is 100 Units Greater Than That of Nearest Rival, Birmingham; Building Permits, Increase, Too.

'BEST' CHRISTMAS SINCE 1929 IS SEEN

$300,000,000 Gain in Yule Trading for Nation Is Forecast by Head of Dry Goods Association.

As T. L. Blanke, manager of the National Dry Goods Association's merchandising division yesterday predicted in New York the largest dollar volume of holiday retail trade since 1929, a report of the Sixth Federal Reserve District showed Atlanta dominated in retail sales in the area for September.

Atlanta led its nearest competitor, Birmingham, by 100 points, according to the federal reserve report. Sales during 1923-25 were taken as the basis for 100. Atlanta's September retail sales were placed in the unadjusted figures at 212, with Birmingham at 112.1. The Atlanta figure of 212 for September compares with 191.2 for August of this year and 203.1 for September of 1936.

Local Merchants Prepare.

Local merchants are preparing for one of the heaviest holiday trading seasons ever recorded, it was revealed yesterday. Because of the general increase in the purchasing power and the fact the city dominates the merchandising field for the entire federal reserve district, they feel confident the per volume business will be from 6 to 10 per cent in excess of 1936.

Atlanta topped the wholesale trade list with 132.4 for September as compared with 123.5 for August, this year, and 119.2 for September, 1936.

Blanke estimated that orders for $3,900,000,000 worth of merchandise will be placed for the final four months of this year, an increase of $300,000,000, or eight per cent, more than last year.

Building Permits Up.

Atlanta building permits were $356,000 for September, 1937, as against $343,000 for August, and $301,000 for September, 1936.

Total Georgia contracts for September, 1937, were $2,516,000 as against $1,734,000 for August, this year, and $3,809,000 for September, 1936. Total contracts for 20 cities, however, showed a decline.

At the height of a furious battle that sprayed shells over foreign-owned areas of central Shanghai, 377 Chinese dashed down a 20-yard opening to safety.

They were disarmed immediately by British troops and interned for duration of the conflict. Twenty-six were gravely wounded.

NAVY OPENS BIDS ON 270 BOMBERS

$20,000,000 Worth of 'Flying Fortresses' Will Put U. S. to Fore in the Air.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(UP) The Navy Department tonight opened bids on more than $20,000,000 worth of bombing planes, accelerating America's aerial rearmament program in a world-wide race for military supremacy. Officials announced that 270 "flying fortresses" would be constructed.

At the same time, spokesmen for Secretary of War Woodring said the War Department plans to have an air force of 1,800 "serviceable, modern and efficient" fighting planes by the end of next year, virtually doubling the number now in operation. It was stated officially that 1,050 planes are now under construction or ordered.

These figures were coupled with disclosure in treasury statements that United States expenditures for national defense are now running 10 per cent over last year, or slightly in excess of President Roosevelt's budget allotment of $925,000,000 for war and navy expenses during the 1938 fiscal year.

The federal government is embarked on a program of drastic strengthening of its defensive forces. War Department officials said that by June 30, 1940, at the latest, a force of 2,320 fighting planes would be under army operation.

Admiral William D. Leahy recently declared: "I may say that our air force at the present time is acknowledged by all foreign navies to be far the most efficient in existence."

OFF-YEAR VOTES TEST U. S. TRENDS

New York and Detroit Balloting Regarded as Crucial Party Contests.

By the Associated Press.

In 15 states, scattering off-year election campaigns drew toward a close yesterday with the usual widespread claims from both sides of victory on November 2.

From a national standpoint the chief interest lay in the signs that might be raised to show which way the political winds are blowing, some hint of what may be expected in next year's congressional elections.

Two governors, four members of congress, half a dozen state legislatures and the mayors of several large cities are to be elected Tuesday. The governors are in Virginia and New Jersey. The members of congress are in Virginia and New York. The chief mayorality elections are in New York and Detroit.

Issues Complicated.

These mayorality elections and the New York congressional and New Jersey gubernatorial supply the chief tugs of party against party. But even here the issues are greatly complicated by other questions.

In New York city, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, running for re-election as a Republican, has supported President Roosevelt. In New Jersey, Senator A. Harry Moore, a Democrat, seeking election for a third time as governor, has opposed some of the administration plans.

And the big fight in Detroit is between candidates who have drawn the backing of the Committee for Industrial Organization on the one hand and of the Amer-

MOONEY REFUSED FREEDOM AGAIN

California High Court Denies Habeas Corpus, Paving U. S. Appeal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—(UP)—The supreme court of California today again refused to release Thomas J. Mooney from San Quentin penitentiary.

George T. Davis, attorney for the labor leader who was convicted in San Francisco's Preparedness Day bombing in 1916, said the decision opened the way for another appeal to the United States supreme court in the long battle to gain liberty for his client. Such an appeal would be Mooney's last hope for freedom.

California's high tribunal denied Mooney's petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The court held that the now gray haired one-time leader of the Moulder's union had been given a fair trial and was fairly convicted as a perpetrator of the bombing in which 10 persons were killed and 40 maimed.

He is serving a life sentence, having been saved from the gallows by intervention of President Woodrow Wilson, who commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

Mooney contends that he was convicted on perjured testimony allegedly coached by Charles Frickert, the district attorney who prosecuted the celebrated case. Mooney, spurning parole, demanded complete pardon or reversal of his conviction and, failing to obtain such from six California Governors, has remained in prison with his alleged accomplice, Warren Billings.

Davis said that he had arranged to have exhibits, transcripts and other evidence in the case forwarded to Washington. Once before the United States supreme court was asked to rule on a writ of habeas corpus for Mooney, but it held that Mooney had not exhausted his resources in the state courts.

Attorneys said that today's action completes the course of the case in state courts and opens the way for the United States supreme court to consider the case on its merits rather than on questions of procedure.

FAILURE IS FACING CHEST WORKERS

Atlanta Is One of Few Cities in Country That Isn't Doing Its Duty.

Rapidly approaching the end of the fifteenth Community Chest campaign and facing the prospect of failure, volunteer workers will meet Tuesday night for the final report of progress in the effort to meet human needs in the winter months ahead.

The total raised through Friday was $272,014, about $200,000 less than the minimum needed. With only two more working days remaining in the campaign, every worker will go out Monday intent on completing the job.

The board of directors of the Community Chest pointed out yesterday that Atlanta is facing a critical situation in carrying on her welfare program.

"At the beginning of the campaign," the members of the board said in a statement, "we certified to Atlanta the real need of the people served by the 33 member agencies of the Chest. We pointed out that failure to provide the needed sum last year had resulted in much suffering that could have been prevented.

"At this point in the campaign we are considerably behind last year's figures. Unless this is corrected, the situation faced during the past months will be aggravated in the months to come."

Atlanta is one of the few cities in the country which is falling behind in its campaign for the unfortunate. Birmingham, Nashville and Shreveport are the latest southern cities to report enthusiastically successful campaigns.

Marx Boys Found Guilty In U.S. Court

Jury Verdict in Copyright Cases Carries Possible Prison Sentences.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Groucho and Chico Marx, movie comedians, were convicted in federal court today of infringing on a copyright in a radio broadcast—a verdict that Groucho said in tragic tones "might mean a jail jolt for us."

After the verdict, he and Chico, equally serious, had nothing to say.

The misdemeanor conviction carries a maximum fine of $1,000, or maximum jail sentence of one year, or both.

Judge George Cosgrave said sentence would be imposed next Monday. Defense counsel declared they would ask for a new trial.

After only brief deliberation, a jury convicted the high-salaried brothers of using certain "gag" material which Carroll and Garrett Graham submitted to them previously, but which they rejected.

In the trial, the Marx brothers contended the late Al Boasberg, screen writer, prepared the script they used in the broadcast last year. They testified they did not recall the substance of the skit, "Mr. Dibble and Mr. Dabble," that the Grahams submitted, and did not realize it and their broadcast script were similar.

Defense Attorney Clyde Thomas protested vigorously against a remark Judge Cosgrave made in sending the jury out.

"Don't be afraid to bring in a verdict," Judge Cosgrave told the 12 men jurors.

"Your honor," Thomas interjected, "that certainly can be taken to mean 'Don't be afraid to bring in a guilty verdict.' I wish to take exception to it."

The judge rejoined: "The admonition could refer to any verdict—either of guilt or innocense."

While the jury was out, the Marx brothers solemnly told reporters they had been in "show business" for many, many years and never had any idea of "stealing" anything.

As the judge charged the middle-aged jurymen, Groucho sat with face buried in hands and Chico uneasily traced designs on a scratch pad with a pencil.

TOKYO THREATENS DIPLOMATIC BREAK

100 Japanese Leaders Demand That Britain Cease Her 'Improper Doings.'

TOKYO, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Members of the unofficial "council on the current situation," including high army officers and members of both houses of parliament, served notice today diplomatic relations between Japan and Great Britain might be severed.

In a resolution passed unanimously with cheers, the more than 100 highly placed Japanese charged Great Britain had been assisting China and added: "The Japanese can not allow the British to continue unmolested in their present improper doings."

The resolution declared Britain had been the main driving force in persuading convocation of the Brussels nine-power pact conference November 3 in an apparent effort to start intervention in the Chinese-Japanese undeclared war.

"If the British fail to reconsider their attitude," the resolution said, "we may be forced to take an attitude of grave determination by severing years of friendly diplomatic relations."

Those present at the emergency council meeting included Tiejiro Yamamoto, one of the dominant political party leaders and a former cabinet member; Lieutenant General Yoshitsugu Tatekawa, prominent in nationalist movements, and Shingo Tsuda, an outstanding industrialist.

Anti-British feeling has been rising steadily in Japan with charges the British fostered a report that Japanese airmen slew 2,000 Chinese non-combatants in Canton and the Japanese navy had torpedoed Chinese fishing junks.

Unspanked Quints' 'Past' Detailed For the First Time to Scientists

By MARY PLUMMER.

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—(AP)—One of the best ways to tell the Dionne quintuplets apart is by their right ears.

They have had no meat so far except liver and bacon—and their weight shows they've had a balanced diet.

And they've never been spanked—the only punishment is to send the offender away from her quint sisters when she gets obstreperous.

They have special similarities—this set of "identical" quints—which indicated, oddly enough, that they are paired: Annette and Yvonne, Emilie and Marie, and Yvonne and Marie additionally "paired" with Cecile.

So psychologists and child-rearing experts heard today from doctors associated with the little Dionnes since birth, and from research specialists of the University of Toronto.

Out of reports on the quints' progress from their birth, when they weighed an average of about two pounds, to their present stage of bouncing health at three years and five months, emerged a complete picture of the little sisters

BRITISH JOURNALIST DERIDES AMERICAN ISOLATION POLICY

Declares Nation Desires To Live in World No Longer Existing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Sir Willmott Lewis, noted British foreign correspondent, declared today that an American policy of isolation "is not a policy, it is a nostalgia—a desire to live in a world which no longer exists."

Addressing the Association of Foreign Correspondents, in a debate on the subject "Does England Expect Every American to Do His Duty?" Sir Willmott referred to his opponent, Quincy Howe, editor and author, and declared:

"Mr. Howe believes that by isolation, the United States may preserve—in some kind of a proud, aloof cuckoo land—the last vestiges of democracy.

Identity of Interests.

"He neglects to mention that in the world today there is an identity of interests as concerns democracy and civilization—an identity of instinctive interests involving every American, Englishman, Frenchman, Scandinavian and Belgian."

Sir Willmott, Washington, D. C., correspondent for the London Times, warned that in a world from which the United States had withdrawn itself, there was danger of "a war which would prostrate Europe and create a creeping paralysis which might well affect the United States and countries to the south on this hemisphere."

Citing Howe's allegation that British propaganda was forever asking the United States to pull British chestnuts out of the fire, Sir Willmott dryly commented:

"I had always assumed that those who drew chestnuts out of the fire retained the chestnuts."

British Empire Supported.

Opening the debate, Howe voiced two major contentions — that "American foreign policy today tends to support the British empire" and that "this tendency spells disaster to the American people." He continued:

"Whatever President Roosevelt's domestic policies may be, his foreign policy has shown a consistent regard for British interests . . . On the issue of neutrality, Roosevelt also has followed a consistently pro-British course.

"As the most richly endowed continental area on earth, American national interests are as different from British national interests as day from night.

"We do not need to scatter our navy over the seven seas to protect our food supply. Our task is simply to protect the territorial United States."

Witch Closely! Are You One of Merry Thousands?

The Halloween spirit of witches and goblins brought thousands jamming and pushing celebrants to downtown streets last night. Tin horns blasted, cow bells rang, people shouted. Some wore masks, others costumes, some merely joined the cheering. Mother and father brought junior and sister downtown to see the fun. They held them by the hand until the crowds got, too thick. Then the children sought the sanctuary of parents' arms. Above is a portion of the milling crowd.

Constitution Staff Photos—Roton.

Mingling with jubilant football crowds, Halloween celebrants thronged the downtown area, while in residence sections others resorted to old-fashioned celebrations—moving chairs from porches, soaping car windows, soaping street car tracks. But, while everybody celebrated yesterday, today, the calendar says, is really Halloween—October 31, 1937.

Mrs. Ola Miller, of Griffin, mother of Mrs. J. C. Ritchie, of Atlanta, died yesterday in Ellerbe, N. C. The funeral and burial will be at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Griffin.

Surviving besides Mrs. Ritchie, are three other daughters, Mrs. E. E. Gaddy, Mrs. O. C. Norton, both of Griffin, and Mrs. C. M. Kirkus, of Covington, and four sons, J. H., M. N. and T. E. Miller, all of Ellerbe, and R. J. Miller, of High Point, N. C.

Halloween Celebration Not All Fun; Store and Auto Windows Smashed

Horn-Tooting Costumed Crowd Makes Merry Downtown, Heartened by Tech Victory; It's Not All Over, Today Is Really Halloween.

Goblins, an' witches and black cats—more vicious than in past years—made merry in Atlanta and suburban towns last night.

Blasting tin horns, clanking bells, tooting car horns, shouts and screams heralded the arrival of Halloween eve.

Costumed boys and girls, parents and young people roamed the downtown streets in cars or on foot, tying up traffic despite efforts of the strengthened police detail. Peachtree was made a one-way boulevard between Five Points and Ivy street, but traffic still moved at snail's pace.

One professional man drove to the First National Bank building, got out to get a brief case from his office leaving his niece, a stranger to the city, in the car. When he returned a few minutes later, he could find her nowhere.

After two hours he appealed to police. Thirty minutes later she was located, far down Peachtree street. She had been forced down the street in the slow moving traffic, unable to turn into side streets, police reported.

Vicious Goblins.

Superintendent of Detectives J. A. McKibben received many complaints of vicious goblins and witches.

In Buckhead a group of young boys celebrated Halloween breaking out the store show windows. "Goblin cousins" followed suit in College Park, East Point and Hapeville, doing unestimated damage as they threw bricks and stones through the plate glass.

Not content with soaping the windows of cars parked on the streets, East Point boys broke out the glass windows.

Street lghts also were destroyed in the Highland-Ponce de Leon avenue section.

Other people in masks, animal or other weird costumes, traditionally orange and black, attended parties, bobbed for apples, tried to catch a bit of the eluding apple suspended on a string, others tried to chew the stringed chewing gum with the best girl friends. Masked dances were also in order.

Victory Celebraton.

Downtown the nose of celebration was doubled this year over the usual. Tech won over the favored Vanderbilt football team and the fans mingled with the Halloween crowds—jubilant. The colors were appropriate—for the witches' night too.

A supposed black cat bit Miss Sara Reese, 24, of 218 Boulevard, S. E., on the right arm. She was treated at the Grady hospital and referred to the State Public Health Department.

But, there is no peace. Not for the harassed citizens who awoke this morning to find, flower pots overturned, chairs hanging on telephone poles, cars rolled down the street, tires deflated.

Today is really Halloween. The witches and goblins working last night were only those with a respect for the Sabbath.

Halloween is still young.

FULL SCHOOL TERM OFFERED IN STATE

Doubling of Funds Opens New Era, Superintendent Collins Declares.

For the first time in the history of Georgia, 80 per cent of the state's white children will have a nine-month school term offered them and all pupils will have provided for them a minimum of seven months' educational opportunity this year, Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, said yesterday.

Speaking before the final session of the annual convention of the Georgia Association of School Superintendents, Dr. Collins said state schools will operate during the fiscal year on a state appropriation twice the size of any granted previously.

The new program, however, "does not disturb local control," he said.

New Educational Era.

"In Georgia we have entered into a new era in education," Dr. Collins declared. "The state is paying many millions of dollars more for the public schools than has ever been paid before. It appears that the state's fine contribution to public schools for this fiscal year will be approximately $15,000,000—nine and one-fourth million from the common school appropriation, three million from the equalization fund, and three million for free school books.

"This sum is more than double the amount that heretofore has been appropriated by the state in any one year for public school education."

More Authority.

Georgia is now keeping pace with the more progressive states and the eyes of America are now upon Georgia, the state superintendent added.

Under the new school legislation, superintendents and boards of trustees "have more legal power, privilege and authority than ever before," he said, adding, "this is as it should be."

CABIN DEATH CLUE SOUGHT BY POLICE

Ex-Baseball Player Held as Material Witness in Woman Killing.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 30.—(UP)—Provincial police tonight were without a clue to the apparent murder of attractive 28-year-old Helen Grier, Pontiac, Mich., stenographer whose pajama-clad body was found in a lonely cabin Thursday night by her hunting companion.

They held without bond as a material witness Vernon Spencer, 40, of Wixom, Mich.—a former New York Giants baseball player and now a farmer—who trudged eight miles through heavy underbrush to report her death.

Spencer said he and Miss Grier had occupied the cabin, 38 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, for two weeks; that he had left her at the cabin Thursday afternoon while he paddled along the shores of Long lake in search of moose tracks.

He returned shortly before dusk to find Miss Grier's body on the cabin floor, a bullet from a .22 caliber rifle through her right temple. The weapon was nearby. Spencer was brought here by authorities after he had accompanied the coroner and police to the cabin.

Horace Russell Marks Fifth Year In Capital on 'Six-Weeks' Mission'

Atlanta Attorney Now Directs 4,525 in HOLC Legal Force.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Five years ago today Horace Russell, well-known Atlanta attorney, came to Washington on an official mission to stay six weeks as special counsel of the then newly created Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

The six-week assignment was prolonged into six months, subsequently extended to years, so that today Russell finds himself a permanent fixture and a high official in one of the most far-flung and important agencies in the Roosevelt recovery administration—general counsel of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. The HOLC supervises a vast sphere of federal activities involving the lending of some two and three-quarters of a billion dollars on homes scattered over the nation.

Since coming to Washington, the Atlantan has been elected president of the Federal Bar Association, a new honor recently accorded him by the group of 750 or more attorneys who like himself are in the federal service in Washington.

An Interesting Story.

How he happened to come to Washington makes an interesting story. Why he has stayed so long is another.

Finding itself in difficulties during the early days of its organization near the end of the former Hoover administration, the old Federal Home Loan Bank Board sought the services of an attorney expert in the field of home loan financing. Morton Bodfish, one of the original members of the board, knew of Russell's experience and proposed his name. Called to Washington for the temporary stay, Russell so impressed board members with his thorough knowledge he was prevailed upon to continue indefinitely.

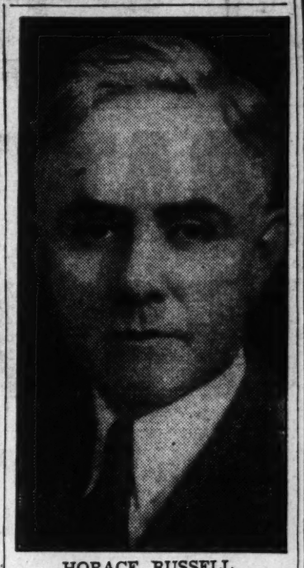

A short time later the Roosevelt administration decided something far more effective must be done for the home owners threatened with mortgage foreclosures throughout the country. What was to be done was not clear at the time. The economic emergency created too many problems for the new President to solve at once. And so the task of defining a policy to meet the home ownership situation was passed on to Russell. He not only defined the problem but he wrote the act which congress later passed to meet it.

Recognize Accomplishments.

In recognition of his efforts, Russell was offered the highest legal position in the new agency. Even then, however, Russell had to be persuaded to give up the thought of returning to private practice. He accepted the office temporarily, only to find as the months passed that his services were so indispensable his stay was necessary.

Since his association with the agency he has written or assisted in the writing of all legislation affecting the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. He regards his chief accomplishment his part in establishing a permanent thrift system for the country through the instrumentality of Federal Savings and Loan Associations, of which there are now some 1,300 in the United States, including 45 in Georgia.

One reason administration officials insisted he serve as general counsel for the new HOLC agency was the facility with which he drew up the system of uniform charters paving the way for the organization of the 1,300 savings and loan associations. While board members were becoming discouraged over the intricacies of the task, Russell solved their problem overnight.

HORACE RUSSELL.

A Tireless Worker.

A tireless worker, often Russell does not leave his office until midnight, although it is customary for government departments and bureaus to close their doors at 4:30 o'clock. Rarely does he fail to keep the multiple affairs of his office up to date.

Russell's familiarity with home financing was gained in part as attorney for private building and loan associations before coming to Washington. He is a director of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Atlanta; a past president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, past member of the executive committee of the United States Building and Loan League, and past president of the Georgia Building and Loan League. He is also a member of the American, Georgia and Atlanta Bar Associations.

Heads 4,525 Lawyers.

At present the legal department of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board comprises 75 lawyers at headquarters here and 450 in the field. In addition there are about 4,000 attorneys on fee basis.

At the peak of the operations of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, when it was making more than a million loans, the Washington and field personnel of lawyers approached 10,000. Russell was the directing head of all, probably the largest legal force ever assembled under one man.

Russell is a native of Mississippi; born in Puckett, November 7, 1889. He began the practice of law in Atlanta in 1916. When he left that city late in October, 1932, he informed his associates in the law firm of Jones, Fuller, Russell and Clapp, that he expected to be back at his desk "before Christmas."

However, nowadays he considers that he's fairly lucky to get back on the old home grounds once or twice a year. There's a lot of difference between a "leave of absence" for six weeks and a stay away for five years—and more, he now realizes.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN REINFORCE TROOPS IN SIBERIAN AREA

Heavy Movements of Armed Forces Reported on Both Sides of Frontier.

PEIPING, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Trustworthy sources said today that both Japan and Russia are rapidly increasing forces along the boundary between Manchoukuo and Siberia.

It was authoritatively estimated 40,000 Japanese troops who had taken part in the conquest of North China have been sent into North Manchoukuo.

It was reported also that 20,000 Japanese troops had been sent recently from Korea into eastern Manchoukuo.

According to Domei, Japan's News Agency, travelers through Siberia recently have told of movements of the Red army along the Trans-Siberian railway.

Observers said a Japanese column which recently conquered Suiyuan and Chahar provinces has set up an "Inner Mongolian nation." This, it is believed, is intended as a base from which to strike at Outer Mongolia. Domei said Soviet troops have been sent to this area under Russian protection.

A Domei dispatch from Kweisui said the new "nation" declared its authority extended over "all territory originally possessed by the Mongols." This would mean most of Asia and some of Europe.

SOVIET PROTESTS ALLEGED INCURSION

MOSCOW, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The Soviet government protested today over an alleged incursion of Japanese-Manchurian troops across the Russian-Manchoukuo frontier where they were said to have exchanged shots with Soviet frontier guards.

Tass (Russian) News Agency said "a squad of Japanese-Manchurian soldiers" crossed the frontier Thursday and opened fire.

The Soviet guard, the communique said, returned the fire and forced the soldiers to retreat.

SOLDIER DETAINED IN BURGLARY PROBE

Detectives Say He Admits Entering Two Homes.

A soldier stationed at Fort McPherson was arrested on suspicion of burglary by Atlanta police yesterday in connection with a series of recent housebreakings in the Druid Hills section.

Listed as J. C. Sammons, 30, of the veterinary service, and formerly of Macon, the soldier was arrested as he offered to sell $75 worth of silver at an old gold and silver store.

The proprietor called Patrolmen J. E. Sims and W. C. Patrick, who arrested Sammons after conferring with Detectives Leo Nahlik and M. M. Coppenger.

Sammons admitted two burglaries, one at 790 Lullwater road and one on Oxford road, Nahlik said.

"SCARLET PIMPERNEL" OF SPAIN CAPTURED

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(UP)—Captain Edwin Christopher Lance, former honorary attache of the British embassy in Madrid and desribed by the Daily Express as a modern "Scarlet Pimpernel," has been imprisoned at Valencia, the foreign office confirmed today.

It was understood that Captain Lance is charged with helping political refugees to flee from Loyalist Spain. He was temporarily employed by the British embassy as honorary attache at the beginning of the civil war and has since resumed commercial work.

Snakes Alive and How They Live! And How!

The western diamond-backed rattlesnake shown above is a philanthropist, for it is just about to give up a supply of venom to treat the bites of pit-vipers. Its life story—and that of hundreds of other snakes—is graphically told in the book, "Snakes Alive—And How They Live," written by Clifford H. Pope, who became interested in snakes while a boy on a Georgia farm.

Have you ever seen a snake that lived on milk? If you have, you are one up on Clifford Pope, who has studied snakes for more than two decades. The capacity of this 30-inch "milk" snake from northern New Jersey is equal to that of the milk in the glass. Even if the snake did live on milk, Mr. Pope says, the snake could not consume more than a small glass a week. He explains the "milk-snake myth" in his book.

At his desk in the office of a downtown battery company, Mark Pope Jr., Atlanta brother of Clifford Pope, never encounters snakes—and is glad of it. He and his brother became interested in snakes as small boys, but Clifford was the only member of the pair who made the reptiles a life hobby. Mark Pope likes to get customers better than he likes to handle snakes, he says.

Brother's Hobby Proves to Father Son Can Make Living Same Way

Clifford Pope, Famous Authority on Snakes of All Descriptions, Started Study of Reptiles on Georgia Farm When Only Five Years Old.

Mark C. Pope Jr., of 472 Peachtree-Battle avenue, N. E., is going to allow his son to follow any hobby the boy likes and the father believes he will be able to make a good living at it.

This decision on the part of Mr. Pope is not a recent one, although it has become more definite in the last few months. For Mr. Pope is now convinced that men can make money off almost anything—since his brother, Clifford H. Pope, has proved even slippery snakes are lucrative.

Years ago, while they lived on a farm in Washington, Ga., Mark and Clifford became interested in snakes on the same day. A snake hole drew their attention. Clifford was 5 years old and Mark was 7.

Tired of Watching.

Mark became tired of watching the hole in the ground. But not 5-year-old Clifford. He stayed there all day, his eyes glued to the ground, hoping a snake would come forth.

In the years that passed Clifford never lost his interest in snakes.

The Pope family watched him when he became employed at the age of 14—through an aunt's influence—at the zoological gardens in New York city and wondered if he were going in for "animal life" as an occupation. They did not wonder long.

He did stick to his snakes, even while attending the University of Georgia for two years. After graduation from a college in Virginia, Clifford went after reptiles in earnest.

Today, the Pope family lives in Atlanta. Mark Pope Jr. is an official of a battery company and Mark Pope Sr., lives at 1079 West Peachtree street.

Lives in New Jersey.

Clifford, however, is now 39 years old and lives in Chatham, N. J. He has led an exciting life chasing reptiles over the globe and is now the author of "Snakes Alive—And How They Live," one of the most enthralling books on snakes published in many years.

His success is a surprise to his brother here.

"We never thought he would make a success of snakes," Mark Pope, his Atlanta brother, said yesterday. "And often wondered when Clifford was a boy whether he would persist in studying reptiles. He has, and he has had adventure while doing it.

"One thing about him is that he never has been bitten by a poisonous snake, although he has been bitten many times. When we were boys together at Mount Airy, he was bitten by a large snake one day, but he wasn't afraid. He had read in a book on reptiles that the type was not poisonous."

Friendly to Snakes.

The snake expert's Atlanta brother was always friendly to snakes, but he never liked them in the manner of his younger brother.

"I let 'em alone, although I'm not afraid of them," he declared.

While his immediate family never encouraged or discouraged him in his pursuit of snakes, Clifford found definite encouragement from the aunt, who wanted him to become a naturalist. Too, his sister, the former Lucy Pope, married Douglass Cullen, who shot most of the 65 photographs used in illustrating the latest volume from the expert's pen.

"Clifford's trail of snakes has led him everywhere," Mark revealed yesterday. "He spent five years in Asia with the Roy Chapman Andrew's expedition. He has been all through Europe studying and trailing the slippery creatures.

Tends Reptiles.

"Today, he tends the reptiles of several private zoos in New Jersey, besides doing quite a bit of writing. He's making a living off his childish hobby, all right."

In his book, which has been acclaimed by book reviewers all over the country, Mr. Pope covers gins with his childhood experiences in Georgia, then takes the reader on an exciting trip to everywhere.

He writes interestingly and authoritatively on the habits and lives of snakes. The book was first reviewed by Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles of the New York Zoological Society, the man who gave Pope his first job at 14 years of age.

Yogi's 'Miracle' Is Fizzle, Mob Beats Him to Death

CALCUTTA, Oct. 30.—(UP)—The career of a Yogi in the suburbs of Calcutta, where he achieved notoriety by claiming the power to effect miraculous cures, ended abruptly today.

The Yogi summoned a cripple to walk without the aid of a crutch. The cripple fell to the ground, and an infuriated throng of prospective patients beat the Yogi to death.

VOTERS ASK STRICT RULES FOR PAROLE

The implied argument is that if the culprit had remained behind bars the crime would never have been committed.

Publicity of this sort angers advocates of the parole system who claim that the public is misled and that little publicity is given to the thousands of paroled prisoners who go straight. Actually, according to one-time federal prison director Sanford Bates, fewer than 1 per cent of all arrests are persons on parole.

But in recent years this 1 per cent has included such desperadoes as Dillinger, Homer Van Meter, Clyde Barrow and Baby Face Nelson. Practically all the killings ascribed to these men were committed after they had secured condiditional freedom from prison. Waley, the Weyerhauser kidnaper, was a parolee. Owney Madden rose to the height of his gangster career while enjoying parole.

As a result President Roosevelt was prompted to declare in 1935: "We should seek to prevent abuses of parole, especially in cases of habitual criminals."

Abuses of Parole.

The principle of the parole is challenged less frequently by experts than the methods of administration. Most criminologists agree that a parole system which effectively helps to supervise and guide the convict after he leaves prison can be beneficial. They argue that the lot of the ex-convict as he steps from prison is difficult enough as it is. In New York, for instance, he is barred from civil service employment, he is ineligible for a license to drive an automobile, he cannot get a job on WPA or CCC, he cannot get a job which requires a bond, and he cannot vote.

Parole boards in progressive states try to help him find himself. But the trouble with the parole system, according to its critics, is that in many states the administration is lax and inefficient. Many parole boards simply require a parolee to write them once a month, and the officers have to guess from these letters whether the ex-convict is going straight. New York is a notable exception. Its parole board, one of the best in the country, requires a parolee to report in person to his parole officers once a week at first, later once a month. In addition, the officer pays regular visits to the home of his charge. If the parolee is seen in bad company, or takes to drink or loitering on street corners, or neglects his family, he may be detained as a delinquent and clapped back into jail.

The public's attitude toward parole would undoubtedly be more friendly if parole boards everywhere were to adopt similar methods.

Pacific Coast Hostile.

The Institute survey found that public disillusionment with paroles is highest along the Pacific coast, where a decisive majority (66 per cent) felt that the parole system is not beneficial and an even greater majority (84 per cent) wanted parole boards to be more strict.

Possibly this sentiment arises as a result of the kidnapping by a parolee of the Weyerhauser boy in Tacoma, Wash. Possibly, too, it is influenced by the nature of the parole laws. The last nation-wide study of such laws showed that in the state of Washington a prisoner is eligible for parole after serving only six months.

In California, prisoners given an indeterminate life sentence may be paroled after serving 10 years, provided no other charges are pending.

Chautemps Party Hits at Plan for Colony Return.

LILLE, France, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The radical-Socialist party, whose rolls include Premier Camille Chautemps and 16 members of his cabinet, today went on record against the return to Germany of her pre-war colonies.

The party expressed confidence that the government will maintain the administrative and legal set-up of the colonies under French mandate.

"The party cannot take into consideration all the economic and population problems invoked to legitimize the return of her foreign colonies to Germany," the resolution stated.

CAPTURE BLAMED ON WIFE BY BIRD

Says Tears for Mother Caused Cleveland Trip.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Frank Bird, desperado-killer, was back in jail tonight—and the reason, he said, was that his wife "cried and cried for her mother."

Bird, 30, and his wife, Sylvia, 21, were arrested at her parents' home last night without a shot being fired—and with the aid of her father, Joseph Sieber.

"Sylvia was homesick," Theodore N. Stapleton, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here, quoted Bird as saying.

"She cried and cried for her mother. She'd been crying for three days steady before we left New York for Cleveland."

Bird and his brother Charles escaped with James Widmer from county jail in a bullet-punctuated chase last month. Widmer was retaken in Philadelphia October 15.

Federal authorities hunted in the east tonight for Charles Bird in a drive to apprehend the last fugitive member of the Bird gang.

TENT CITY TO RISE AS CIRCUS ARRIVES IN ATLANTA TODAY

Show Grounds To Swarm With Activity as Big Top Rolls In.

CIRCUS PROGRAM.

Show Grounds — Highland avenue.

Performances—New inaugural pageantry, employing 2,000 people and animals starts tomorrow and Tuesday at 2 and 8 p. m.

Super Feature—The greatest opening spectacle in circus history, India.

Musical Program—Concerts by Merlo Evans band at 1:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Side Shows—Exhibitions begin at 10 a. m. daily and run continuously.

Show's Departure — Trains leave for Columbus, Ga., following Tuesday night's performance.

By AL HAILEY.

Mile-long trains of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey combined circus, modestly billed as "The Greatest Show on Earth," will trundle into Atlanta at 8 o'clock this morning.

The Highland avenue show grounds will be swarming with activity as young and old answer the irresistible call of the "big top" and turn out to watch the fascinating process of unloading.

The elephants are coming, the camels are coming—in fact, they are all coming—freaks, cowboys, cowgirls, skilled acrobats, daredevil aerial artists, and, of course, the wild animals.

And this morning they will be yawning and stretching, looking at Atlanta and being looked at by Atlanta.

4 Train Loads.

There will be four trains of them, but by noon barren spaces of the Highland show grounds will be converted into a canvas-topped metropolis, flags overhead and sawdust underfoot.

When the first note of the trumpet sounding the opening of the big show rings out at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, there will be 31 tents raised in readiness for the two daily performances tomorrow and Tuesday. Night performances will start at 8 o'clock.

India, lavishly costumed in tune with the spirit of the circus, will be the opening pageant of the seven-ring-and-stage show.

The show this year has more European and Asiatic acts than ever before, according to Frank Braden, press representative of the circus.

Maria Rasputin, daughter of Russia's Mad Monk, with her liberty horses; the Magyars, somersaulting springboard acrobatic troupe; the Great Aloys, aerial flying and diving daredevils; the Erwingos, high trapeze artists, and the Colters, European equestrian clowns—all of them and several others have come to the circus from Europe, South America and Asia as new acts to thrill the American public.

Hollywood Star.

Tim McCoy, star of Hollywood's westerns, will lead his troupe of rough riders under the "big top" also.

But today's the day when all Atlanta will be dizzy with the spell of the circus. The pungent odors of a thousand sources, the trundling sounds of scarlet and gold wagons rolling down the runways from the flat railroad cars, animals and men working—the unloading's the thing which excites the echoes of youth in old timers and sets youngsters on fire with the glamour of the "big top."

There'll be much to see as "The Greatest Show on Earth" settles into comparative Sabbath leisure today—chefs at their ranges in the cook tents, men feeding the 1,009 wild animals in the menagerie, others grooming 700 horses in the draft and ring stocks tents. With the show itself are 1,600 persons.

Tomorrow they will be bedecked in the spangles and trappings of the big show, but today they are "circus people" and probably the envy of every small boy who has ever whistled "The Man on the Flying Trapeze."

The Elephants and Camels, Too, Arrive Here Early This Morning

This typical unloading scene of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus will be re-enacted at the Highland avenue show grounds early this morning. The unloading by the circus always thrills the youngsters and naturally papa and sometimes mama, too, feel obligated to go along to see that Johnny or Suzy do not get trampled upon by the animals. The circus begins unloading in Atlanta at 8 a. m. The "line forms at the right" and how! Atlanta boys and girls should set their alarm clocks ahead this morning.

'LOST BATTALION' ESCAPES TO SAFETY

pledge to defend the warehouse until death in the face of a Japanese "surrender or die" ultimatum.

Ten minutes after the last survivor fled the crumbling warehouse, Japanese hoisted the Rising Sun flag over the site of one of the most dramatic episodes in this conflict.

Colonel Hsieh Chin-yuan, commander of the battalion, part of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's own 88th division, was the last to reach safety of foreign protection.

He said the capitulation was on Chiang's direct orders to evacuate because the battalion was "too valuable to spare." With them the escaping Chinese brought national and battalion flags that had fluttered above the warehouse through four days of pounding attacks since the general Chinese withdrawal from war-ravaged Chapei across Soochow creek from the International Settlement.

Fifty Yards From Fight.

I was an eye-witness to the thrilling deadly drama from beginning to end, watching from a United States marine sandbag redoubt 50 yards directly across Soochow creek from the doomed fortress.

Terrific roars of Japanese big guns rocked the sandbags as shells hurtled through the entire structure, landing at many points in the International Settlement to endanger hundreds of foreign and Chinese lives.

Shrapnel rained down in all directions with deathly whistles, while machine guns kept up a nerve-wracking chatter. The Chinese defenders answered the attack all night with hand grenades and machine gun fire.

Surrounding the structure on three sides, Japanese three-inch guns literally blasted the warehouse until the Chinese garrison dashed across the narrow strip of bullet-splattered territory to foreign internment.

The top floors burst into flames as the Chinese fled.

Three-inch shells fell in Shanghai's downtown section, but only small damage was reported.

Menace Marines.

The Japanese artillery attack menaced the near-by gasworks and its huge gas storage tank endangering the lives of 30 American marines patrolling the sector. Two shells struck the works but the tank remained unhit.

"Firing is still heavy," was the constantly reiterated report to headquarters from Lieutenant J. M. Masters, of Anderson, S. C., commanding the American guard outpost as Japanese, apparently infuriated by the battalion's escape, brought up an armored car to add its thunder to the roaring crescendo.

When the Japanese onslaught was more furious I peered over the sandbags and suddenly saw dim shapes slipping from the warehouse and running for cover.

Curtain of Bullets.

Divining the escape, Japanese swept the exit with searchlights and laid down a curtain of machine gun bullets.

The dugout telephone tinkled and the report came in that "approximately 50 have made it in dribbles of twos and threes."

Until then, Lieutenant Colonel Roswell Winans, peering intently over the sandbags, had not believed any Chinese possibly could escape alive.

Japanese guns increased their roar. Most of the warehouse roof had been shot off. Fire spurted from the upper floors wierdly, lighting the strange spectacle.

Despite the crackle of flames and roar of guns, increasing numbers of Chinese dashed out of the structure and flung themselves behind the British outposts for safety.

Three marine officers and four privates saw the scene repeated time after time in the intermittent flash of shells. Now and then a Chinese would falter and be dragged behind the British sandbags to be transported to an internment camp.

Major Defies Fire.

Suddenly one big shell arched overhead and struck the gas plant 100 yards away. Major Howard Stent unhesitatingly dashed across the fringe of the battle zone to determine the fate of Captain Otho Ledbetter and 30 American marines stationed there to aid British Tommies.

He found none was injured and no sooner had he returned than a second shell struck the plant. He returned for a second checkup.

Finally a signal from the British pill-box across the creek relieved the terrific tension despite the continuing gunfire—all living Chinese had been evacuated.

Foreign consuls general, fearful that the Japanese attack might cause serious damage to the Settlement, had urged the Chinese to give up.

The Chinese battalion, a unit of the famous 88th division, rejected a Japanese "surrender or die" ultimatum, and Thursday declined offers of American and British commanders to facilitate the battalion's withdrawal.

So certain were British officials the Chinese would withdraw before dawn, however, that trucks and heavy police reinforcements were assembled to effect the transfer. Police said the Chinese would be interned in a concentration camp within the settlement after surrendering their arms.

Fires Break Out.

New fires broke out in devastated Chapei despite stern efforts to quench blazes that swept the area. The Isis theater was among the newly destroyed structures.

In the midst of one of the most intense naval bombardments of the Pootung section, across the Whangpoo south of central Shanghai, a lone Chinese air raider soared briefly over the three or four Japanese warships pouring shells into the Chinese positions. Anti-aircraft batteries drove off the raider and naval guns continued their bombardment uninterrupted.

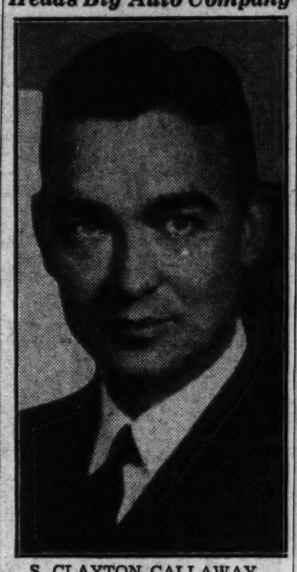

Chinese authorities declared the Chinese army's left wing still held Nanziang, strategic Nanking-Shanghai railway point west of Shanghai, despite a three-day Japanese land and air bombardment that reduced the town to ruins.

Threaten Break.

(In Tokyo an unofficial group of influential Japanese accused Great Britain of aiding China and warned that diplomatic relations might be broken if this continued. London dispatches indicated that Britain would sit down at the Brussels nine-power treaty conference next Wednesday with a "much stiffer back" because of repeated Japanese offenses against British troops and property in China.)

A Japanese bomber was shot down and three fliers killed in South China when a Japanese squadron attempted to destroy highway communications linking the port of Amoy with Changchow and Chinchew.

BARCELONA MADE LOYALIST CAPITAL; BRITISH SHIP SUNK

Insurgent Airplanes Drop 15 Bombs on Food Vessel; 26 Rescued.

MADRID, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Barcelona became the capital of Spain today when Premier Juan Negrin flew there from Valencia to set up new headquarters.

Most of the ministers will begin work in Barcelona next week. It will take several weeks, however, for a complete transfer of the government, and during that time government affairs will be conducted from both cities. President Manuel Azana was expected to move soon.

All fronts continued comparatively quiet.

BRITISH SHIP SUNK BY REBEL PLANES

VALENCIA, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The northern coastal defense tonight reported the British freighter Jean Weems was sunk this morning in the Mediterranean sea by Insurgent airplanes which dropped 15 bombs.

The vessel was 16 miles off the port of Gerona en route to Barcelona with a cargo of food, the English captain said.

The crew of 26 was saved.

Father of Slain 'Loyalist' Soldier Brings Quiz.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 30.—(UP) — Reported activities of Communists on the University of Kansas campus will be investigated by a special committee of the board of regents, it was announced today.

The inquiry was demanded by Ed Henry, of Dodge City, whose son, Don Henry, a Kansas student, was killed fighting with the Loyalists in Spain.

Charles M. Harger, chairman of the board, announced the investigation after E. H. Lindley, chancellor of the university, reported on the inquiry he had made. Harger named H. L. Snyder, a member of the board, chairman of the special committee. The other members are Ralph O'Neil, a regent, and Charles Scott, chairman of the Kansas University Endowment Association. The committee is to report its findings November 13.

UNSPANKED QUINTS' 'PAST' IS DETAILED

who unwittingly have furthered the cause of child welfare.

It was the first conference scientists and psychologists ever held on quintuplets, the first time their development has been summarized fully in public—and also the day on which the first scientific book about the quints came off the press.

"Collected Studies on the Dionne Quintuplets," a book prepared by Dr. W. E. Blatz and his research associates of the University of Toronto, appeared—further proof of the significance life in a Callander nursery has for science.

How truly the quints are "paired" remains to be shown by additional studies. A doctor who reported on their biological progress said further studies of this inter-relation may be a clue some day to the details of formation of five embryos from one egg.

No change in the quints' regime is planned at present, said Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, the country doctor who is the five little sisters' medical guardian.

Asked, "At what point do you think they should be taken out of their special environment and have other playmates," he answered quickly:

"They have other playmates. The only time the other Dionne children can't come to play, if their mother approves, is when they are sick."

Whether the quints should go to public school is doubtful, he said, because they would be objects of curiosity, and people would come to see them.

All from One Ovum.

A number of tests, the scientists said, show the quintuplets developed from the same ovum. One proof was the placenta at their birth, another test their fingerprints, which differ very little in ridge counts and the shape of patterns.

Whatever differences the five sisters develop must be environmental, said Dr. John W. MacArthur, biologist.

Their difference in weight at birth was environmental, he said. Dr. "Bill" Dafoe, younger brother of the country doctor disagreed—and another "quint" discussion was on.

Bespectacled psychologists lingered after the long sessions, when they saw charts of the quints' feet and teeth, diagrams of their progress drawn on blackboards, and movies of the sisters at play, to see still more charts and ask questions.

The discussions continued in the hotel lobby.

"Do you recommend liver and bacon for all children up to three?" one man asked Dr. Bill Dafoe.

The doctor laughed, "I didn't say that.—And anyway, I'm an obstetrician."

Wheel Chair Conferee.

Four sisters of the Dafoe brothers came to the conference. The lieutenant governor of Ontario was there, and one woman came in a wheel chair.

Some details about the quints brought out at the conference:

They are a little retarded in language, but are improving. Yvonne talks the most. She also is the most "socially mature" in her contacts with others, and ranks the highest of the five on achievement tests.

She, Annette and Cecile now weigh more than the average for girls of their age, but little Marie—the smallest of the five at birth, is still lagging two pounds below normal.

Marie's eye muscles are slightly inco-ordinated, but it is thought that will be corrected. Emilie has a slight astigmatism in both eyes, but "may never need to wear glasses."

All Healthy, Normal.

Their health is excellent, all are physically normal, and they've triumphed over all the handicaps of premature birth.

Although their reddish brown wavy hair, their complexions and even their ears in general are alike, you can tell them apart—by the shape of their face, the minute differences in their ears and expressions.

They seldom quarrel, show few fears, "remarkably expressive gestures." They behave well at table, are quiet during grace before meals, and help clear the table when they've finished.

All Assayers of Public Opinion Agree That Fusion-Republican Administration Will Be Returned to City Hall; No Takers for Bets.

By IRA WOLFERT.

(Copyright, 1937, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—In the opinion of all impartial professional, semi-professional and amateur assayers of local public opinion, New York voters Tuesday, for the first time in the city's history, will return a Fusion-Republican administration for a second term. Tammany Hall has been thrown out of power several times previously during periodic stirrings of the electorate under the goad of reformers, but never for two consecutive elections.

In the event that a Democrat will be named Tuesday to sit in city hall, the weight of purely professional woe that will be found among poll-takers is incalculable.

La Guardia money is being offered on Wall Street at two and one-half and three to one, but was not getting any action late this week.

The situation in the race for the comptrollership is more obscure. The majority of newspaper publishers expressed doubt as to the outcome. A few believed Joseph L. McGoldbrick, Republican-Fusion nominee, would defeat Frank J. Taylor, incumbent and Democratic candidate for the job of holding the town's purse-strings. Among those was one whose newspaper columns support Mr. Taylor. None declared a belief in Mr. Taylor's election.

Two Other Persons Hurt by Walking Into Cars From Behind Others.

Three Decatur boys were injured last night when the miniature auto in which they were riding ran into a telephone pole and caught fire at West Ponce de Leon avenue and Upland road, climaxing their Halloween celebration. At least two other persons were injured in traffic accidents in the Atlanta area.

H. A. Carroll, 14, of 945 Church street, Decatur, was admitted to Emory hospital with scalp lacerations, a cut knee and burns. He was only one of the three burned when the auto was destroyed by the flames.

Eugene Carroll, 12, son of Decatur City Policeman D. H. Carroll, of 133 Lockwood terrace, and Ralph Zaneck, 16, driver, of Decatur, were treated for lacerations and dismissed.

D. T. Scott, of Alpharetta, Route 2, received a fractured left leg and lacerations, when struck by a car driven by Lee Burlingame, of 133 Feld avenue, Atlanta, at Glenn Echo last night. DeKalb police said Scott stepped from behind a parked car into the path of the Burlingame automobile. No case was made.

Thomas Williamson Jr., 8, of 423 Glennwood avenue, S. E., was treated at Grady hospital for a fractured left leg, received when he walked from behind another car into the path of an automobile at 453 Cherokee avenue, Patrolman Eddie Hughes said. A. L. Amerson, 24, of 500 Park avenue, was driver of the car.

LA GUARDIA VICTORY PRACTICALLY CONCEDED

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(UP)—Tammany Hall was poised tonight on the threshold of an inglorious exit from political power while around it the tumult and shouting of the most momentous city campaign in many decades heralded the approach of election day next Tuesday.

Resigned to the apparent defeat of its mayorality candidate, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, the Democratic organization threw all its resources into a desperate effort to salvage the one office most essential to its continued existence—that of district attorney of Manhattan.

Dewey Victory Indicated.

But polls and surveys indicated that Thomas E. Dewey, racketsbusting special prosecutor who has been hammering sensational charges at high-placed Tammany district leaders, had a three-to-two edge over Harold W. Hastings, the Tammany candidate.

Swept out of City Hall four years ago in Mayor F. H. La Guardia's Fusion landslide, Tammany could only look forward tonight to another overwhelming victory for the rotund former Liberal congressman who has been ripping away at patronage with a ruthless hand. He has the support of the Republican, American Labor Party, Fusion, Communist and Socialist organization, as well as of some Liberal Democrats.

Virtual admission that he would defeat Mahoney came at Tammany Hall this week when district leaders getting election funds were told to concentrate solely on beating Dewey. Mahoney, president of the Amateur Athletic Union and leader of the movement to boycott the Berlin Olympics, is backed by Postmaster James A. Farley, Governor Herbert H. Lehman as well as the local Democratic organizations.

Tammany Accused.

Dewey for the past week has been accusing Tammany leaders by name of various misdeeds and there is reason to believe that if he is elected he will seek to determine whether a certain Tammany leader is the actual "mastermind" of racketeering in the metropolis.

The most interesting federal contest is in the 17th congressional district, where Bruce Barton, advertising executive and author, is the Republican candidate. Barton, who wrote a best-seller on the Life of Christ, has his own advertising firm take over the job of making him known to the voters of his district. He is opposed by Stanley Osserman, a Democrat, and George Baker, pro-New Deal, who embarassed his American Labor party backers when it was discovered he lives in a swank apartment and owns a yacht.

The election this year marks the introduction of proportional representations, which will be used only in selecting the 20-odd members of the new city council. This unicameral body will supplant the present unwieldy two-house city legislature of more than 70 members. Bitterly opposed to proportional representation, the Tammany board of elections was understood to be prepared to drag out the count as long as a month. Experts contend it can be completed in three days or a week.

450,000 DETROIT BALLOTS FORECAST

DETROIT, Oct. 30.—(AP)—A city election commission forecast of 450,000 votes in Detroit's municipal election Tuesday testified today to the high political blood pressure caused by the first attempt of the Committee for Industrial Organization to control the government of a major city.

Only 167,312 voters participated in the municipal election two years ago, but that campaign was devoid of the fervid oratory that has characterized the battle for ballots between Richard W. Reading, "conservative" candidate for mayor, and Patrick H. O'Brien, standard bearer of the CIO.

In the election, as in the primary, the American Federation of Labor is pitted against the CIO. The AFL backed former Mayor John W. Smith in the primary. He ran third and was eliminated from the mayoralty race.

CAMPAIGNS PUSHED IN OHIO ELECTIONS

AKRON, Ohio, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Akron and Canton mayoral candidates tonight were completing intensive campaigns for next Tuesday's elections, which are expected to indicate CIO's ballot box power in these industrial centers.

Registered for Akron's election were 110,000 voters—a record for municipal campaigns in this "rubber capital."

The opponents: Mayor Schroy, Republican, completing his first two-year term, and Municipal Judge G. L. Patterson, Democrat, indorsed by labor's Non-Partisan League.

In the steel center of Canton, the campaign pits Mayor James Seccombe, Republican, completing three and a half years in office, against Darrell D. Smith, Democrat, 34-year-old labor leader and a newcomer to politics.

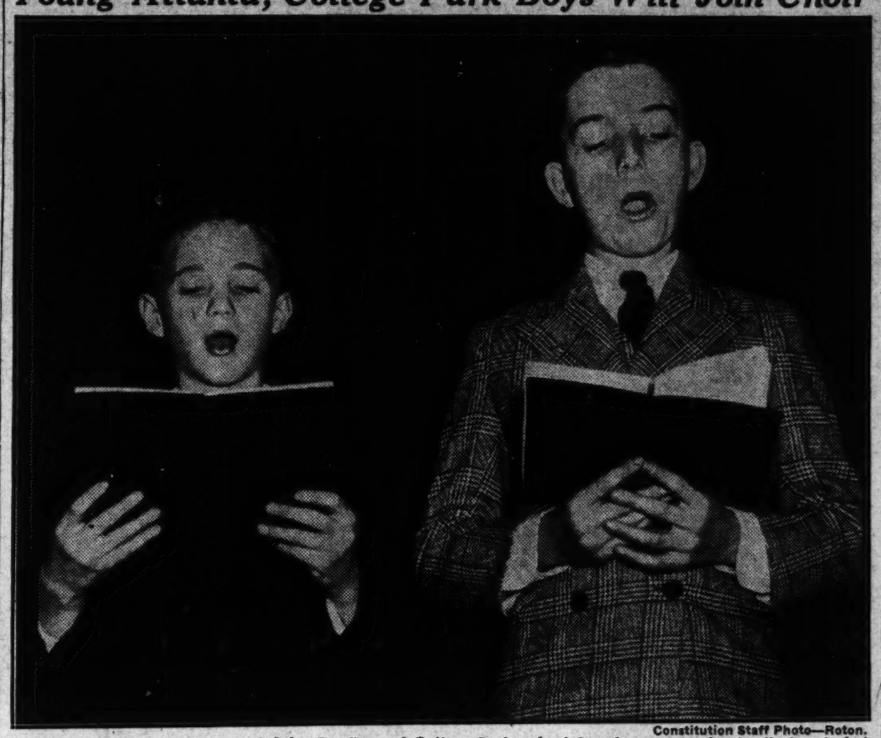

The Non-Partisan League claims AFL support for both labor candidates. Organized labor in both cities is dominantly CIO.

CITY DOMINATES IN RETAIL SALES

tember remained as it was for August, 194.6 as compared to 136.7 for September a year ago.

Cotton consumption in Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee gained, as did production estimates.

Georgia will produce 1,430,000 bales this year, an increase over the September 1 estimate of 1,321,000 bales, according to October estimates. This will compare with 1,086,000 produced last year.

Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee, the states comprising the district, will produce 6,875,000 bales, under the new estimates as against the 5,367,000 bales produced last year.

Farm Receipts Gain.

August receipts from sale of principal farm products, with government payments included, increased about 43 per cent over July and were 3.6 per cent larger than last year, the review indicated.

Despite the fact that retail sales, because of the current recession in business, are not likely to attain the optimistic percentages of gain over 1936, looked for earlier in the year, Blanke held the outlook was "far from discouraging."

Wages, he asserted, were considerably higher in many industries than a year ago, while the income from agriculture had shown a marked increase. Because of the latter fact, he held, retail holiday buying in the rural areas would be stimulated considerably.

In the metropolitan areas stores are anticipating benefits from distribution of expanded Christmas funds, he added.

Less Than Anticipated.

Blanke's survey estimated increase in retail trade for the four months of September, October, November and December at between 8 and 9 per cent, closely approximating the 9 per cent gain of the first eight months of the year. Some authorities had earlier looked for a gain of as much as 15 per cent in the closing months.

Because of the present business recession, and the tendency at such times to "hand-to-mouth" buying, Blanke said he expected department store sales in October would show a country-wide increase over October, 1936, of only 3 to 4 per cent.

Look to Market.

In November, he estimated, that with the assistance of an extra business day as against last year they would show an increase of 6 to 8 per cent, providing there are no further adverse effects from the stock market or unforeseen general conditions.

December department store sales may be expected to climb 8 per cent to 10 per cent over 1936, he said.

The situation of inventories, which has disturbed the trade of recent months, did not appear so hopeful. Blanke estimated the stores would finish the year with larger stocks on hand than in 1936, although they would be somewhat lower than at present.

The association has a membership of 5,600 dry goods, specialty and department stores.

Sales Up 18.1 Per Cent.

The increase in retail sales as announced by the Federal Reserve survey showed a gain of 18.1 per cent for the month, and a wholesale increase of 11.1 per cent.

Employment and pay rolls were up, reports from 6,000 firms in the district revealed. Employment during September gained 0.9 per cent and pay rolls increased 1.7 per cent.

Residential building contracts were 16.9 per cent more in September than a year ago but there was a sharp reduction in the total value of all building contracts as compared with September, 1936.

The daily average consumption of cotton mills in the district increased 3.2 per cent from August to September.

Coal production in Alabama declined during the month but the Tennessee output of bituminous coal increased. The coal production of both states continued greater than a year ago.

Electric power production increased 5.2 per cent during September as compared with the same month a year ago.

Receipts of both turpentine and rosin declined in September but stocks increased, the board reported. Supplies of turpentine were the smallest for September in three years and those of rosin were the smallest in more than 19 years.

Loans, Deposits Increase.

The board's business survey was optimistic in that it reported "loans and deposits at weekly reporting member banks have recently increased."

Despite the slump in cotton prices the board stated that August receipts from the sale of principal farm products increased about 43 per cent over July.

The first estimate of the citrus fruit production in Florida indicated more oranges but less grapefruit. Orange production was estimated at 24,000,000 boxes and grapefruit production at 13,000,000 boxes.

"Fisherman of Capri," Photo Character, Dies

NAPLES, Italy, Oct. 30.—(AP) Michele Russo, who was called "Spadaro, the fisherman of Capri" and was one of Europe's most photographed characters, died tonight of bronchial pneumonia on the Island of Capri.

His white beard and red beret made him the subject of literally hundreds of thousands of painters and amateur photographers who visited the island.

He will be buried on the island which he never left.

Three Georgia Boys To Join Choir For Year of Tutelage and Travel

College Park, Macon, Atlanta To Be Represented in Apollo Group, of Birmingham; Were Winners in Southern States Competition.

By MAXINE LAND.

An 11-year-old Atlanta boy and a 13-year-old College Park boy who have never studied voice left this morning for Birmingham to enter upon a year of tutelage and travel with the nationally known Apollo Boys choir.

In the all-southern states contest sponsored by the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs, conducted recently in Birmingham, John Bowling, of College Park, won first place, and Joe Johnston, of Atlanta, won third. A Macon boy, Lewis Swayze, won second place and will join the choir in Birmingham.

Birmingham Auditions.

The boys were given vocal auditions in Birmingham last Saturday and judged on voice. They had to pass character tests and had to have a satisfactory record in school work to enter.

They will be tutored in German and Latin, aside from their regular academic work, and will be given musical training by the director of the choir, Coleman Cooper, who visited the Vienna Boys' choir last summer for a number of months. They will also receive musical training under the direction of Emmerich Eber, member of the Vienna Boys' choir, who returned with Cooper.

Arriving in Birmingham they will be guests at Mr. Cooper's home until December, when the choir will tour to Texas, giving concerts in the leading cities en route. They will then go to Florida for two months, after which they will make a concert tour of the east. The next two months they will spend in the mountains of North Carolina, climaxing their year of study with a concert at Town Hall in New York.

First "Outsiders."

The choir has heretofore been composed exclusively of Birmingham boys. The recent contest marked the first time outsiders from other cities and states were permitted to enter.

Young Bowling, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bowling, and Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Johnston, of Atlanta, appearing yesterday on the program of the Fifth District Georgia Federation of Music Clubs at the Studio Arts building, were overjoyed over prospects of their trip.

Their only fear was that they might be a little homesick during their year away from home.

Bowling, who says "Indian Love Call" is his favorite song at the present, said yesterday, "I'm looking forward to a year of musical study and I really want to learn something about German and Latin." The younger boy, Joe Johnston, added that his favorite song was "The One Rose," "but you won't know us when we get back, we'll be entirely different." Then he paused a moment.

"Gee, I hope we don't get homesick," he said.

HALLOWEEN TRADE LOSES RYE SPIRITS

Detectives Seize 107 Pints in Three Raids.

Detectives raided three places yesterday to confiscate 107 pints of assorted whiskies intended for Halloween celebrants.

Leo's Buffet, corner Forsyth and Marietta streets, was raided by Detectives J. B. King and John Crankshaw. They confiscated one quart of alleged liquor in a tea pot and arrested Leo Amiel, 35, on whisky charges. He mad $200 bond.

Raiding a tavern at 777 Gordon street, S. W., the same detectives conifscated 68 pints of whisky and arrested Sam Miller, 23, of 421 Boulevard. He made $200 whisky bond.

Detectives J. A. Bailey and R. R. Davis confiscated 37 pints and one quart of liquor at Apartment 5, 536 Boulevard. Buddie Powell, 24, was arrested and made $100 bond.

KNIGHT CONVICTED ON ARSON CHARGES

Cleared, However, of Attempt To Kill Children for $120,000 Insurance.

MEDIA, Pa., Oct. 30.—(AP)—A jury tonight found Albert R. Knight guilty on three charges of arson but acquitted him of a charge he attempted to burn to death his four children to collect $120,000 insurance.

Knight and his four children heard the jury's verdict without any show of emotion. About 25 of Knight's friends from his home town of Lansdowne also were present when the jury reported to Delaware County Judge Broomall at 8:45 p. m. (Atlanta time).

The three charges on which Knight was convicted carry with them a total of from 4 to 29 years in prison. The jury found him guilty of:

1. Attempt to set fire to a dwelling and chattels, penalty one to two years.
2. Firing a dwelling, penalty 2 to 20 years.
3. Firing chattels to defraud the insurer, penalty one to seven years.

Knight claimed he was returning from Washington, D. C., on a bus the night the fire was discovered and did not arrive home until two hours after it had been extinguished. He also testified his house was infested with insects and he had placed kerosene-soaked paper and oakum in the basement to exterminate them.

MRS. HAHN SEEKS DIRECTED VERDICT

Judge Indicates Denial of Defense Motion.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Judge Bell took under advisement today a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal in the case of Anna Marie Hahn, on trial for the poison slaying of 78-year-old Jacob Wagner.

Attorney Hoodin took up today's two-hour session attacking the state's case, asserting Prosecutor Outcalt had failed to prove a prima facie case in the death of Wagner. The state's promise to prove a prima facie case was the basis upon which the court permitted evidence of the poison deaths of three other elderly acquaintances of Mrs. Hahn.

Judge Bell said he would rule on the separate motions Monday, but he warned Hoodin to be prepared to present defense witnesses, indicating that he would rule adversely on a directed verdict.

DRUGGIST'S WIFE MAKES DISCOVERY

Speaks Up and Tells What She Found Out While Helping Husband.

"My husband manages May's Cut-Rate Drug Store, at No. 114 Whitehall street, here in Atlanta," said Mrs. Harry Lefkoff recently, "and so you can understand that I see and hear about a great many different medicines. I sometimes help out at the store during rush hours, and in this way have an opportunity to hear what people say about various medicines they buy.

"Last winter I saw so many people buying your medicine, Mentho-Mulsion, and speaking so highly of it, that I finally took a bottle home to see if it would relieve me of a bad cough which I had following a cold. After taking a few doses of it I could understand why everyone spoke so highly of it. The large amount of menthol you use in Mentho-Mulsion opened up my head and bronchial tubes almost immediately, and I felt better at once. My cough entirely disappeared after a day or so. We now keep Mentho-Mulsion on hand at all times, and start taking it at the first sign of a cough or cold. I am writing you this because I think everyone should know about this splendid medicine."—(adv.)

ANGER OF BRITAIN NARROWS CHANCES OF 9-POWER ACTION

Series of Fatal Incidents Exhausting Patience With Japan.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Tension between Great Britain and Japan, aroused by a series of fatal incidents in the Shanghai war zone, today narrowed the possibilities for success of the Brussels conference to halt the Chinese-Japanese war.

As the London delegation, headed by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, made ready to go to the Belgian capital Monday, the British foreign office sought a report on the killing of three British soldiers by Japanese troops at Shanghai yesterday.

The latest incident in the series starting with the wounding of Sir Hugo Knatchbull-Hugessen, British ambassador to China, stirred new feeling against Japan. It was apparent the repeated occurrences had strained British patience with mere regrets.

Japanese Bitterness.

At the same time growing Japanese bitterness against Britain was reported from Tokyo where the "council on the current situation," an unofficial body, suggested Japan might break off diplomatic relations with Britain.

Reports from Shanghai indicated Japanese resented British troops stopping troop launches from going up Soochow creek yesterday. Dispatches said Japanese declared a British soldier had touched a Japanese machine gun, "thus insulting the imperial Japanese navy."

FOUR FOREIGN MINISTERS TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

BRUSSELS, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Belgium put the historic Palais Des Academies in shape today for the first nine-power treaty conference meeting Wednesday to seek solution of the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

The foreign office announcement that Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff would head Russia's delegation brought to four the number of foreign ministers who are scheduled to attend the conference.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Great Britain and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, of France, already have indicated they would attend. Foreign Minister Paul Spaak, of Belgium, will open the session.

FRAUD ORDER ISSUED AGAINST LOCAL FIRM

A fraud order has been issued against the National Baseball Statistical Bureau, with headquarters in Atlanta and Birmingham, requiring that all mail addressed to the concern be returned to the senders and marked fraudulent, Postmaster Lon Livingston announced yesterday.

Livingston said the order was issued October 25 by Calvin W. Hassell, acting solicitor at Washington. The concern received approximately 100 letters per day, the postmaster said.

SEX INSTRUCTION FOR YOU AND YOUR CHILDREN

Millions of parents, anxious to safeguard the health and morals of their youngsters, and to meet their inquiries concerning the facts of life and sex in an honest and decent fashion, are puzzled about how to impart this information.

Millions of young boys and girls, adolescents, and young men and women are growing up without proper sex instruction, gathering their ideas of life, love, sex and mating from prurient sources, risking the dangers of veneral disease and broken lives.

There is a tremendous need for honest, complete, accurate and scientifically correct instruction on the subject of sex and life.

Our Service Bureau at Washington has spent months of research in the preparation of such a booklet. In 24 concise pages, it contains 10,000 words of frank discussion of the scientific facts of sex in simple English for the instruction of parents and their children.

Ribbons of Cotton Fabric to Make Roads

With the co-operation of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, Nevada and North Carolina are conducting experiments in cotton fabric roads which have drawn the attention of the textile industry and highway departments all over the nation. The photographs presented were taken on the North Carolina experiment. In the above picture workmen are shown unraveling huge ribbons of the fabric on an especially prepared base.

After the cotton membrane is laid on the base a hot and oily bituminous surface is sprayed on the fabric. This is done to bind it to the base and to thoroughly impregnate the strands of cotton before applying another surface.

Once the cotton fabric is placed and the oily surfacing is sprayed on it the entire road is then covered with rock or gravel screenings. Tons of the screenings are poured on the highway and rolled with a giant roller. This is shown above. Another coat of bituminous surface is placed on the road as well as a coating of chips before it is placed into service.

Wider Use for Cotton Is Predicted If Highway Tests Are Success

Georgia Highway Board Watching Experiments of Federal Bureau on Nevada Stretch With Deep Interest; Projects in This State Contemplated.

(Pictures in Rotogravure Section.)

The Georgia Highway Board is awaiting with deep interest the results of an experiment by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads in the use of a cotton fabric as reinforcement for hard surfaced roads with the hope that if successful the test will bring a new and wide use for cotton, the state's outstanding product.

Chairman W. L. Miller, of the Georgia board, said yesterday that the test is being made by the federal bureau in conjunction with the Nevada State Highway Department on a three-mile stretch of the Pyramid Lake highway in Washoe county, Nevada.

Year's Experiment.

"It will take a year to definitely determine whether the use of this cotton fabric as a road reinforcement is practical," the chairman said. "If it is we will be very happy to use it in Georgia. It will result in a new and wide use of cotton which eventually should bring a great demand for staple not used in ordinary processes."

The federal bureau, it is understood, chose the Nevada project for the first test because of the climate of the western state was said to be particularly suited for the experiment.

A similar project has been launched in the state of North Carolina, but inasmuch as the Nevada experiment was undertaken first, it is expected that the results from the far western state will be those studied first.

North Carolina engineers say they found only one drawback and that is that the cotton fabric road cost between $800 and $1,000 a mile more than the ordinary road and that only time and use would tell if the expenditure was justified.

Chairman Miller said the Georgia Highway Department already had one project prepared for use of the fabric and that more would be made ready for submission to the federal bureau when its Nevada tests are completed.

Project Prepared.

"It will be next spring before we can tell how successful the plan will be," Miller said. "However, in the meantime we will prepare several projects and if the fabric is found all right we will be ready to use some Georgia cotton immediately on our roads."

According to Robert A. Allen, chief engineer of the Nevada State Highway Department, the Pyramid road project is three miles long and the location was determined after a thorough check showed that the traffic, moisture and general climatic conditions were found most suitable.

The Nevada experiment was divided into four short sections of something less than one mile each. One section was treated with the fine mesh, lightweight material, another with a medium grade and a third with coarser and heavier material. A fourth contiguous section, similar in length to the first three, was marked off and given identical road surface treatment, minus the cotton membrane. The fourth section is expected to provide the basis for comparison with the first three.

Membrane Reinforcement.

The bituminous wearing surface consisted of the application of emulsified asphalt and crushed rock or gravel screenings reinforced with the cotton membrane placed upon a compacted oil-treated surface road of uniform grade and cross section.

The road surface consisted of the construction of a compacted, uniform and smooth surface upon the existing roadbed to a minimum width of 20 feet and with a crown of not less than one-tenth. The present surface was scarified and reshaped to eliminate all depressions and other irregularities. Sufficient water was applied to facilitate compaction after which the surface was rolled with a power roller.

After the surface was properly shaped a prime coat of asphaltic road material of the slow curing 1A type was spread over the surface width of 20 feet at the rate of one-fourth to one-third a gallon per square yard. It then was permitted to dry. The surface then was swept free of all loose material by both hand and power brooms.

After the prime coat became thoroughly dried a tack coat of approximately one-eighth of a gallon of penetration emulsion was applied. Immediately after the tack coat the cotton membrane, which comes in rolls of about 500 feet long, was spread longitudinally in overlapping strips, covering the full width of the primed surface. Crushed rock or gravel screenings was then spread on the cotton membrane reinforcing materials at the rate of approximately 20 pounds to each square yard. A second application of penetration emulsion was then applied at the rate of one-fourth to three-eighths of a gallon. Crushed rock or gravel screenings again were applied, this time at the rate of 10 pounds for each square yard. The road again was swept, this time with a power broom and again rolled with a self-propelling roller.

Special Equipment.

To facilitate the laying of the cotton membrane the maintenance division of the Nevada State Highway Department devised and built at its Reno shops a mobile unit light enough to be hauled by two workmen. Upon this mobile unit receptables for two spindles were fastened. One cotton roll, being comparatively light in weight was placed on one of these spindles and mounted upon the mobile drag unit. From this unit the cotton membrane unraveled freely, engineers reporting as much as 1,800 feet of the cotton-surfaced roads being treated in one single day.

At the selected starting point on the Pyramid highway the end of the cotton roll was fastened to the surface. The spindle unit was then drawn forward, the fabric unraveled and two workers, one on each side, trampled the edges of the fabric into proper alignment. After laying the fabric was fastened to the road surface sufficiently to hold in place. The strips were laid with an overlap of about eight inches each.

Washoe county, where the test is being made, is in extreme western Nevada, bordering on California.

Chairman Miller said that when the experiment has been completed it was highly possible that the Georgia Highway Department would send its own engineers to Nevada to study the results.

"The highway department believes that anything it can do to foster the development of cotton products means much to our state," Miller said. "Wherever possible in our road program we are using materials which can be obtained in Georgia."

OFFICERS ELECTED BY LIBRARY GROUP AT FINAL SESSION

Miss Sally M. Akin Named President as Group Ends 3-Day Session.

Closing the three-day biennial meeting of the Georgia Library Association, officers for the next two years were elected yesterday and the first board of certification in the state, to function in connection with the association, was appointed and sworn in by Governor Rivers.

Elected to serve a second term as president was Miss Sally M. Akin, librarian at Washington Memorial library at Macon. Miss Ola Wyeth, Savannah librarian, and Miss Eunice Coston, readers' adviser at the Carnegie library, were elected vice presidents. Miss Beverly Wheatcroft, secretary of the Georgia Library Commission, was elected secretary and treasurer.

Rivers Names Board.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning the certification board, the first in the state to function in connection with the Georgia Library Association, was appointed by Governor Rivers for the purpose of determining the fitness, education, training and ability of applicants for library positions in towns with a population more than 5,000.

Members of the board appointed and sworn in were Miss Akin, president of the association; Miss Jessie Hopkins, librarian, Carnegie library; Miss Louise Smith, librarian from Fitzgerald; Miss Tommie Dora Barker, dean of the Emory University Library school, and Miss Beverly Wheatcroft, secretary of the Georgia Library Commission, as ex-officio member.

Hold Business Session.

The business meeting convened at 10 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace. Reports were given by the various committees concerning accomplishments made in the past two years.

Further and more detailed reports were made on the following 10 important objects of the association: Building up an informed public opinion on library conditions and needs in the state; adequate support for public libraries in Georgia; certification of librarians; development of county and regional libraries strengthening Georgia Library Association; a school library supervisor in the State Department of Education; re-energizing the state library; ample support for college and university libraries; professional education for librarianship, and library service for negroes.

The meeting was adjourned and members viewed exhibits on the mezzanine floor.

JUNIOR LIBRARIANS TO COMPILE TALENT

Junior librarians, in an effort to promote Georgia in the eyes of the nation, have begun a compilation of the state's literary talent, according to announcement yesterday by Giles Robertson, chairman of the Atlanta Junior members bibliography group.

"Many of Georgia's great men and women of letters are practically unknown to the present generation because we have failed to record properly their names and achievements," Robertson explained.

Compilation of an exhaustive bibliography for the state was selected as the first project of the Atlanta Junior Library Club shortly after its organization here last April.

Miss Beverly Wheatcroft, secretary of the State Library Commission, pointed out that the state now has much need of such a bibliography. Chairman Robertson said the junior librarians will work through all historical and library groups throughout the city in getting a correct and complete list of Georgia authors and their works.

Organization officers are: Miss Ann Wimbish, president; Miss Caroline Adams, vice president; Miss Estelle King, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Delkin Jones, program chairman, and Miss Anne Moore, publicity chairman.

GUARD OFFICER TO SPEAK HERE

General Russell To Address Armistice Gathering.

Major General Henry D. Russell, commanding general of the 30th division of the National Guard, will be principal speaker at an Armistice Day program given by Gate City Post; No. 72, American Legion, November 10 at the Henry Grady hotel, Commander Arthur W. Duggan announced yesterday.

Major T. A. Ruddell, of Jackson, Mich., globe-trotter and soldier of fortune, will be among other speakers on the program. Major Ruddell, a former lieutenant in the United States army and a former officer in the Italian Foreign Legion, has received four war decorations for distinguished service. Among these are the Silver Valor medal and the Croix de Guerre.

SEED FIRM FIGHTS STREET EXTENSION

Hastings Company Obtains Injunction To Halt Work on Broad.

A second obstacle to the State Highway Department's plan to extend Broad street from Mitchell street to the junction of Forsyth and Whitehall streets loomed yesterday as Judge Virlyn B. Moore granted a temporary restraining order to the Hastings Seed Company, through whose plant the extension is planned.

A previous injunction against the highway board was granted in McRae a week ago on petition of a Spalding county resident as a "citizen and taxpayer."

The injunctions restrain the board from proceeding further with acquision of right-of-way for the extension by means of condemnation proceedings. The board planned to condemn property through the Hastings Seed Company building at 178-180 Mitchell street.

Signing the order yesterday, Judge Moore made the case returnable November 12. The McRae injunction hearing has been set for the following day.

LIBERALS FAIL DE MAN.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 30.—(UP)—Finance Minister Andre de Man failed today to obtain the support of the Liberal faction in forming a new Belgian cabinet.

END OF POORHOUSE TO BE CELEBRATED

Eagles Plan To Fete Rivers at Dinner.

With Governor Rivers as principal speaker, the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Atlanta Aerie No. 714, will celebrate the passing of the poorhouse in Georgia with a dinner on November 10, O. E. Zacharias, president, announced yesterday.

Delegations from Augusta, Savannah, Macon and Chattanooga will attend the meeting. Governor Rivers will officially burn a replica of the last county poor farm in the state.

Others on the program include: Lamar Murdaugh, state director of public welfare; Judge Luther Z. Rosser, Colonel William L. Grayson, of Savannah, past national president of the Eagles, and W. W. Webb, head of the Georgia old-age pension association.

Honor guests will include United States Senators Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell, Congressman Robert Ramspeck and Mayor Hartsfield.

LEVY ON LUXURIES INSTEAD OF SALES IS GAINING SUPPORT

Rivers Winds Up Conferences With Legislators on Tax Program.

As Governor Rivers neared conclusion of his long series of conferences preparatory to the opening of a special session of the general assembly, legislators who are reluctant to publicize their views appear to be veering away from both a general sales tax and a gross income tax and pushing what they term luxury taxes.

The luxury tax movement was fortified when the Governor admitted yesterday that a number of members of the house of representatives, important members of the powerful ways and means committee, have asked that his call for the special session include a provision either for a new general tax act or amendments to the present continuing act.

Governor Rivers yesterday held a long executive session with the special legislative tax committee, winding up his conferences with members of the assembly. Only his Friday conference with a committee of the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia remains before he prepares the call for the session and his first message, which is scheduled to be delivered November 29.

Undecided on Date.

The chief executive said yesterday he would await further developments before finally determining whether the assembly will be convened Thanksgiving or either a day before or the day following. He said he felt it would be necessary to convene the day before Thanksgiving in order to permit those legislators who desire to witness and participate in Gainesville's rehabilitation celebration, at which President Roosevelt is to be the speaker, may do so.

Senator Guy Jackson's special tax committee was closeted with the Governor most of the day yesterday at the executive mansion. Several tentative programs were informally discussed and the committee heard reports from Duke Davis, of LaGrange, the Governor's legislative adviser, and from Representative William H. Key, of Jasper county, chairman of the house appropriations committee.

Rivers Wants Opinions.

Governor Rivers said he had no statement to make regarding a definite program.

"I first want to get the views of the editors of our newspapers, other business and professional people before finally determining a course of action," the Governor said. "Any far-flung program will affect a wide number of interests and we are anxious to obtain the views of various groups before planning any action."

Although Governor Rivers did not comment on it, The Constitution learned authoritatively yesterday that the State Revenue Commission either has or this week will ask the department of law if the general tax act may be amended in the special session and that if not a new general tax act will be submitted by the ways and means committee.

What will be done about liquor, if anything, remains to be seen.

A spirited race for the house clerkship, vacated by the resignation of Andrew J. Kingery, of Graymont-Summitt, appears to be impending. P. T. McCutchen Jr., of Franklin, and Joe Boone, of Irwinton, already are actively campaigning for the post while at Cordele yesterday Jack Forrester, former secretary of the public service commission ,announced for the post. Forrester is expected here this week to begin his drive for the office.

MEXICAN FIGHTERS WILL BE FARMERS

Officials Go to Hermosillo To Aid Yaquis, Mayos.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Governor Roman Yocupicio, of Sonora, accompanied by two high government officials, left by special plane yesterday for Hermosillo to launch an agrarian program designed to benefit the long-neglected Yaqui and Mayo Indians.

The program was worked out during a week of conferences with President Lazaro Cardenas.

The Yaquis and Mayos, famous for their fighting men, will be given individual plots of land in the Yaqui river zone which ultimately will be watered by reserves from the great Angostrua dam. Under the plan, each Indian will receive eight hectares (about 20 acres) of arable land and grazing land according to his needs. Thirteen Yaqui villages will benefit.

IVY ROUNTREE WINS KIWANIS SELECTION AS STATE GOVERNOR

Eatonton Club Awarded International Trophy for Achievement.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Kiwanis Clubs of Georgia today elected Ivy W. Rounrtee, of Swainsboro, as district governor, and selected Valdosta for next year's convention.

The international trophy for the best achievement during the year was awarded the Eatonton club.

The following were named lieutenant governors: F. A. Brewster, Cedartown; J. C. Jones, Thomaston; George Simpson, Valdosta; Jap Highsmith, Baxley; Frank C. Cross, Toccoa; Ross Sharpe, Lyons, and W. E. Knox, Gray.

Clubwomen Plan First Jury Class At State Session

Georgia women will go to school again, this time to learn how to serve on a jury, under plans of Mrs. J. A. Rollison, president of the Affiliated Women's Democratic Clubs of Georgia.

At the fourth annual conference of Democratic women to convene in Savannah Wednesday through Friday, a state jury school for women will be held Thursday afternoon. It will be directed by United States District Attorney J. Saxton Daniel.

One of the chief objectives for several years of the affiliated Democratic Clubs has been the extension of jury service to women of Georgia, in charge of the legislative bill which proposes to allow women to serve on juries is Mrs. R. L. Turman. Mrs. H. B. Richie, of Athens, will speak at the opening session Wednesday night.

Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, and Miss Gay Shepperson, state WPA administrator, will address the delegates at a luncheon.

MILLEDGEVILLE OPENS NEW WOMAN'S MARKET

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Oct. 30. The newest of the state's woman's curb markets, opening here today, met with instant success, Mrs. Sam Whatley, manager, reported. Sales totaled $80 for the first day, she said.

(In Atlanta, Mrs. Robin Wood, director of the woman's division of the State Department of Agriculture, announced that four woman's curb markets have been opened in Georgia during the past month. These are located at Quitman, Cordele, Barnesville and Milledgeville).

Meanwhile, reports came from Thomson that a group of farm women of McDuffie and adjoining counties have organized the Thomson curb market under a cooperative plan by which homegrown farm products will be sold to the public. A committee, with Mrs. Ira Farmer as chairman, has been named to work out details for operation of the market, which is expected to be opened before Christmas.

JOHN H. MOYER RITES WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for John Henry Moyer, of 1776 Howell Mill road, veteran inspector of the Seaboard Air Line railroad, who died in Macon Friday from injuries received in an automobile accident last Tuesday, will be conducted at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon from the Underwood Methodist church.

The Rev. J. D. Swagerty will officate with burial following in Elliott cemetery.

En route to Macon to attend a Masonic grand lodge meeting, Mr. Moyer was with a party of Atlantans when the car in which they were riding was struck by a truck and overturned. Other occupants of the car were injured, but not critically. The accident occurred near Forsyth.

GEORGE W. BOND RITES WILL BE HELD TODAY

George W. Bond, 62, died yesterday at his residence in Hiawassee.

Surviving are his wife, and five daughters, Mrs. M. K. Shy, Mrs. E. H. Banister, Mrs. E. R. Braswell, Miss Lee Bond, all of Atlanta, and Miss Frances Bond, of Columbia, S. C.

Last rites will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes with the Rev. G. C. Light officiating. Burial will follow in West View cemetery.

Rites, Without Clergy, Set for Gun's Victim

ELLIJAY, Ga., Oct. 30.—The oft-expressed wish of J. Q. Jett, 45, will be granted this afternoon when, without benefit of clergy, he is buried in Ellijay cemetery.

Jett, known here as a former official in the Ku Klux Klan, was accidentally killed late today when his .22 rifle was discharged as he cleaned it after a hunting trip. The bullet struck him in the right lung and emerged over his heart.

He is survived by his wife and two children, Mary and Arthur Jett.

Dodge County Offers Another Bid for Constitution $7,500 Award Honor

One of the claims which Dodge county will file in its drive for the $3,500 first award in The Atlanta Constitution's $7,500 Progressive Government Awards will be construction of a doctors' building adjacent to the beautiful Coleman sanatorium in Eastman, shown above. The hospital is one of the best equipped and most modern of its size in the state, officials say. The nurses' home adjoins it.

DOCTORS' BUILDING OPENED IN EASTMAN

Achievement Will Be Listed in Drive for Constitution Award.

EASTMAN, Ga., Oct. 30.—A three-year program to establish a medical and surgical center in Eastman has culminated in completion of the Doctors' building adjoining Coleman sanatorium. Just opened to the public, the addition provides office suites and laboratories for several doctors and surgeons. It will be listed as one of Dodge county's accomplishments in The Atlanta Constitution's $7,500 Progressive Government Awards campaign.

Coleman sanatorium has a capacity for 50 patients, is approved by the American College of Surgeons, and is a member of the Georgia Hospital Association and the American Hospital Association. In capacity and in equipment, it ranks with the finest in the country in towns of comparable size.

New Departments.

The Doctors' building is the third unit to be added over a period of seven years. It has new X-ray and laboratory departments, including a basal metabolism and electrocardiograph machines.

Doctors occupying the new offices are: Dr. Warren A. Coleman, surgery; Dr. H. M. Tolleson, internal medicine; Dr. M. C. Harrell, dental surgery; Dr. George A. Andrews, eye, ear, nose and throat; Dr. F. B. Zimmerman, general medicine and surgery.

The equipment is modern and complete in every detail. The institution possesses its own moving picture camera and projection machine for filming special operations and treatments. These pictures are shown at the regular monthly staff meetings and medical society meetings.

Fireproof Building.

Construction of the entire building is as nearly fireproof as possible.

A large new operating room has been added, with tile floor and walls, the latest lighting system, and an observatory loge for visiting doctors and nurses from which they observe operations. This compares favorably with any in the south.

The nurses' home, also adjacent to the sanatorium, has been considerably enlarged, remodeled and refurnished.

The institution is situated in a beautiful residential section, with prettily landscaped grounds.

MERCER MAN HEADS BAPTIST STUDENTS

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Raymond Rigdon, of Mercer University, Macon, today was named president of the Georgia Baptist Student Union, which concludes its 17th annual convention at the First Baptist church here Sunday afternoon.

Rigdon succeeds D. D. Hammond, of Georgia Tech, who is presiding during the convention.

Other officers elected are O. M. Cates, of the University of Georgia, first vice president; Dorothy Gunn, Bessie Tift College, second vice president, and Charles Duncan, Piedmont College, and Marvin Jones, of Norman Junior College, third vice presidents. Alice Futrelle, of the Georgia Baptist hospital, was named secretary and treasurer; Hal Armstrong, Tech, correspondent, and Ben Scarborough, of Tech, pianist.

George Washingtonites Enter State Politics

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Savannah's several months' old George Washington party, its offer of national support in a presidential race refused by Henry Ford, turned today to state politics.

E. S. Fuller, founder of the party, announced he would be a candidate for governor in Georgia's next general election (1938).

In a 17-plank platform, Fuller said he plans to reduce taxes "at least by one-half" and abolish several things, including "all the useless offices in Georgia, and useless boards and tax-eating agencies. . . ."

South Georgia Methodists To Vote On Unification Issue This Week

Dublin Prepares To Greet Churchmen Thursday; Bishops W. N. Ainsworth and Arthur J. Moore Will Preside at Sessions.

DUBLIN, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Unification of the Southern Methodist church with northern branches will be voted on at the annual convention of the South Georgia Methodist conference here next week.

The conference, starting Tuesday, will elect eight ministers and eight laymen to attend the general conference next May in Birmingham.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth and his cabinet will meet Tuesday and Wednesday to consider appointment of pastors for next year. Four ministers will retire from active service during the conference. They are: Dr. Ed F. Cook, Macon; the Rev. Robert Kerr, of Richland; the Rev. W. H. Wilcox, of Broxton, and the Rev. W. C. Rahn, of Norman Park.

Much of the conference business will be cleared at meetings of 16 boards and committees in Dublin Wednesday.

The South Georgia Methodist Orphans' Home board will hold its annual meeting Tuesday night. The board will elect a new member to fill the vacancy created by death of W. D. Anderson Jr.

Bishop Arthur J. Moore, of Texas, will assist Bishop Ainsworth in the conference sessions. Bishop Ainsworth will go to Atlanta two weeks later to conduct the north Georgia conference.

Bishop Ainsworth's cabinet includes the Rev. A. W. Rees, Macon district; the Rev. J. M. Outler, Columbus; the Rev. B. A. Pafford, Dublin; the Rev. J. H. Wilson, Americus; the Rev. J. P. Dell, Savannah; the Rev. N. H. Williams, Thomasville; the Rev. H. T. Freeman, Valdosta, and the Rev. F. M. Gaines, Waycross.

POLICY COMMISSION VOTED AT DALTON

DALTON, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—The Georgia conference of the Methodist church, in annual session here, voted for establishment of a commission to consider matters of policy adjustment should the northern and southern branches of the Methodist church merge.

A proposal that the two church branches unite is scheduled for consideration at the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in Birmingham next May.

Two laymen and three clergymen will compose the Georgia commission.

Hundreds of Constitution Readers Vie to Name 'Off the Record' Trio

Creator Ed Reed and Aides Receive "Tons" of Suggestions From $400 Prize Seekers in Giving Identity to Laugh-Provoking Maternity Ward Snoopers.

Ed Reed, creator of "Off the Record" and his trio of impish and laugh-provoking maternity ward snoopers yesterday were literally buried alive as Constitution readers vied for the $400 cash, which will be distributed to those who settle the paternity of the famous nameless triplets.

Hundreds of suggested names for the stork riders have poured into the offices of The Constitution during the past week, and the mail grows steadily heavier as the November 6 deadline approaches for receipt of entries in the novel contest.

Reed's aides announced yesterday, however, that there is plenty of room for all the suggestions which will be filed, and urged Constitution readers to keep up their good work.

Frown Over Suggestions.

The two boys involved in the cartoons yesterday frowned over some of the suggested names. They resent being labeled the two imps, but coquetting and preening the little "miss" of the group smiled pleasingly as she appraised the long list of flattering cognomens offered in her behalf.

At any rate they are having whole barrels of fun and Constitution readers are responding spontaneously to the game. Many thousands of names will be offered; many hundreds already have been received. Constitution readers are determined that the triplets shall have fitting names and they are co-operating with Reed and his associates to provide them.

The gamut of modern and ancient history, science, music, stage, screen, song hits, folklore, mother goose rhymes, popular everyday idols, radio characters, comic strips and every other imaginable source is being run in this, one of the most searching inquiries ever instituted for a name.

So what's in a name?

There is $400 cash in this one. The money will be distributed as follows:

First prize, $100; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25; 50 prizes, $2 each, and 50 prizes $1 each.

Reed Wants Help.

This trio is Reed's babies, all right, but he wants help in naming them. Readers of The Constitution have seen them in their smart antics; they have read their whimsical and pungent chatter; they have absorbed the simple but sound philosophy of the group.

Reed wants a fitting name for each of them and he must have the winning titles postmarked not later than November 6—that's next Saturday.

Winners will be announced December 15. Incidentally, Reed wants each person submitting names to write not more than 25 words telling why they like his "Off the Record," and that, too, is a part of the contest. Above all, however, comes the naming. Everything else is incidental.

Edward and Wally, President Roosevelt and his family, prizering personages, Hitler, Mussolini, and other world-known individuals are suggested in the long list which Reed brought up late last night as he emerged from the deluge of suggestions under which he was buried.

Names and Names.

Others of those which have come follow:

Pete, Ann, Repete; Ninny, Noddy, Noodle; De, De-De, Re; Joe, Bo, Flo; Franklin, Deleanor Eleanor; Edd Connie (from Constitution), Reed; Lillie, Billie, Willie; Pinky (for the girl), Kinky, Stinky; Bobo, Bonan, Botip; Tuffy, Ruffy, Fluffy; Uggy, Wuggy, Wu; Max, Climax, Judy; Hinky, Dinky, Pinky; Sheba, Napoleon, Caesar; Tschaikowsky, Chopin, Mozart; Dempsey, Braddock, Wally; Bo, Zo, Flo; Toy, Coy, Joy; Ashley, Rhett, Scarlett; Flip, Flo, Felix; Nip, Ann, Tuck; Flip, Flo, Flapper; Windy, Wanda, Wales; Wootsy, Tootsy, Bootsy; Tiddle, De, Winks; Tit, Tat, Too; Reedy, Aimy, Farr (the quick-trigger triplets); Winken, Blinken, Nod; Reed's Runts; Ed, Red, Reed; Yonah, Wahah, Bald (for well-known mountains); Adel, Odel, Ball; secretary, cashier, treasurer; Merry, Fun, Joy; Zeke, Zack, Zephyr; Solomon, Samson, Salome; Duffie, Tuffie, Lovie; Snoopy Noopy, Goopy; Plug, Tug, Mug.

Any reader of The Constitution, who is not connected with the official family is eligible to try for that $100 first award or any other prize in the list. Mail the entries early.

PHYSICIAN IS CHARGED WITH COUNTERFEITING

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—United States Commissioner C. J. Skinner Jr. reported the arrest today of Dr. Wade R. Bedingfield on a warrant charging participation in a counterfeit money scheme.

Skinner said the prominent physician and surgeon was charged with giving counterfeit money to one of four local residents previously arrested. The commissioner said the four were charged with passing bogus $20 bills and one of them signed an affidavit leading to the charges against Bedingfield.

Federal agents were continuing their investigation today and details were not divulged.

Skinner said Bedingfield waived examination when arraigned today, and posted $5,000 bond.

WELFARE SESSIONS PLANNED IN ATHENS

Varied Topics Will Be Discussed at Institutes Nov. 9-13 and 16-20.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Current problems of public welfare will be discussed at two institutes sponsored by the University of Georgia here next month.

The first will be held from November 9-13 and the second from November 16-20.

Members of women's civic organizations have been asked to attend the sessions, which will include discussions of living standards, taxation, social security, home economics and health.

Dr. J. Walter Coutu, associate professor of sociology, will deliver the first address of each conference and lead round-table discussions on a "Survey of Social and Economic Problems in Georgia."

W. H. Hicks, state legislator, of Monticello, will speak on taxation, and Miss Erna Proctor, home economist of the Farm Security Administration, Montgomery, Ala., will lecture.

The State Department of Public Welfare will present a program the afternoons of November 12 and 19, including speeches by Lamar Murdaugh, director; Miss Louisa Fitzsimons, director of the bureau of public assistance, and Frances Steele, director of the bureau of child welfare.

3 GEORGIA 4-H GIRLS WIN CHICAGO TRIPS

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Three Georgia girls were named winners today of state-wide 4-H Club contests to receive free trips to the National 4-H Club Congress November 26 to December 4 at Chicago.

The winners, announced by Miss Emmie Nelson, assistant state 4-H Club leader, are: Miss Nellie Emma Patterson, 15, of Fulton county, who won her trip for general excellence in club work; Miss Miriam Camp, 16, of Coweta county, food preparation contest winner, and Miss Ora Kate Rodgers, 16, of Muscogee county, who took first in a canning achievement contest.

BUTLER IS RE-ELECTED MAYOR OF ACWORTH

ACWORTH, Ga., Oct. 30.—Mayor Carl C. Butler today was re-elected for his sixth consecutive term. Unopposed, he received a unanimous 157-vote indorsement.

Aldermen elected were F. C. Mills, incumbent, 147 votes; W. L. Evans, incumbent, 142; Orlando Awtrey Jr., incumbent, 114; D. H. Collins, incumbent, 108, and R. E. Bailey, 147.

O. D. Kemp and W. W. Goodwin, losing aldermanic candidates, received 68 and 54 votes, respectively.

Mr. Jones has been president of the Tallapoosa Lions Club since its organization two years ago.

SIDNEY CAMP URGED TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

NEWNAN, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Petitions circulated here today urged Sidney Camp, assistant United States attorney for the northern district of Georgia, to seek the nomination for congressman from the fourth district next year.

FILM OPERATOR DIES OF INJURIES IN BLAST

MACON, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Homer Hall, young Fort Valley motion picture operator, died in a hospital here today of burns received last night in a fire and explosion in a projection room in a Fort Valley theater.

Bryant Williams, manager of the theater, who went to the rescue of Hall, is in serious condition.

NURSES WILL OPEN ANNUAL SESSIONS IN ROME THIS WEEK

National Leaders Slated To Speak During 4-Day Convention.

Rome, Ga., Oct. 30.—For Georgia nurses, all roads this week will lead to Rome, where the 31st annual convention of the Georgia State Nurses' Association will open Wednesday and continue through Saturday.

Uniting in convention with the association will be the Georgia League of Nursing Education, the State Organization for Public Health Nursing, the state committee of the American Red Cross Nursing Service and the Private Duty Section.

Featuring the sessions will be addresses by Mrs. Alma Scott, New York city, director of the American Nurses' Association; Miss Ida F. Burler, Washington, director of the American Red Cross Nursing Service, and Miss Claribel Wheeler, New York city, executive secretary of the National League of Nursing Education.

Another major figure on the convention program will be Dr. Lombard Kelly, dean of the School of Medicine of the University of Georgia at Augusta, who will discuss the proposed plan for a public health school at the medical college.

SURPLUS TAX HELD HINDRANCE TO JOBS

Manufacturers' Poll Declares Profit Levy Halts Plant Expansions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers declared today a poll of a representative cross-section of manufacturing in the United States by the association indicated employment in the manufacturing companies "is being seriously affected by the surplus profits tax."

In their replies to a questionnaire, the association said, one-quarter of the manufacturers "stated definitely that if the tax was lifted and they were thus allowed to devote taxes to plant expansions and purchase of new machinery, they were positive more employment would be required."

Another quarter indicated that if the tax was lifted their demands in the labor market would probably increase, the association stated.

The association in a summary of the 405 replies to the questionnaire stated that "18.5 per cent were handicapped by the tax on earnings used to pay off debts; 4.7 per cent were handicapped by contracts and state laws which prevented the distribution of earnings in the form of dividends; 68.7 per cent stated they were paying out uneconomically large dividends; 25.4 per cent stated definitely they would employ more men if exemptions were allowed for plant expansion; 26.4 per cent stated they probably would do the same if such capital expenditures was exempt from taxation."

MRS. ANNA ELGIN, 89, IS BURIED IN INDIANA

Final rites for Mrs. Anna Garett Elgin, 89, of 131 Forest avenue, a resident of Atlanta for more than 35 years, were held in New Albany, Ind., yesterday, where the body was sent Friday.

She was the mother of the late W. C. Elgin, general agent for the Union Pacific railroad here for many years, and also of the late J. C. Elgin, general agent for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad here for many years.

Presides Over Nurses

WOMEN DEMOCRATS TO MEET THIS WEEK

George Listed Among Speakers at Sessions in Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 30.—Study of the policies and principles of the Democratic party, and presentation of the program of the women's division of the Democratic national committee will feature the fourth annual convention of the Georgia Affiliated Democratic Women's Clubs, to be held here Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Among speakers during the convention will be Senator Walter F. George, Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia WPA administrator; Mrs. A. B. Conger, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Emily Woodward, author and journalist, and Jere Moore, president of the Georgia Press Association.

Among features of the convention period will be a jury school for women, to be conducted under the direction of Judge J. Saxton Daniel, of Savannah. The school will be patterned after one recently held in New York city.

The program also will include reporter plan discussions, educational and legislative sessions, a young citizens' contest for high school students, a Democratic digest and press breakfast, a county leaders' luncheon and annual banquet.

Mrs. J. A. Rollison, president, announces the executive board will meet at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and registration will begin Thursday morning.

MRS. N. K. MORRIS' LAST RITES TODAY

Kentucky Native To Be Buried in West View.

Last rites for Mrs. N. K. Morris, 44, of 2260 Peachtree road, wife of N. K. Morris, southeastern representative of Rice O'Neal Shoe Company, of St. Lous, who died Friday at the residence, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill. The Rev. Ralph Richard will officiate and burial will follow in West View cemetery.

A native of Arlington, Ohio, Mrs. Morris was a member of a Kentucky family and was active in religious and social circles in that state before moving to Atlanta eight years ago. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Paducah for 23 years.

Lifted Lorgnettes Is Society Reply To 'What About the Windsors?'

"Upper Stratum" a Little Put Out With Duke for Abdicating, But Is Not Willing To Be Quoted; Former Monarch Plans Philanthropic Foundation.

By DALE HARRISON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Your correspondent made inquiry today in certain super-colossal, ultra-uppity social circles to learn what society is going to do about the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, come Michaelmas and thereabouts.

For answer he got a load of lifted lorgnettes and a flock of "I-beg-your-pardons."

Society, Grade A, although not what it was in the good old carriage days, is none the less conscious that the world is waiting for a sign from it. Society recalls with a catch in its throat those historic words of the dying Charles II—"Take good care of Little Nell"—and stands ready to do as much for the Duke.

A Little Put-out.

Off the record, however, it is a little put-out with the Duke for abdicating, for an axiom of society is: When you get up there, stay up there or quit ringing my doorbell.

Neither the Duke nor society is willing to be quoted.

The issue is obviously too tender. A single faux pas, and the repercussions would be deafening. It wouldn't make much difference with the price of wheat, but it could easily upset an entire season's schedule of afternoon teas.

"Cease Quiverings."

Perhaps the Duke and Duchess themselves, rather than New York society, will answer the social question by steering their paths on a wide detour. Nancy Randolph, who writes of society for the New York Daily News, advises society to cease quivering and adds:

"Former playmates of the Duke in New York and other cities are not apt to be called upon to jeopardize their prized social prestige in London—where his royal highness and her grace are pariah—by playing host. There is reason to believe the Duke will avoid any contacts . . . which might cast doubt on the seriousness of his visit to America."

DUKE IS CONSIDERING PHILANTHROPIC FOUNDATIO

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—An organizer of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor's American tour said tonight the former British monarch is considering the formation of a new international philanthropic foundation to study and improve working and living conditions in industrial areas of the world.

George Link Jr., who has been making plans here for the tour as attorney for Charles E. Bedaux, close American friend of the Windsors, said the proposed foundation "has been a thought" behind both the German and American investigations undertaken by the couple.

A copyrighted article appearing in tomorrow's New York Journal and American, stated the Duke was definitely committed to the plan for a foundation and would be a leading financial contributor.

EXHIBITS PREPARED, CITY IN GALA DRESS FOR SIX-DAY EVENT

Every Community in Terrell County To Join in Displaying Products.

DAWSON, Ga., Oct. 30.—King Peanut will reign supreme in Dawson next week.

The gates will be thrown open Monday for the third annual Southeastern Peanut Festival—a week to be filled with educational attractions and entertainment. The event will continue through Saturday.

Peanuts and peanut products will be given major prominence during the festival week, not only in the displays but in the decorative motif to be used by business houses for the event. A prize has been announced by the Southeastern Peanut Festival Assocation for the best decorated window, and virtually every Dawson business house will co-operate by featuring the products which has given this city claim to being the "World's Largest Spanish Peanut Market."

Community Exhibits.

Innumerable exhibits have been arranged for the festival, with every community in Terrell county being represented. Reports indicate considerable effort is being expended to insure the success of the community exhibits, and many novel ideas are expected to materialize in the friendly rivalry for honors.

Noteworthy among the out-of-the-city exhibits will be a 40-foot display arranged by the Soil Conservation Service, which was shown last week at fairs in Columbus and Macon, and which has stirred widespread comment. The Farm Security Administration will present the exhibit it recently showed at the Southeastern Fair in Atlanta, and the Coastal Plains Experiment Station at Tifton has arranged a display of peanut varieties.

Other Peanut Exhibits.

Various processing and food products companies also have arranged peanut exhibits, and cotton and cottonseed products also will play a prominent part in the displays.

A special tent will be provided for negro exhibits, and widespread interest is being manifested on the part of negro farmers, who play an important role in southwest Georgia agriculture.

The program for the festival week has been announced as follows: Monday, American Legion and Auxiliary day; Tuesday, school children's day; Wednesday, southwest Georgia day; Thursday, Lions' Club day; Friday, Kiwanis day, and Saturday, colored people's day. Every day will be farmers' day.

One of the largest carnival companies operating in the state this season will furnish midway attractions.

Belt Snap Halts Five-Story Plunge Of Pane Washer

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(UP)—Dnytro Wasus, 200-pound window washer, snapped one end of his safety belt to a casement hook five stories above the pavement today, turned to fasten the other end, lost his balance and fell.

He plunged the length of his belt and was stopped short with a tremendous jolt. The casement hook began to bend. He tried to reach the window ledge with his hands, but the movement made the hook bend still further. He screamed in terror.

Machines in a nearby loft prevented his voice from carrying to the workers who could have pulled him to safety. The hook gradually sagged toward the point where the snap would slip off.

Crowds gathered on the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street below. Police turned in a fire alarm, and a ladder truck responded.

Two firemen raced up the ladder and pushed Wasus to the ledge where other firemen pulled him to safety.

MRS. GREENFIELD LAID TO LAST REST

Services Are Held in Church at Fayetteville.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jewel Faver Greenfield, widow of J. C. Greenfield, Atlanta Masonic leader for many years, who died Thursday at the home of a niece and nephew in Fayetteville, were held yesterday afternoon at the Fayetteville Baptist church with Dr. Louie D. Newton officiating. Burial was in Fayetteville cemetery.

Mrs. Greenfield attended the old Monroe Female College, now Bessie Tift College, at Forsyth. Following her graduation, she married J. C. Greenfield, for whom J. C. Greenfield lodge in Atlanta is named.

She was a member of the First Baptist church and later a member of the Druid Hills Baptist church. She had served for many years as president of the Baptist Missionary Society. Since the death of her husband, she had made her home with her niece, Miss Ethel Eastin, and her nephew, Samuel Eastin, in Fayetteville.

RADIO SALESMAN KILLED.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Norman S. Burrows, 35-year-old radio salesman, was killed tonight when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into a tree after overturning three times.

LINCOLN ZEPHYRS MAKE 1938 DEBUT WITH DEALERS HERE

Half Dozen New Body Types on Exhibit in Atlanta Showrooms.

Included in the array of new Lincoln-Zephyrs which went on display in local showrooms yesterday were two convertibles—a sedan and a coupe.

Half-a-dozen new body types, which dealers contend are the answer to the most exacting buyers, are included in the list available in a wide range of new baked enamel finishes.

Added body length and touch control with unusually sensitive brakes, designed to stop at minimum pressure, are among the features of the new 1938 models.

Smooth Power Flow.

A 110-horsepower motor, a 12-cylinder V-type, operates more quietly, provides a smoother flow of power and gives maximum economy, sponsors claim.

From front to rear bumpers, the styling of the new cars is modern and well-groomed and is the result of painstaking research by Ford and Lincoln engineers. It also is based on the experience of the first 45,000 Lincoln-Zephyr owners.

A harmonious blend of balance and tailoring provides one of the most highly streamlined designs in the medium priced field.

Additional Room.

Added room for both front and back seat riders has been provided in the new models. The engine has been moved further front to give the added space for the front seat, and a new off-center drive rear axle is used for the same purpose for the rear seats.

Every modern appointment is available, including heating systems, radios and electric clocks. Gear clashing during shifting has been made virtually impossible through use of a new device which prevents engagement until the gears are completely synchronized.

The cable-controlled braking system is hailed as one of the major improvements in the new models.

There is style and years of satisfaction in every one of the new machines, according to releases by manufacturers.

NEW PAROLE PLAN ASKED BY RIVERS

Governor Calls Conference of Judges, Solicitors; Cost Described.

Judges and solicitors of Georgia superior and city courts will come here next week to assist in formulating a new system of parole and probation for law offenders.

Summoning the officers yesterday after a conference with the State Prison Commission and representatives of the Federal Prison Bureau, Governor Rivers said the present parole and probation methods "are considered obsolete."

"We have really no practical, workable system compared with modern needs," he declared.

The judges and solicitors, he explained, will be asked to recommend a system which can be instituted by the general assembly at its special session next month. The officials will meet here next Thursday.

One of the primary considerations in the move, the Governor held, is a reduction in prison operating costs.

"At least 70 per cent of our prisoners," he said, "are first offenders. The chances are we could reduce the prison population by half with a parole and probation system giving adequate supervision of convicted persons outside prisons.

"The prison population now is about 8,000. The cost runs about $365 a year per prisoner. Supervision of prisoners under parole and probation costs not more than $40 a month per prisoner in states having modern systems."

The step is one of several prison changes Rivers said he desires "to give us a modern prison system."

IMPORTS, EXPORTS IN AREA INCREASE

Outgoing Products Exceed Shipments to U. S.

Both imports and exports in the Georgia customs district were greater the first seven months of this year than last, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce reported yesterday.

Exports through July were $13,526,400 compared to $11,396,356 for the same period of 1936, with July this year being $2,071,541, or approximately $70,000 less than July, 1936.

Imports for consumption ran $11,069,082 this year against $9,192,862 through July last year. Imports for the month of July were $1,328,103, an increase of approximately $250,000 over the corresponding month of 1936.

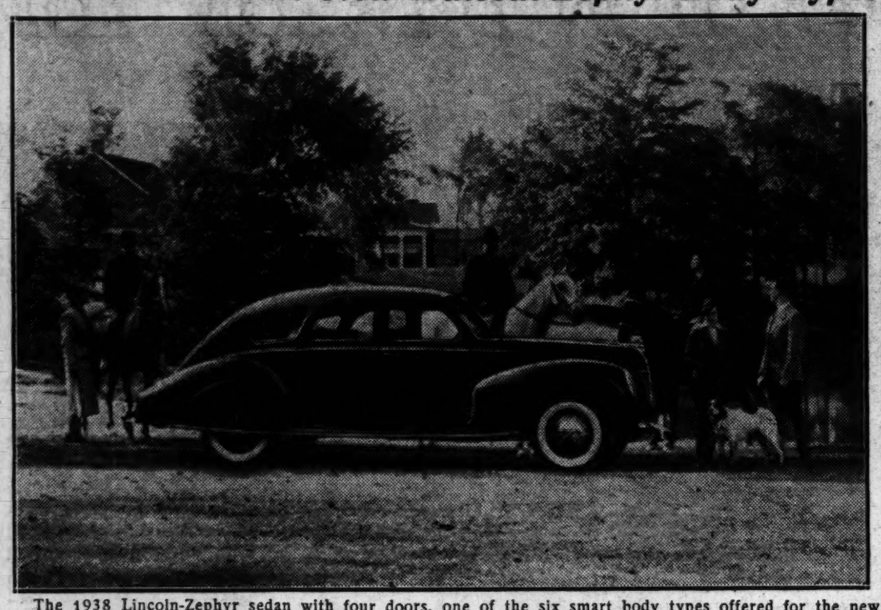

The leading group of imports was "vegetable food products and beverages," at $766,575 for July, 1937.

CLOUDY AND COOLER IS FORECAST TODAY

Partly cloudy skies and cooler temperatures are expected for Atlanta today following a high reading of 81 degrees yesterday, the weather bureau predicted.

"The mercury will range between 54 and 64 degrees today and skies will be partly cloudy," the weatherman said. The low reading yesterday at Candler field was 51 degrees. Generally fair weather was reported in all parts of the country yesterday.

One of Six Smart New Lincoln-Zephyr Body Types

FEDERAL HOUSING GROUP MEETS HERE

Seven States To Be Represented at Conference With National Chief.

A three-day conference of southeastern directors and chief underwriters of the Federal Housing Administration will open in Atlanta tomorrow, W. A. Sirmon, state director, announced yesterday.

Stewart McDonald, administrator of the housing administration, and other officials from Washington will be among approximately 40 delegates who will attend the conference. The assembly will include representatives from Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee.

Review All Rules.

The purpose of the conference is to review all rules, regulations and procedure in the application of all titles of the national housing act by the housing administration, Sirmon said.

Charles C. McGehee, deputy administrator, will give a luncheon tomorrow in honor of Administrator McDonald at the Capital City Club. A banquet in honor of the housing experts given by the Chamber of Commerce will follow at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at the same club, C. F. Palmer, chairman of the housing and town planning committee of the Chamber of Commerce, announced.

Dr. Fisher To Speak.

Dr. Ernest M. Fisher, well-known authority on low-cost housing, will be principal speaker at the banquet tomorrow night. Speaking on "The Challenge of Housing to American Industry," he will explain the provisions of the housing administration, emphasizing the place for American industry in the housing program.

Among the officials from Washington who will attend the meeting are W. D. Flanders, Miles L. Colean, Charles C. McGehee, J. P. Yoder, Frederick M. Babcock, Burton C. Bovard, Bruce A. Wilson, C. Wylie Allen, Fred L. Chapman and A. L. Johnson.

RECORD ELECTRICITY USE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The Federal Power Commission reported today that production of electricity for public use in the United States reached an all-time high of 118,809,000,000 kilowatt-hours in the 12-month period ending September 30.

NEWSPRINT COSTS MAY FORCE RAISE IN CIRCULATION RATE

Price Increases Have Brought Higher Prices in 50 American Cities.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Many newspapers may be forced to raise circulation rates because of fast rising newsprint costs and other publishing expenses, W. G. Chandler, chairman of the newsprint committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, predicted yesterday.

Chandler has asked publishers to protest to newsprint manufacturers the threatened price increases for 1938. Even at the $49 average price for 1938, announced by the Great Northern Paper Company, publishers will be obliged to pay $25,000,000 more for paper than they did in 1937, he said.

50 Rate Increases.

Newspapers in more than 50 American cities have been forced to raise their rates recently because of increased costs, he said.

"Most publishers," Chandler said, "believe that their readers prefer the newspaper of today, which gives the greatest amount of informational, educational and entertainment value in the history of newspaper publishing."

In an effort to make outgoing dollars match incoming revenue, he said, many publishers are faced with the problem of cutting down the amount of newspaper given the reader, or advancing the retail sales price.

The reports generally have indicated that circulation has not been greatly affected by increases.

Increases Exceed Receipts.

Costs of newspaper publication, according to statistics tabulated, have been advancing recently far out of proportion to increased receipts from advertising and circulation.

Pay rolls, it was stated, have jumped ahead of even the 1929 level, both through wage increase to editorial, clerical and mechanical employes, and from additional employes taken on, while receipts generally are still well below the 1929 total.

Every commodity going into manufacturing a newspaper, with one or two minor exceptions, has advanced in price over the previous year, according to A. N. P. A. statistics. Publishers are paying more for metal, fuel, services, newsprint, and all the numerous requisites to producing a well-printed, interesting newspaper, promptly delivered to a wide coverage.

Payroll Increases.

In one instance, on one group of newspapers, pay rolls in nine months this year have increased nine per cent, according to statistics reported, over the already sharp increases of 1936. Taxes, especially for social security, are cutting into receipts, the reports indicate.

The largest item of cost in producing a newspaper, next to pay rolls, is newsprint paper, Chandler explained. Newspapers have not only been paying an increased price on this product this year, except a few having long term contracts at lower than current rates, but in 1938 they will generally face an even greater advance, up to 17 per cent in most cases, he said.

White Paper Costs.

At one time most big city newspapers sold for one cent a copy. That was when most big city newspapers contained six, eight and 10 pages. At two, and, in many cases three cents, he said, the sum paid by the reader does not reimburse the publication for white paper in 20, 30 and 40-page newspapers, not considering the news - gathering, manufacturing and distribution costs.

For this reason newspapers in many cities recently have had to increase circulation rates, in some cases up to five cents a copy, and in more cases increase subscription rates.

Among the more than 50 cities where rates have been recently increased are San Francisco, Houston, Fort Worth, Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Milwaukee, Hartford, Conn., Seattle, Portland, Ore., San Diego, Oakland, Boston, Sacramento, Philadelphia, Camden, N. J., Harrisburg, Pa., and San Antonio.

The reports generally have indicated that circulation has not been greatly affected by the increases.

Newspaper Leader Sees Tech-Vandy Game

Slash Pine Growth as Major Crop Foreseen by Newspaper Executive

James Stahlman, of Nashville, President of American Newspaper Publishers' Association, Says Newsprint Manufacture Would Keep Money in South.

The growing of slash pine for newsprint manufacture could easily become a major industry in the south, James Stahlman, of Nashville, youthful and vigorous president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, declared on a visit to Atlanta yesterday. Mr. Stahlman is publisher of the Nashville Banner.

"The cotton crop has been curtailed and I see no reason why the land which formerly produced the staple should not be turned over to slash pine," Mr. Stahlman said. "Dr. Charles H. Herty has proven that slash pine can produce newsprint in commercial quantities and with these pines growing up in from five to seven years they ought to make one of our section's most profitable crops."

Canadian Costs.

The A. N. P. A. chief pointed out that Canadian newsprint manufacturers have only recently ordered increases in the price of their product of from $5 to $7.50 a ton which plus high freight rates makes the use of it almost prohibitive in southern areas.

"Paper is now selling for more than $40 a ton," he pointed out. "When these increases go into effect it will advance the price to $50 or thereabouts, not to mention the freight. If production is upped in the south we will at least supply ourselves and keep in the south the millions of dollars annually which now go to New England and to Canada."

The Nashville publisher was particularly enthusiastic about the prospects of getting newsprint from Georgia.

Capital Necessary.

"You have fine pine in south Georgia and Dr. Herty has proven himself a genius in his experimental work," he said. "As soon as the necessary capital begins to flow into Georgia mills you are going to see an influx into Georgia greater even than the textile industry displayed a few years ago."

Stahlman stressed the fact that the growing of slash pine does not need the care given cotton and other products.

"All you have to do is set out the pines and protect them from fire," he said. "In from five to seven years the crop produces itself."

He said that he felt that within a few years Georgia pine would become an important crop, ranking with peaches, watermelons and peanuts.

Export Cotton Land.

"You know we have only our domestic market for cotton now," he said. "The land that used to go for export cotton ought to be laid out in slash pines."

Stahlman is a former president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association and also served as chairman of that group's newsprint committee. In this latter capacity he is given much of the credit for the support given Dr. Herty in his experiments. Some observers place the Nashville man second to Dr. Herty in rating the success of the program.

The A. N. P. A. president came to Atlanta with Fitzgerald Hall, president of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway, to see the Vanderbilt-Tech game. They entrained for Nashville immediately after the contest.

20th Anniversary of Consecration Marked by Bishop Mikell Tomorrow

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Bishop H. J. Mikell, one of the most beloved figures in southern Episcopal circles, will mark the 20th anniversary of his consecration as the bishop of the diocese of Atlanta tomorrow, All Saints Day.

As part of the special services planned, the bishop will preach this morning at the Procathedral of St. Philip with "The Church" as his subject. At 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning actual observance of the anniversary will take place at All Saints church, where the bishop will celebrate holy communion.

Recalls Work.

Recalling his services and his work during the past 20 years, Bishop Mikell said yesterday:

"On November 1, All Saints' Day, I celebrate the 20th anniversary of my consecration as bishop of Atlanta. Early in the year 1917, Bishop Nelson, who had served the church so faithfully and valiantly, and who was so greatly loved, died. In June of that year I was elected to succeed him. My consecration took place in the old Cathedral of St. Philip. Bishop Gailor, of Tennessee, who had taught me when I was a student at Sewanee, and under whom I had served for nine years as rector of Christ church in Nashville was the chief consecrator, assisted by Bishop Weed, of Florida, and Bishop Gray, of southern Florida.

"The bishops taking part in those services, and the clergy of the diocese who have passed on, will be in my thoughts at the altar with deep gratitude on All Saints' Day. Some who were active in the church in 1917 are still with us here to take up the work of those who have gone and others who have enlisted. To these, too, for their loyal interest and service I am profoundly grateful."

"Rich in Traditions."

"So the diocese," continued the bishop, "is not only rich in traditions and memories of the past, but, I trust, rich with promise and hope for the future. We have an active and faithful clergy, many devoted and able church leaders, both men and women, and a loyal membership which has grown from 6,764 in 1917 to 11,444 today."

Bishop Mikell recently returned from the general convention in Cincinnati where he took an active part in the work of the church as a member of the house of bishops.

In discussing the proposed bill presented at the convention advocating the church or the state compelling physical examinations before marriage, the bishop said that he favored the state and not the church establishing such ruling.

It would be a great thing for the church should the Episcopal church join with the Presbyterian churches in the United States to achieve organic union, said the bishop.

Born in Sumter.

He was born in Sumter, S. C., in August, 1873, and received his education at the University of the South. He married the former Miss Henrietta Campbell Bryan, of Charleston, S. C., in 1905. He was awarded a B. A. and an M. A. degree by the University of the South and doctor of divinity degree by the University of Nashville in 1910 and by the University of the South in 1918, and an LL. D. in 1928 by Oglethorpe University.

Bishop Mikell became a deacon in 1898 and a priest in 1899. After serving as rector of the Charleston (S. C.) Church of the Holy Communion from 1899 to 1908 and as rector of Christ church, Nashville, from 1908 to 1917, he was appointed bishop of Atlanta in 1917.

The current issue of the Diocesan Record is dedicated to Bishop Mikell's twentieth anniversary. The Rev. H. Field Saumenig, rector of St. Peter's church, in Rome, says:

"The summary of Bishop Mikell's 20 years in the Episcopate may be truthfully expressed in the statement: 'To the best of his ability and by the Grace of God, he has faithfully kept and performed the vows he made when he was consecrated to be bishop in the Church of God.'"

CRASH KILLS HOGS.

DRY BRANCH, Ga., Oct. 30.—When a truck loaded with 96 hogs, en route from Atlanta to Swainsboro, overturned here in the front yard of Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Williams, eight of the porkers were killed and three escaped. The others were rounded up and continued to their destination.

TECHWOOD TO HAVE UNCLE REMUS ART

Five Murals Depicting Joel Chandler Harris Characters Painted for Project.

Children at Techwood will get an added thrill from Uncle Remus stories in the future, for five murals of Uncle Remus characters are to be placed in the general assembly room of Techwood Homes, Dr. M. L. Brittain, chairman of the advisory committee, announced.

The murals were painted by Earl J. Neff, of Cleveland, Ohio, who was commissioned directly by the procurement division of the Treasury Department in Washington. Prior to their installation the murals will be on public exhibitoin at the High Museum of Art during the first two weeks in November.

Before painting the characters, Neff visited Atlanta, inspected the project and conferred with various members of the Joel Chandler Harris family. Starting with the first edition of "Songs and Sayings of Uncle Remus," he conducted an exhaustive research into all the characterizations of the well-known figures.

Neff also visited the Wren's Nest and discussed the paintings with Dr. Thomas H. English, of Emory University, who has an extensive collection of manuscripts and items that have to do with Harris.

An incident in the lives of the animal characters is indicated on the bottom of each of the paintings.

An oil painting of Don Quixote anointing Sancho Pancha, painted by Daniel Boza, also has been made available for the Techwood project. A granite fawn, given by the same department, will be placed in the shelter for children at the main playground.

Adventures of Don Quixote, Brer Rabbit for Techwood

A painting of Don Quixote anointing his faithful servant, Sancho Panzo, before the Battle of the Windmills, is one of six new murals to be placed in Techwood Homes by the United States Treasury Department. The painting, which is 9 by 12 feet, was done by Daniel Boza. Five other Uncle Remus murals will be placed in the Techwood project.

Puzzled Pets Lose Freedom In Rabies Scare

Canine pets of children in the Beecher street neighborhood barked and howled from "the other side of the fence" last night as little master and mistress looked longingly at their animal playmates.

The painful separation is the result of one pet running amuck, biting five children and a negro man, and unknown numbers of his animal friends.

Examination revealed the dog had rabies, and a hunt was launched by city health officers and county and city police to find the unidentified negro man to warn him dangers facing him unless he had treatment for rabies.

Five children bitten Friday have already begun the treatment. They are Jerry McClaren, 4, of 1454 Beecher street, owner of the dog: Joe Lindsey, 9, of 1474 Beecher street; Ed Lindsey, 10, of the same address; Bill Scott, of 1358 Beecher, and Jean Harris, 5, of 1500 Beecher street. Johnnie Brantley, 7, another member of the neighborhood gang, successfully warded off an attack with a stick.

Health officers have ordered the pets in the neighborhood quarantined for six weeks. Negroes living in the Cascade and Beecher street area have been asked to spread word among their people the dog was mad in an effort to get word to the man who was bitten.

Several weeks ago, G. F. Jones, custodian of the Connally schools, bought a pet toy collie for his grandson, Jerry McClaren. The pet, named "Fluffy," was playing with Jerry and Johnnie Brantley in Johnnie's backyard when he suddenly attacked Jerry. Johnnie fought him off. The dog ran through the neighborhood biting the others.

Jones killed the dog and had the head examined by the state department of health. It was found the dog had rabies.

PLANE STRIKES TREE; 2 OCCUPANTS ESCAPE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 30.—(AP) The pilot and a passenger in a privately owned airplane escaped serious injury today when the ship struck a tree and crashed into a field near Cuba, Tenn.

James Haun, 26, the pilot, and B. J. Burgess, 36, both of Memphis, received medical aid for cuts, bruises and sprains at a hospital here. Haun said a wing struck a tree as he attempted to gain altitude.

ARMY ORDERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Army orders today included:

Major Richard B. Gayle, infantry, Fort Benning, Ga., to Savannah, Ga.

This mural of Brer Rabbit, of the famous Uncle Remus Tar-Baby story, will be placed in the general assembly room of Techwood Homes along with four other Uncle Remus paintings. The murals were painted by Earl J. Neff, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Girls' High Times Adjudged Best Scholastic Newspaper in the South

That Atlanta girls make good journalists was evidenced last night in the award of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association silver cup to the Girls' High Times for the best Class A scholastic newspaper in the south.

Announcement of the award was made at the 13th annual Southern Interscholastic Press Association convention at Washington and Lee University, and was met with a great deal of excitement and enthusiasm by the Girls' High Times staff members.

Learning of their victory the girls said last night that they were spurred on to new efforts.

"Only a Start."

"This only gives us a start to put out a real newspaper," was the enthusiastic comment of pretty Sara Jane Morgan, literary editor of the paper. "Don't tell me women aren't good newspapermen," she boasted.

"One of the chief advantages a school paper has over a metropolitan daily is—we don't have to walk far for our news," said Jeanne Osborne, associate editor. "Just around the campus."

On hand in Lexington to receive the trophy for the school were Miss Rosalyn Bradshaw, editor of the paper, and Miss Catherine Parker, faculty advisor. The S. N. P. A. cup, together with awards for other prize winners, was presented at the final banquet climaxing the two-day gathering of southern scholastic journalists. The presentations were made by O. W. Reigel, director of the Lee school of journalism at Washington and Lee.

Staff Members.

The four-page paper is published every two weeks by a staff of high school girls. Other members of the staff are Miss Gertrude Cohen, sports editor; Miss Anne Fitzgerald, news editor; Miss Anne Chambless, feature editor; Miss Edna Davis, business manager, and Miss Helen Shucraft, advertising manager.

The newspaper awards and ratings were made on a point system and were based on general appearance, makeup, news content, editorial effectiveness, value as an advertising medium, and other considerations, in comparison with other papers in the same classification. Schools with enrollments of 1,201 or more are rated in Class A; of 801 to 1,200 in Class B; of 301 to 800 in Class C, and of 300 or less in Class D. Judging was directed by Reigel and Richard P. Carter, of the journalism faculty.

SOUTHERN SHIPPING TIED BY DEADLOCK

Agent of 5 Coastal Lines Says No Cargoes Will Be Accepted.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 30. (UP)—Coastwise shipping from Wilmington, N. C., to Tampa, Fla., halted tonight following a collapse of contract negotiations between the steamship lines and the International Longshoremen's Association.

V. E. Townsend, southern ILA representative, announced the negotiations had failed.

G. W. Bartlett, representing five coastwise shipping companies, confirmed the halt in negotiations during a strike truce, and said that "no coastwise shippers will schedule any further movements of cargo."

"No further negotiations are planned," Bartlett said.

Bartlett represents the Bull Steamship line, the Clyde-Mallory line, Merchants and Miners Transportation Company, the Moore-Mack Gulf line and the Ocean Steamship Company.

The strike was called because of union demands for higher wages, union recognition and shorter hours.

CIO ACCUSES AFL OF 'DIVISION'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(UP) A bitter word battle between rival leaders tonight rocked the already unsteady foundations upon which rest hope of peace for the 7,300,000 workers in the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The CIO accused the Federation of offering "words of unity accompanied by acts of division." Only 24 hours after William Green, AFL president, attacked "the insincerity" of the John L. Lewis faction.

W. L. ELLIOTT, 81, DIES AT HOME IN M'DONOUGH

W. L. Elliott, 81, of McDonough, died yesterday morning at his residence. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the graveside in Elliott cemetery. The Rev. G. L. Brooks will officiate.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Felton Steele, Mrs. J. A. Fanning, Mrs. Cecil Steele, and Miss Mary Elliott; a brother, J. H. Elliott, and a sister, Mrs. G. L. Thrasher.

TAX ON INTANGIBLES MAY TOP $2,000,000

Valuation of $550,000,000 Placed on Property State Seeks To Levy.

Valuation of intangible property on which the state will endeavor to collect ad valorem taxes for the past seven years totals more than $550,000,000, the Georgia comptroller general's office estimated yesterday.

Intangible property valuations already mailed 61 counties total in excess $101,483,775, it was revealed. Tax claims on this property will average four and one-half years, thus bringing the taxable valuation well above the $550,000,000 estimate.

Average Four Mills.

State authorities will seek collection of taxes on this property based on the tax rate for the individual years. Thus a five-mills rate will apply for the years before and after the Talmadge administration and a four and three-mills rate during those years. The average is slightly above four mills per year.

Using the average as a basis, tax officials calculate there is approximately $2,200,000 in tax on intangibles due the state in these 61 counties. This is figured at $4 tax on each $1,000 valuation.

The Governor and the State Tax Commission has signed two contracts with John Armistead, Atlanta tax expert, to collect the past-due taxes. One contract applies to Fulton and DeKalb counties alone and the other to the remainder of the state. Outside the two large counties, Armistead's contract is reported to call for a 25 per cent commission of all collections, with a smaller percentage to be received from Fulton and DeKalb collections.

Fulton county already has a contract with the tax investigator to collect taxes on a 10 per cent basis.

Valuations of the intangible property in excess of a million dollars were reported in the following counties:

Bibb, $17,926,141; Carroll, $1,106,843; Chatham, $34,695,233; Clarke, $2,297,751; Colquitt, $2,891,035; Coweta, $2,758,219; Decatur $1,950,409; Floyd, $5,336,790; Glynn $3,160,221; Hall, $1,697,544; Muscogee, $17,815,371.

Reports have not been made on counties below Newton in the alphabetical listing and not all of those above Newton, Comptroller William B. Harrison said.

The lists of more than $1,000,000 will be supplemented as the investigation continues. Many counties already investigated fall in the half-million-dollar classification.

George's Cousin Victim of Raids By 'Human Cat'

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Scotland Yard tonight invaded Lonman cat" who twice invaded London's most fashionable apartment and flashed a light in the sleeping face of 13-year-old Patricia Mountbatten, cousin of King George VI, and sometimes called England's richest little girl.

Her father, Lord Louis Mountbatten, dismissed as "ridiculous" theories that spies or kidnapers had invaded his 30-room penthouse twice in one week.

He expressed the opinion that the intruder was a cat burglar.

A dozen homes in London's fashionable West End have been looted of more than $50,000 in valuables in the past six weeks. Scotland Yard has nearly completed a theoretical sketch of the man they believe responsible.

On the "cat's" first raid last Sunday night, only servants were in the apartment. A statement issued through Lord Mountbatten's secretary disclosed the second visit on Thursday night.

Lord and Lady Mountbatten were at dinner. Patricia was asleep.

"She was awakened by a torch," stated Lord Mountbatten. Cooly, she rang the bell.

Within two minutes of the alarm, Scotland Yard men were on the scene.

ICEMAN IS SOUGHT IN THEFT ASSAULT

Surprised in Robbery Attempt, He Stabs Clerk.

Surprised while robbing the safe of the Poplar Finance Company, 81 Poplar street, a negro iceman stabbed Homer Doster, 24, a clerk, with ice tongs as he fought his way from the building yesterday.

Police said the negro had been admitted to deliver ice and opened the safe door while Doster waited on a customer in the front. The clerk heard the safe door creak and on investigating was ordered to stand back by the iceman who had a pistol. Doster grappled with the negro and was stabbed with the tongs.

Doster was taken to Grady hospital where attaches said his condition was not serious. Police are seeking the negro, an independent ice deliveryman.

UNDERPASS PROJECT AT NORTH AVENUE PUSHED BY COUCH

Completion of the proposal to construct an underpass under Marietta street at North avenue was urged yesterday by Hugh C. Couch, Atlantan, who was one of the original sponsors of the project.

The federal government still has $486,000 appropriated for the elimination of this grade crossing, but the proposed project has been practically abandoned, Couch said.

He recommended the city and county co-operate in carrying out the plans of the federal highway engineers in constructing an underpass under Marietta from North avenue to Dalvigny street and thence to Bankhead avenue, making a new highway between Marietta street and Bankhead for east-west traffic.

To Cost City $125,000.

"This project would cost the city only about $125,000 for the rights of way, which the federal government requires from the local government before it will contribute the main construction cost," Couch declared.

It was estimated last year by the city engineers and law department that the total cost of obtaining rights of way for the federal proposal, or for the city's proposal to go under Marietta and the railroad tracks directly on North avenue, would be more than $350,000. Mayor Hartsfield said the city could not stand such a bill, even to secure the underpass and the expenditure here of nearly half a million dollars by the federal government.

Couch urged the city abandon its idea of placing the underpass on North avenue on both sides of Marietta street and the train tracks, and to adopt the proposal by the federal hightway engineers.

"The plan to cross under the street and tracks to Dalvigny street and thus to Bankhead avenue beyond the bridge over the Southern railway tracks would cost much less," he asserted.

Paving Included.

Dalvigny street is not improved, but paving it could be included as a part of the construction cost to be borne by the federal government, he pointed out.

At Lambert street, the proposed new route to Bankhead avenue would curve in a northwesterly direction to follow the curve of the Southern tracks, entering Bankhead just west of the overhead bridge.

This would be a much shorter and less expensive way than via North avenue west of the railroad tracks, he said. "Besides, North avenue has another grade crossing before traffic could be routed to Bankhead, if the city's plan was followed," Couch said.

He stressed the fact that building the underpass would open up new industrial property now practically useless and abandoned, which lies west of the tracks. Constantly trains block exit from this section to Marietta street now, he said.

Undeveloped Land.

"These acres and acres of undeveloped property are only one mile from the center of the city," said Couch. "Nowhere else in Atlanta can you find such undeveloped land so near the heart of the town.

"If the underpass were built, it would open up this property and the city would benefit from the increased taxable valuation."

Last year Hartsfield and the county commissioners attempted to find ways of financing the purchase of rights of way for the underpass but both the city and county decided the cost was more than their budgets could stand.

In addition to the cost of rights of way, the city would be liable to property damage suits and Hartsfield declared that it was this item which has made the cost prohibitive.

He and the commissioners endeavored to get trailroads to contribute to the cost, since the elimination of the grade crossing would be profitable to the railway companies, but this met with no success.

Fund Still Available.

Federal funds for the underpass were subject to reappropriation with the new fiscal year beginning July 1, because the money was not used during 1936 and the first half of 1937, but the $486,000 is still available, Couch pointed out.

However, he said it is almost certain the government will not keep the money appropriated for Atlanta on this project beyond June 30, 1938, unless the city moves to take advantage of it.

"Of course, the federal authorities may appropriate it to some other project in the city, but the Marietta street-North avenue underpass is by far the most important development that could be made in the elimination of grade crossings," Couch said.

Plans of the federal engineers call for straightening and widening North avenue on the east side of Marietta for a distance of a block and a half, to the location of the Coca-Cola Company plant. A coal yard on the northeast corner of Marietta and North avenue would be in the line of the route under Marietta street and the railroads. Property along the avenue would have to be purchased to widen North avenue for ramps leading into Marietta street around the underpass.

This Is Where, and How, Underpass Would Be Built

This is where the federal government proposes to spend $486,000 to build an underpass under Marietta street and the railroad tracks at North avenue. This view, taken from the top of the Coca-Cola Company plant on West North avenue, shows where the underpass would cut through the coal yard on the northeast corner of Marietta and North avenue to D'Alvigney street. The signal tower on the railroad tracks (indicated) is almost in the center of the proposed construction.

Looking eastward on D'Alvigney street, this view shows where the proposed underpass would cut under the railroad tracks and Marietta street into North avenue on the east side. The indicated signal tower on the tracks is near the center of the proposed route. Federal engineers plan connection of the underpass with Bankhead avenue via D'Alvigney street. Costs of rights of way for the project were estimated at $125,000.

Constitution Staff Photos—Cornett.

For $125,000, Atlanta could obtain a $500,000 underpass at Marietta and North avenue, Hugh C. Couch, widely known Atlantan, declares. Here is a map showing the route under Marietta and the railroad tracks as proposed by federal engineers. The underpass (shaded area) would go under Marietta 100 feet north of the present crossing, connecting with D'Alvigney street, at present undeveloped. Thence, a new highway would be built to Bankhead avenue beyond the overhead bridge, approximately 2,000 feet from Marietta street.

FIRE ESCAPE CLIMB BARES RUM CACHE

Four Arrested as Police Report Whisky Found in Elevator Shaft.

A whisky cache, hidden at the top of an elevator shaft in a vacant office building, was uncovered yesterday as county and city police raided the building, arrested five men and confiscated 20 cases of whisky in quarts and pints.

Four white men, H. R. Davis, of 1326 Peachtree street; James Jackson, of 496 Fourth street; W. B. Lawrence, of 406 Laurel, and Earl Milton, of 467 Griffin street, and one negro, Don Burke, were taken to Fulton tower by the officers. Bonds of $1,000 each were set for the white men, while the negro's bond was set at $500.

Operating on previous information, county police climbed up a back fire escape of the three-story building at 135 Nassau street and entered an office window on the second floor where they trapped the five men.

WHITEFOORD CHILDREN WAITING FOR CARNIVAL

King Carnival is beginning his reign at Whitefoord school. His helpers, the owls, the bats, the witches and the cats, are beginning to put in their appearances all up and down the halls. Jack-o'-lanterns and hobgoblins are peering through window panes making children's hearts quake with fear. Behind closed doors mournful strains of Danse Macabre and the Witches' Dance can be heard. Even the winds that blow around our school have an eerie sound. The spirit of Halloween will be in her wildest mood Friday when King Carnival holds his court.

'Friendly' Group At Battle Hill Bands Together

Patients out at Battle Hill sanatorium have banded together in what is probably the only organization with membership restricted exclusively to tuberculosis sufferers.

Adopting the name, "The Society of Friendly Fellows," Frank Marsh and J. W. Snodgrass, two patients at Battle Hill, founded the society three months ago.

Entrance requirements of the S. O. F. F. are set at a high standard. First, there's an initiation fee of 10 cents, and then monthly dues of 5 cents. Meetings are held weekly under strict parliamentary rules and membership now totals about 40. Money taken in from those financially able is used for benevolent purposes. Thomas P. Clancy Jr., is president.

The main qualification, however, is that neophytes must be convalescent or ambulant patients before they can be initiated.

Designed to promote a closer bond of friendship, the society also has as objectives the moral and spiritual uplift of its members. A particular aim is to further rehabilitation of discharged patients in the business world.

Meanwhile, the society is concentrating on present improvement and beautification of Battle Hill. Purchase of a large United States flag and a steel pole to be mounted on the Battle Hill lawn is at the head of a list of "things to be done" when necessary funds are obtained.

Members of the society are placing hopes for an increased treasury in their developing skill at the unfamiliar art of knitting and crocheting.

A fire hazard at the sanatorium was recently erased by the S. O. F. F. when it requested the State Highway Department to improve the West Lake avenue detour, made almost impassable by heavy rains. During construction of the new Anderson avenue bridge, this detour is the only traffic approach to the sanatorium grounds.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP) R. J. Gilchrist, of the cotton exporting firm of Gilchrist & Company, has been nominated for president of the Savannah Cotton Exchange to succeed A. H. Cary. The annual election at the exchange will be held November 8.

MICHELSON WANTS G. O. P. CONVENTION

He Fears Hoover's Proposed Meeting Will Not Eventuate, However.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Former President Hoover's proposal for an off-year G. O. P. national convention would be an acknowledgment that the Republican party is in its death throes, according to the veteran publicity director of the Democratic national committee, Charles Michelson.

Michelson, while expressing fear that the suggested meeting of Republican minds will not eventuate, admits that such a gathering "could contribute more to cheer a gloomy world than the spectacle of Liberty Leaguers, western Progressives and middle-of-the-roaders striving to reach a common ground on policies.

Michelson finds cause for Democratic jubilation in the apparent disagreement between the former Republican president and the past party presidential nominee, former Governor Alf Landon, of Kansas, over the convention idea, which would materialize next year.

"Think what an impressive thing it would be to have the strategy makers of such a convention combing over the flyspecks in their hunt for a platform which would unite the most disorganized outfit that ever essayed the role of opposition party in this republic."

FUNDS APPROPRIATED FOR $35,000 HATCHERY

DALTON, Ga., Oct. 30.—An appropriation of $35,000 has been set aside by the federal government for the location of a fish hatchery in Whitfield county, it was announced here this week by Congressman M. C. Tarver. The money for building the hatchery is already available and government officials are here to select a site.

A site on the property of Ben Williams, in the Cohutta community, has been tentatively approved, and $4,500 of the appropriation is available for the purchase of the land. A large spring supplies water for a lake located on the property.

CONNER IS NAMED DEMOCRATIC AIDE

Atlantan Made Acting Secretary-Treasurer of Young Democrats.

The appointment of John L. Conner, widely known Atlanta businessman, as acting secretary-treasurer of the Georgia division of the Young Democrats of America was announced yesterday by E. D. Rivers Jr., junior national committeeman and Miss Louisa Robert, junior national committeewoman.

Conner will aid in the statewide organization of the Georgia division.

Conner is president of the Southern Federal Savings & Loan Association of Atlanta and secretary-treasurer of the insurance firm of Dargen, Whitington & Conner, Inc.

He is past lieutenant governor of the Civitan International of the state of Georgia, and a director of the Civitan Club of Atlanta; past director of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Buckhead Fifty Club, and an active member of that famous organization of 13 young men in Atlanta, known as the Thirteen Club.

Conner is a member of the Governor's staff and of the State Democratic Executive Committee of Georgia. He is a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason and a Shriner.

LEGION POST OPENS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Twelve Teams To Compete for Prizes; History of Unit Published.

With a quota of 802 members assigned to it by state headquarters, Atlanta Post No. 1 of the American Legion, yesterday launched its annual membership drive. The post had 647 members at the end of the Legion year, just completed.

Twelve teams have been organized for the drive under the leadership of J. Walter LeCraw, membership chairman. Each team has six members. They will compete both as individuals and as teams for a number of prizes. First prize will be an American Legion uniform to the winning captain.

A history of the post, to be distributed during the drive, has been published and several copies have been placed in the hands of team members. This history describes the various activities and enterprises in which Atlanta Post No. 1 has been engaged and points out that it is the only post in the Atlanta area which maintains a full-time office and secretarial service.

ATLANTA ARTISTS TO DISPLAY WORK

Exhibition at Carnegie Library Opens Tomorrow.

Atlantans will be given an opportunity to see the work of Georgia talent in an art exhibition in celebration of National Art Week, beginning tomorrow through Saturday, at the Carnegie library.

Among paintings of unusual interest will be "Nora," by Dorothy Perkins Pismor and "Georgia Industry," by J. Leroy Jackson, of Atlanta, which won first and second places respectively in the contest sponsored by the art division of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs in co-operation with the Carnegie library during October.

These paintings were judged yesterday and will be placed on exhibition in the circulation department of the library for the month of November. The first place was given the best painting and second place was awarded the picture reflecting most definitely an Atlanta background.

Other paintings drawing considerable interest of Atlantans during the week will be those which were submitted by Beatrice Stubbs, Robert S. Rogers, and Maurice Seigler, who won honorable mention in the contest.

"This exhibition will carry out one of the definite objectives of the federation in bringing to Atlantans' attention the wealth of creative ability in the city," said George Ramey, chairman of the library's exhibition and art chairman of the federation.

ATLANTAN APPOINTED TO U. S. RESERVE CORPS

George Mitchell Allen, of 115 Fifth street, N. W., has accepted appointment in the reserve corps of the United States army, it was announced yesterday at fourth corps area headquarters.

Other Georgians accepting appointment are Samuel Ellsworth Patton, of Macon, first lieutenant in the medical reserve; Henry Grady Roberts, of Athens, second lieutenant in the infantry reserve, and Owen Mortimer Roberts Jr., of Athens, second lieutenant in the cavalry reserve.

SEWAGE AND WATER SCHOOL TO OPEN

Georgia Cities To Send Pupils Here for Instruction.

Water works and sewerage personnel of numerous Georgia cities and industrial villages will assemble here Wednesday through Saturday to attend the sixth annual Georgia water and sewage plant operators school, conducted by the sanitary engineering division of the State Department of Public Health, in co-operation with the Georgia Water and Sewage Plant Operators' Association and the Georgia School of Technology.

Sessions will be held in lecture rooms and the laboratory of the biology department at Georgia Tech. The school is for the purpose of intensive practical training in the duties and responsibilities of public water supply and sewage treatment, the course being divided into subjects of elementary nature for those whose previous training and experience are limited. For those whose training and experience qualify them for their local position, advanced subjects are offered.

Addresses of Welcome.

Following registration at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday morning the opening session will convene with addresses of welcome by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, and Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the State Department of Public Health. Response will be made by Carl Alexander, president of the Georgia Water and Sewage Operators' Association.

Featured speakers on the Wednesday program will be W. H. Weir, assistant chief of the sanitary engineering division of the state health department; J. L. Daniel and H. A. Wyckoff, of Georgia Tech, who will deliver addresses in Group 1. In the advanced group, addresses will be made by N. M. deJarnette, of the Georgia Department of Public Health.

Laboratory Demonstration.

Scheduled for addresses Thursday morning are J. L. Daniel and N. M. deJarnette, who will lead a discussion on chemical laboratory, to be followed by a bacteriological laboratory demonstration of the bacteriological work performed Wednesday.

A panel discussion of water supply problems will feature the advanced group program for Thursday, various subjects of the problem to be led by W. J. Whaley, superintendent of water works, of Winder; Paul Weir, superintendent of filtration of Atlanta; Clark W. Jones, superintendent water works, Dalton; L. L. Jacobs, assistant superintendent of water works of Newnan.

Lewis Simonton, superintendent of filtration of Griffin, will discuss "Plant Maintenance and Watershed Protection," and T. E. P. Woodward, superintendent of the board of water commissioners, of Macon, will discuss "Plant Records and Distribution of System Maps."

Two Hurt En Route To Mother's Funeral

KISSIMMEE, Fla., Oct. 30.—(UP)—Edgar and Eddie Kimbrough, of Miami, were in a hospital tonight with injuries suffered when their car overturned north of here. The brothers were driving to Anniston, Ala., where funeral services for their mother will be held tomorrow.

AUSTRIA PUTS LID ON PARTY ENEMIES

All Outside of Popular Front To Be Classed as Government Foes.

VIENNA, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The Fatherland Front—Austria's only legal political organization—was enrolling new members by the thousands tonight and officials estimated the party would have a membership of 2,400,000 by November 1, the deadline for registration.

Party leaders said the new total membership would make the Austrian Fatherland Front much stronger in proportion to population than the Nazi party in Germany or the Communist party in Russia.

Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg, who last year took the leadership of the Fatherland Front from Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, regarded the membership drive as the completion of his political consolidation of Austria.

"We are putting the roof on the house," he said.

Hereafter, only youths attaining the age of 18 will be accepted into the Front, and all Austrians remaining outside will definitely be classed as opposed to the Christian authority theory of government. They will lose all prospect of obtaining government jobs and will find many forms of civil employment closed to them. Non-members will be unable to vote in any future elections.

The attitude of known opposition elements was observed closely as the Front began closing its ranks. In Vienna, many classified as Nazis and Socialists were joining, but in the Tyrol and Styria, apparently great numbers of opposition factions had decided to stay outside.

Boy, 19, Rescued From Night-Long Trap in Sandbank

CHELMSFORD, Mass., Oct. 30. (AP)—An exhausted red-eyed youth of 19, who lay trapped for 12 hours in a shifting sandbank, told today how during the long night hours he "cried a little and prayed a lot," and once when an avalanche completely buried him, "knew I was going to die."

And then at dawn, while hundreds of tense volunteer workers held their breaths, a crew of Lowell sewer department employes who had cautiously built a crib around the imprisoned Manuel Camacho, carefully drew his bruised body from the sand and hustled him off to a hospital.

"My legs are a little sore but I'm all right," he murmured. At Lowell hospital he was treated for general exhaustion and given intravenous injections of nourishment. X-rays disclosed no broken bones.

"We were loading a truck," Camacho recounted from his hospital bed. "All of a sudden the wall gave way. It seemed as thought the whole thing came down on top of us."

CANDIDATES MAP INTENSIVE DRIVE FOR COUNTY POST

Platforms Given in Race for Place on Commission; 14 in Contest.

While Fulton county voters pondered over whom to select November 9 as a county commissioner to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Commissioner Edwin F. Johnson, the 14 candidates in the race were drawing up plans yesterday for a week of heavy campaigning.

Courthouse political gossip predicting withdrawals of some of the candidates before the election day was quiet yesterday. Ballots have been printed carrying the names of all the candidates—12 north siders and two from the south side.

Five candidates yesterday issued statements summing up their activity for the past week and expounding upon special planks in their platforms. Others in the race stuck to their campaign pledges, reiterating themes of economy, equal tax distribution, and a balanced budget.

Views Expressed.

Troy G. Chastain, former Fulton county farm agent, and north side candidate, said he has campaigned in every section of Fulton county during the past 10 days. Congratulating the present county commissioners for keeping Fulton county on a "cash basis," he asserted that, if elected, he would co-operate in continuance of this policy.

"To my way of thinking, the interest of the county and city are so closely interwoven that one cannot, and should not be progressive at the expense of the other," Chastain said. "Although I live in a country district, I own property and operate a business in the city of Atlanta, and I shall strive to be a true servant of this great county and city."

Edgar Craighead, Atlanta attorney, also of the north side, said the election of a county commissioner is "essentially a city problem."

Expense Pictured.

"The commissioners spend annually over $4,000,000 tax money," he said. "Over $3,500,000 comes from the city of Atlanta. Therefore it is a matter of great importance that they elect a county commissioner interested in their welfare, for at the present time practically no money is being spent in the city for improvement. It is vitally important that the voters in the city of Atlanta go to the polls on November 9, and elect a man who will co-operate with the city for the betterment of this community."

Craighead congratulated The Constitution for its editorial deploring wild chases of whisky cars in the city by Fulton county police.

Dr. C. W. Childs, Bankhead highway pharmacist and former member of city council, announced plans to carry out an extensive campaign in all parts of the county by a series of rallies. Political supporters of Dr. Childs said that the first of these meetings would be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the Lena H. Cox school in Grove Park. Dr. Childs will speak and outline his platform.

"I propose to take my campaign directly to the people in every section of this county," he said. "My service as a member of city council and my residence outside the corporate limits of Atlanta since that time have fitted me to fairly appraise the claims of urban and suburban Atlanta. This county commission post belongs to the voters. I wish now to urge them to vote in order that the candidate who is elected may be a true representative."

Summaries Given.

C. O. Johnson, former county school teacher and board of education member, issued an 11-point summary of his platform in which he said he would work for an adequate, properly equipped police force, extension of the county health and sanitation services, and a carefully planned system of road and highway improvements, "beginning with R. F. D. and school bus routes."

"I will follow a policy of co-operative, non-interference with the elective department heads of the county, encouraging an equalization of salaries for employes in those departments rendering the same class of service," Johnson said, adding that he would further work for a "properly equipped public works department, with fair hours and fair pay for its employes."

Grover Clark, farmer and merchant, another north sider, came out in favor of closing all saloons, dance halls, and so-called tourist camps in any precinct or ward where a majority of the people are against their operation.

"I am in favor of locating a speedy radio-equipped fire truck at every prison camp, ready at all times to combat a fire and render aid everywhere in Atlanta and to the most remote farm homes," Clark said.

Other candidates in the race reiterated their stands on stricter control over spending by the commission, proportionate distribution of county tax funds back in the city, more public works improvements and reduction of taxes.

Other north side candidates in the race are Byron Bettis, R. T. Dutton, W. D. Newman, Thomas Croom Partridge, George Starr Peck, Nelson T. Spratt and Leo A. Sullivan.

Two south side candidates, W. M. Mitcham and R. H. Everett, are in the race. The vacancy to be filled on the commission is limited to non-residents of Atlanta or any incorporated town in the county.

BAILIFF'S NAP BRINGS ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

The Georgia court of appeals granted a new trial yesterday in a criminal case because "it appears one of the bailiffs" in charge of the jury "slept in the same bed with one of the jurors and in the same room with some of the others and at various times during their deliberations discussed the case freely with the jurors."

The case was that of J. M. Spooner, convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the death of J. J. Anglin and sentenced from five to eight years in Miller county superior court.

TECH BLASTS VANDY, 14-0, IN AMAZING VICTORY

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Georgia Crumbles Under Vol Power, 32 to 0

Scouts Praise Defense Alexander Set for Vandy!

Football or magic? Which will you have?

Yesterday, at any rate, football won the ball game. Tech came from nowhere to be everywhere and shatter Vanderbilt's undefeated ranks, 14 to 0.

Only once did the "magic" work. On the third scrimmage play of the game for Vanderbilt, Lunny Hollins faked a kick. The Tech end was fooled and Hollins ran 32 yards around his left end. He almost scored.

After that the Tech defense, smartly conceived, and brilliantly executed, stopped all the fakes Vanderbilt had. Bert Marshall was completely halted. He showed enough to indicate just what a good back he is when the defense isn't set to catch him.

Mr. William Alexander and the Messrs. Tharpe, Dodd, McArthur and Dean may take a bow. They got the team ready And the team responded.

I trust the people who were writing such horrid letters last week will at least be generous enough to write nice ones this week. They were shown up so very badly.

Football teams which play schedules won't win all their games.

WHAT THEY SAID.

That was a he-man football game which Georgia Tech won from Vanderbilt yesterday.

And when it was all done, and the stunned football fans were wending their way homeward trying to figure out what happened and why, the coaches and scouts were saying:

H. J. Stegeman, of Georgia—"I thought Tech's pass defense was the finest one thing about their fine victory. It was a great game and Tech made no mistakes and outplayed them. The pass defense which Coach Alex and his aides had raised was a masterpiece. The entire defense was good."

Weems Baskin, of Georgia—"I felt after the first five minutes that Tech was taking the edge away. It was an inspired team and it played smart football. It looks as if Tech is back again."

Coach Alexander—"I thought the boys played well. It was pleasing to see them win and to win so emphatically. The heat bothered both teams. I thought Vanderbilt had a fine team. They'd be difficult to beat any day."

Ray Morrison, Vanderbilt coach—"It was one of those days. Is it always hot in Atlanta? The heat bothered us."

Bill Bratton, Tennessee coach and scout—"Vanderbilt couldn't get going against that Tech line and pass defense. They have a great team and I'm afraid Vanderbilt and Auburn will beat us."

RAY AND HUGGINS.

Baby Ray was the hero of the Vanderbilt team yesterday and one of the greatest linemen ever to play at Grant field.

Carl Hinkle, Vanderbilt's fine center, was magnificent on defense. But he was not in evidence on offense. Mr. Alexander's defense bottled him up.

Both are fine boys. Hinkle is an unusual leader. Ray is popular with friend and foe alike. Particularly pleased was he last night at learning Coach Alexander had signaled him out for praise.

Jimmy Huggins was heart-broken. The fates had chosen him as the goat of the game. Huggins fumbled and Tech recovered to score. Huggins passed and Page intercepted it to score. Last night he was inconsolable. He will be wise to forget it. He played well. He had poor luck. It was just a game and if anyone remembers it more than a week it will be very unworthy of the one remembering.

Here's the play that beat Vanderbilt. The Constitution's cameras caught it—and the second and final touchdown which appears on another page — yesterday when, in the second quarter, Bill Jordan caught a pass from Fletcher Sims from the 22-yard line to score. He is shown going up for the ball. He was over the goal line when he caught it and came down—running. Jordan is shown with Ray Andrus, halfback, chasing him. Ed Jones, Number 3 for Tech, is in the background grinning. He knows Bill Jordan doesn't miss. This picture, plus the second Tech touchdown and the usual fine array of wired pictures, gives The Constitution readers the story of the game in pictures.

Vol Backs March To Smashing Win

Wood, Harp, Lead Touchdown Parade as Bulldog Five-Man Line Fails.

By JACK TROY.

SHIELDS WATKINS FIELD, KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 30.—In a startling demonstration of speed, power and versatility, the Tennessee Volunteers came into their own this afternoon.

Three backs named Walter Wood, George Cafego and Tom (Red) Harp took turns in shattering the defense as Tennessee marched through and passed over Georgia, 32 to 0, before 17,000 spectators.

It really was the first time this year that Tennessee had shown anything to shout about. But there was no question about the superiority of the orange-shirted Volunteers this afternoon.

The score of the game is an accurate indication of how things went. It took several goal-line stands by Georgia to keep the score from running even higher.

Only twice did Georgia penetrate Volunteer territory, and each time the attack bogged down.

Georgia opened up with a five-man line and this defensive move was good for a short time. Tennessee promptly countered with a five-man line when Georgia had the ball.

It was not so terribly long until the Volunteers had adjusted themselves to the blocking against the 5-3-2-1 set-up, and there was the dickens to pay after they once got under way.

Ralph Eldred, a reserve end,

DARTMOUTH TIES OLD ELI, 9 TO 9

Yale Scores Touchdown in the Last Three Seconds of Play.

By ALAN GOULD.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Yale hauled itself back from the brink of the Blues' first defeat of the football season today by tying Dartmouth, 9 to 9, with only three seconds to go in an electrifying finish witnessed by a capacity crowd of 72,000.

The Elis snatched a touchdown from the air, with a last-ditch flourish; after Dartmouth's rigged convalescents, getting better as the game progressed, seemed to have clinched a third straight conquest of Yale with a 90-yard touchdown dash by Bob MacLeod.

Al Hessberg took two long passes from Captain Flint Frank, Yale's all-American back, to gain 63 of the 65 yards reeled off in the closing Eli scoring thrust. The ### Fighting Irish Score 7-6 Victory Before Crowd of 64,100.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 30. (UP)—Andy Puplis, Notre Dame's tiny quarterback, led the fighting Irish to a 7-6 triumph over Minnesota's highly favored giants in a bruising gridiron battle today before an overflow throng of 64,000.

Puplis, a pal of Andy Pilney, hero of Notre Dame's storybook triumph over Ohio State two years ago, was a midget among giants today, but it was his brilliant generalship, running and talented toe which enabled the Irish to maintain their record of never having lost to Minnesota.

With the largest throng ever to see a game in the northwest looking on, Puplis, a stubby little 165-pounder who played at Harrison Tech High, Chicago, and then fol-

Tech Back Grabs Commodore Pass and Gallops 23 Yards for Score; Jordan Brilliant.

By RALPH McGILL.

The road back is bitter and long.

But Georgia Tech's golden-clad football legions marched every league of it Saturday afternoon at Grant field to beat Vanderbilt's great team, 14 to 0.

The road back is bitter and long.

But to the stout of heart there is not too much bitterness nor too much weariness.

Georgia Tech's football team came back all the way from the black rim of bitternes sand defeat to a victory which was more brilliant even than the slanting rays of the October sun that covered them as they trudged off the field while 20,000 stood and cheered one of the most magnificent fights ever made by a Georgia Tech football team.

Vanderbilt had not lost to a Georgia Tech team since the season of 1928. Vanderbilt came marching to Grant Field undefeated and untied, ranked second in the nation.

It is said that at Belleau Woods a platoon of marines crouched behind cover as a machine gun stuttered in front of them. At last the sergeant of marines stood up

Dutch Konemann, who played a great game yesterday for Tech in the 14-to-0 triumph over the heavily favored Vanderbilt team, is shown here going 32 yards after intercepting a pass in the last quarter. He took the ball to the 4½-yard line but Tech couldn't get over for the tally. The Dutchman is No. 84. Other players are Commodores. No. 7 is Keene; No. 37 is Captain Hinkle, and No. 36 is Housman. Tech outplayed the Vanderbilt team all the way. Only twice in the last half did Vanderbilt cross the 50-yard line into Tech territory. Tech's defense was very smartly conceived and was executed with great skill and determination.

Rams Pull Razzle-Dazzle To Turn Back Fighting Southern Eleven.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Fordham showed its power and razzle-dazzle today to turn back a hard-fighting University of North Carolina eleven, 14 to 0, and continue its undefeated season.

The teams entered the game unbeaten in this year's campaign, but each had been tied. A crowd of 24,000 filled Kenan stadium to watch the Rams emerge victorious in their first southern invasion.

The Rams turned on the heat for an 88-yard scoring march in the first quarter, and a 56-yard advance in the third.

The old "Statue of Liberty play" gave the invaders their first touchdown, Steve Kazlo taking the ball out of Joe Granski's hand as Granski faked a pass and sweeping 26 yards around right end to score.

Captain John Druze converted from placement for the extra point, and also made his kick good after the second touchdown. Butch Fortunato, a relief Fordham back, drove 1 yard through center for the second tally.

Fordham uncorked a varied offensive in the first scoring drive.

The Rams, who grabbed fumbles all afternoon, got a first down on North Carolina's 5 when Fortunato covered the pigskin there. Principe gained 4 yards in two tries and then Fortunato scored.

Ralph McGill's Running Story of Tech's Upset Win Over Vandy

FIRST QUARTER.

GRANT FIELD, Oct. 30.—A blazing hot sun, 20,000 people and two blaring bands greeted the teams of Tech and Vanderbilt as they came out for what was to be the 21st game between the two elevens.

Vanderbilt came on first, huge and fast. The starting eleven took the field and began to run signals. Tech followed closely behind.

Appleby and Sims got 5 yards in two tries and Sims kicked to Lunny Hollins, who was downed in his tracks by Jack Nixon. It was at the Vandy 31.

Hollins took it, and Appleby got him for a loss of 1 yard. Ford got a couple at right guard. Lunny Hollins, at kick formation, faked the kick and came around his left end for 32 yards to the Tech 38. Appleby almost had him for a loss. The Tech right end was boxed in. The interference cut down the backers-up and Sims at last got him.

HOLLINS' PASS.

Two plays got a yard and then Hollins passed to Preacher Franklin, right end, for 10 yards and a first down at the Tech 27.

Reinschmidt, on a spinner, came back through the center of the Tech line for a first down at the Tech 13.

Ford failed at right end and Hollins' pass to Ford was broken up. Hollins was stopped by Jimmy Brooks for a loss of 4.

Vanderbilt refused to try a pass and attempted a place-kick by Ray Andrus. It went wide and Tech had stopped the first charge.

Tech took the ball at the Tech 20.

Two plays were no good and then, on third down, Tech tried the first razzle-dazzle. Konemann was caught back of the line and tossed back to Sims. Sims, in no position to run, tried to escape and was run back to his eight-yard line where Baby Ray got him.

Sims, in a tight spot, kicked the ball well, getting it to his own 42.

PRESSURE ON.

The pressure was on Tech again. One play failed and then Dutch Konemann grabbed a pass out of the air, and Tech had got out of the squeeze, having the ball at the Tech 36.

Vanderbilt took out time. I saw Bobby Dodd and Mack Tharpe slap Rimmer on the back and send him in at left tackle for Cushing.

Appleby went through for 4 yards at center. Sims was choked off at left end. A pass, Sims to Konemann, got Tech's first first down but the play was called back and Tech penalized for offside. Sims' pass to Konemann was no good and Sims kicked to Bert Marshall, who got back 5 to his own 23.

Vanderbilt came through a big hole at center for 9 yards. Turney Ford got a first down at the Vandy 35.

Jimmy Brooks tackled Marshall for a loss of 2. Jimmy Brooks went out to end to get Marshall again. Marshall quick-kicked over the line, putting the Jackets on their own 20. It was a beauty, going a full 65 yards from the line of scrimmage.

The quarter was up with the kick.

SECOND QUARTER.

Bill Jordan and Ed Jones came in at the ends for Tech.

Vanderbilt sent in Perry for Reinschmidt, and Keene and Houseman, three new backs, leaving only Bert Marshall from the first quarter. Vandy also sent in new ends, guards and one tackle. Ricketson, who scored on L. S. U., was left. There were eight new subs for Vandy.

Tech had the ball at the Tech 20.

Sims and Konemann got six in two tries. Konemann, trying to pass, was rushed but got the ball away and Sims took it. It was for two yards. Sims kicked, and Marshall took it back five to his own 35.

Vanderbilt was penalized 15 for clipping on the play and the ball was back at the Vandy 25. Two plays failed and Marshall kicked 38 yards to Sims, who fair-caught the ball at the Tech 40. It was a gain of 20 yards.

NEAT PLAY.

On the first play Sims tossed a shovel pass to Konemann and he came off left tackle, cut wide and went 18 yards to the Vanderbilt 42.

It was Tech's first first down and the first time Tech had been in Vandy's territory.

Sims, on a cut back at right tackle, got eight yards.

The Vanderbilt team took out time and the Vandy coaches leaped up and started sending back their big lineman. Baby Ray and all the others went back in there in a very big hurry.

And then Sims passed to Jordan, who lateraled to Chivington. It got nine yards and a first down at the Vandy 22.

Konemann failed, Ray getting him. Sims' pass to Jones was almost good, but was incomplete. Sims tried a running play, and it got four yards. Sims, trying to pass to Konemann, had it broken up by Hinkle, and it was Vandy's ball at its 18.

It was a real threat but the Vanderbilt pass defense had been too tight.

Houseman got a yard at left tackle. A reverse, Andrus carrying, failed. Wood made his second straight tackle. Marshall kicked short to the Vanderbilt 47.

Two plays failed and on third down Konemann took a shovel pass for six yards. It was fourth down. Wood, who had played brilliantly, was hurt. Lackey replaced him.

Sims, taking his time, kicked out of bounds on the Vanderbilt 14.

Houseman failed in the line. Huggins, trying to run, was tackled hard by Ed Jones and fumbled. Red Collins fell on it for Tech at the Vanderbilt 22.

JACKETS SCORE.

Tech tried two smashes at the tremendous Vanderbilt line and Ray stopped both of them cold. And then Sims, crippled and hurt, dropped back and fired a pass ot Bill Jordan, who took the ball in the far right corner of the field for a touchdown. It was a beautiful pass and Jordan was well over the line.

Tech 6; Vanderbilt 0.

The crowd held its breath while Sims tried the kick. The ball came back and Konemann put it down. Sims kicked. It was good.

Tech 7; Vanderbilt 0.

Vanderbilt took the kickoff at its 22.

On second down Rimmer and Brooks threw Huggins for a loss of six.

ANOTHER SCORE.

Huggins got back to kick. He fumbled the ball. He picked it up and seeing McElreath loose, tried to pass. Juno Page caught it for Tech at the Vanderbilt 23 and ran right on for a touchdown.

Tech 13; Vanderbilt 0.

Sims kicked the point and in one amazing break of luck Tech was leading Vanderbilt, 14 to 0.

Vanderbilt took the kickoff at its 22.

Two plays got nothing and on the second Vanderbilt was penalized five for offside. Hollins, just in the game, lost a yard on an end run try. Hollins got seven yards at left end.

The half ended as another play was about to begin.

Tech 14; Vanderbilt 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

Tech took the kickoff to the Tech 25.

Sims kicked on second, Hollins returning it 15 to the Vanderbilt 49.

The Tech line stopped three plays cold, and Hollins kicked a beauty over the Tech line and Tech had it at the Tech 20.

Ed Jones got a yard on the end around. Sims lost a yard, Ray and Merlin getting him.

Vanderbilt had gone into a five-man line.

Sims kicked to Hollins who got through four men to the Tech 45.

A shovel to Andrus got nothing. Reinschmidt, on a quarterback sneak, got 9 yards. The announcer called it the Vanderbilt trick play and the crowd booed. Hollins got a first down at the Tech 32.

PASS INTERCEPTED.

A pass, Hollins to Andrus, was good but lost a yard. Hollins was stopped by Chivington. Hollins' pass to McElreath was intercepted by "Bad" Ector, who was bad medicine to the Vanderbilt just then. The interception stopped what might have been a Vanderbilt threat.

Sims got 3 at left tackle. A shovel, Sims to Konemann, got 3 but the play was called back and Tech penalized 15 yards for holding.

A pass, Sims to Appleby, got a yard. It was a nice pickup. Sims kicked to Hollins who eluded two men. He was downed after first yards at the Vanderbilt 49.

Appleby got Hollins for a loss of 4. Hollins tried to pass and with Brooks and Rimmer doing some great blocking, "Bad" Ector took the ball and returned it to the Vanderbilt 26. It was a return of about 34 yards from the point of interception.

Carl Hinkle blocked Ector to stop him. Hinkle was about to be blocked and made a brilliant play to block the flying Tech sophomore.

Tech 14; Vanderbilt 0.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Bert Marshall, back behind his own line, tried a dangerous play, faking a pass and then running. He got out to his 7-yard line. Marshall was stopped and Vanderbilt penalized 5 for offside on the play. Marshall, fearing any more tricks, kicked and Sims took it at the Vanderbilt 36.

Tech was in position for another threat.

Sims' pass was batted down. Konemann lost 2 when Hinkle got him. Sims' pass to Jordan was short. Sims kicked for the coffin corner. Standing on the Tech 48 he kicked out of bounds at the Vanderbilt 5.

Marshall, again trying a fake, ran and lost a half yard. Marshall, faking again, passed and Ector made his third interception, taking it out of the hands of three Vanderbilt men. It was Tech's ball at the Vanderbilt 12-yard line.

Sims got 2 in the line.

Ed Jones, on an end-around, went around the left side of the Vanderbilt line for 6 yards. Appleby got a first down, but the Tech team was penalized five. It was third down and six. The penalty stopped what probably was a sure touchdown. Konemann went around his left end for 2 yards, out of bounds. It was fourth down and four. Sims' pass to Jordan was no good and it was a touchback.

Vanderbilt twice had stopped marches at the very line.

It was Vanderbilt's at it's 20.

A long pass almost was intercepted by Sims, but he dropped it. Hinton got eight yards on a fake reverse. Hollins, a left-handed passer, came in for Houseman during the Vanderbilt time out.

Appleby failed at right end.

They sent in Burke for Hinkle, but the Vanderbilt captain refused to come out and sent the sub back. A long pass from Sims to Konemann was no good. Sims kicked to Hollins and Jack Nixon nailed him in his tracks.

It was at the Vanderbilt nine.

Hollins' pass was no good. Hollins, trying to run, lost two yards but the officials, seeing the game was about over anyhow, penalized Brooks for a tough tackle. It put Vanderbilt at the Vanderbilt 18 instead of the Vanderbilt three.

Hollins, trying to pass, was rushed and ran with the ball, getting 11 yards and a first down at the Vanderbilt 31.

Agee, throwing a long one to Franklin, was wild a bit, and the pass broken up. Hollins' pass was intercepted by Konemann, and the big Dutchman ran all the way back to the Vandy four and a half.

Edwards lost a yard. Baby Ray stopped Appleby on the next try. They stopped Edwards again. Sims' pass to Jordan was batted down by Reinschmidt. Vanderbilt had stopped a third charge. This time at the six.

Vanderbilt had it at it's six.

Plunkett got a first down at the Vanderbilt 20. Plunkett passed to Reinschmidt for 15 at the Vanderbilt 34. A pass was fumbled by McElreath on the next play, and Chivington recovered for the Tech's at the Vanderbilt 39.

Appleby lost a yard as the game ended, giving Tech the first victory over Vanderbilt since 1928 and scoring one of the greatest upsets of the season.

It was Tech 14, Vanderbilt 0.

'Bama Overpowers Kentucky Eleven

Bob Davis, Wildcat Back, Injured as Tide Adds 41-0 Win to Record.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide, visioning a fifth Rose Bowl bid, swept over Kentucky, 41-0, here this afternoon in a home-coming day game. A crowd of 13,000 watched the contest.

A relentless surge of power that appeared undiminished by frequent substitutions gathered momentum after a slow first period and reached its crest with three touchdowns in the second quarter. It subsided in the closing periods as Alabama's third team took the field.

Alabama relied chiefly on power plays to score against Kentucky, but interspersed sufficient sweeps and passes to loosen the Wildcat defense.

Joe Kilgrow, Crimson spearhead, sparked the first scoring drive midway of the first quarter when he returned one of Simpson's punts 13 yards to Kentucky's 42-yard line and then slashed off tackle for 12 more. After two punches at the line, Fullback Charley Holm swept right end for 22 yards and the first touchdown.

The end-around play perfected by Frank Thomas produced the second touchdown after Carey Cox returned an intercepted pass to Kentucky's 12. Gene Blackwell, substitute flankman, took the ball from Kilgrow and crossed the line standing up. Kilgrow came back with a 20-yard sprint around end for the third score, with Monsky and Cochrane spread-eagling the secondary defense.

Thomas sent in his pony backs shortly after the half and they produced a touchdown in a series of uninterrupted rushes.

The closing touchdown came on a fluke play. Curtis juggled a pass from center behind his goal, crossed the line to avert a safety, Suggs recovered for Alabama and but fumbled again. Ryba and Waites scored in one plunge.

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Alabama | 6 | 21 | 7 | 7 | —41 |
| Kentucky | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | — 0 |

Scoring touchdowns: Alabama: Holm, Blackwell (sub for Warren); Kilgrow, Roberts (sub for Holm), on pass from Moseley; Siemons, Waites.

L. S. U. SMASHES LOYOLA, 52 TO 6

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Louisiana State peppered Loyola of the South with a barrage of touchdowns here tonight to win the first football game the schools have played in a dozen years by a score of 52 to 6.

Completely outclassed, Loyola fought valiantly in the first period and held powerful L. S. U. to a single score. From then on, the Bengals romped to victory.

Speedy "Jabbo" Stell scored three Louisiana State touchdowns, two on passes and one on a neatly executed 39-yard sally through tackle. "Pinkie" Rohm accounted for two more touchdowns on kick returns, a punt for 37 yards in the first period and a kickoff for 86 yards in the third.

SANDLOT GAME.

The Grant Park Aces and the Warren Bulldogs, 1937 sandlot champions, will battle this afternoon on the Cherokee field at 2 o'clock.

Lanier Outscores Savannah, 20 to 13

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP) Lanier High, of Macon, kept its clean record by defeating Savannah High, 20-13, here this afternoon, despite the Blue Jackets' effective aerial attack.

A forward pass, Tuten to McLeod, scored one Savannah touchdown. Tuten scored another and Tom Green, Nub Welch and White counted for the Poets. White fell on the ball over the goal after Tuten's blocked punt for the third Lanier touchdown.

Dartmouth Back Tackled Behind Goal for Safety

Acme Telephoto.

Here's the play that gave Yale an early lead in their game with Dartmouth yesterday at New Haven. Will Hutchinson, big Green back, is tackled behind his own goal line by Johnny Miller, Eli end, for a safety. The contest ended in a 9-9 tie.

HARVARD BEATS PRINCETON, 34-6; STRUCK IS STAR

Victory Is Crimson's First Over Tigers Since 1923.

By STUART CAMERON.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 30.—(UP)—Sparked by the almost unstoppable Vernon Struck, of Centralia, Ill., Harvard routed Princeton today, 34-6, to register the first Crimson victory over the Tigers since 1923, and to administer the soundest beating ever given to a Crisler-coached Nassau eleven.

Handcuffing the Tigers on the ground, and breaking up their overhead attack, Harvard stuck to straight football to score in every period but the third before a crowd of 48,000.

After 10 minutes of play Harvard started a march on its own 35-yard line, and moved straight over the Princeton line. Struck did virtually all the carrying, but Torby MacDonald bucked the final yard for the first touchdown. Clarence Boston converted, making the first of four placement kicks in five attempts.

Two minutes later Bob Green blocked a Princeton punt and ran to the 1-yard line. Struck bucked over the second touchdown. Boston failed to convert.

On the first play of the second period, Green partially blocked a punt and Struck picked up the ball to run 20 yards for a third touchdown.

Princeton then enjoyed its one bright moment. Putting the ball in play on its 38, Princeton moved directly to a score. Jack White, ace of Princeton's backfield, ran to a first down on Harvard's 41. Tom Mountain bucked for a first down on the 19. White passed to Johnny Vruwink, who ran 3 yards to a touchdown. Bill Lynch failed to convert.

| Score by periods: | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Harvard | 13 | 7 | 0 | 14 | —34 |
| Princeton | 0 | 6 | 0 | 0 | — 6 |

King Catches Pass To Score Against Notre Dame

Acme Telephoto.

Acme Telephoto brings this picture of yesterday's game at Minneapolis when Notre Dame beat Minnesota, 7 to 6. In the picture above, King, of Minnesota, is shown taking a pass. He snatched it and ran the few remaining yards to score. McCormick, of Notre Dame, is at the left and at the right is Puplis, of Notre Dame, who scored for the Irish.

Baylor Passes Win Over T. C. U., 6 to 0

Gun Ends Game With the Christians Holding the Ball on Rivals' Four.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Mighty Baylor's unbeaten aerial machine defeated Texas Christian today, 6-0, in as wild an offensive show as the Southwest conference ever produced.

Many times repulsed in surges that pierced deep into Baylor territory, the Christians were frantically passing from the enemy four-yard line when the field judge's final gunshot relaxed a mad crowd of 18,000.

Bill Patterson, Baylor's bouncing youngster, shot Texas Christian down in the first three minutes of play and then swung a grand kicking foot to keep them off balance the rest of the way.

From the moment Patterson loosed aerials of 18 and 23 yards to Gernand and Sam Boyd, Baylor's All-America end candidate, in the first three minutes of play to bring on a touchdown on Captain Carl Brazell's line buck, the field was a madhouse of sky trickery.

Tiny Davy O'Brien, the Texas Christian sniper, tossed 47 of the 49 T. C. U. aerials that gained 204 yards on 22 completions.

There were 72 passes thrown, Baylor trying 23 and completing nine for 155 yards.

Time may have saved Baylor on that last surge when O'Brien's final, and 47th heave was grounded on second down as the Christians stood on the Baylor five stripe.

Southern Methodist Subdues Texas, 13-2

DALLAS, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Southern Methodist climbed out of the Southwest conference cellar today with a 13-2 victory over the Texas Longhorns. The Mustangs scored in the third period on a passing and running attack from their 35-yard line and in the fourth on a pass from the Texas 20.

MARYLAND LICKS FLORIDA, 13 TO 7

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 30. (UP)—Alert defense play in crucial moments today gave Maryland a 13-to-7 win over Florida in an inter-conference game, played before 10,000 homecomers.

The Terrapins concentrated their scoring in the opening half, slamming over two touchdowns with open football, then stopped the 'Gators to take the victory.

The first Florida challenge was stopped less than a yard from Maryland's goal in the first period and their second threat was nipped in the next period when Maryland intercepted a pass on the goal line.

Maryland opened the scoring attack shortly after the game began. A 25-yard pass from Charlie Weidinger, Maryland quarterback, to Bill Bryant, end, placed the ball on the Florida 2-yard line and Jim Meade took it over on the next play.

The Terrapins scored again midway in the second period when a perfectly executed lateral, Weidinger to John McCarthy to Nick Budkoff, netted 37 yards and fell two yards short of the double stripes. Weidinger went over tackle for the score. Pershings Mondroff kicked the extra point to give Maryland a 13-to-0 lead.

Florida started their lone touchdown drive in the third period when Walter Mayberry broke loose for 33 yards. Two first downs on penalties and a pass put the ball on the 5-yard stripe. Mayberry then tossed a flat pass to "Moon" Mullins, who stepped over the line untouched. Clark Goff placekicked the extra point.

Ohio State Beats Chicago Eleven, 39-0

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(UP)—A relentless Ohio State football team by sheer power alone triumphed over the University of Chicago Maroons, 39 to 0, today on Stagg field.

Approximately 10,000 persons watched on this homecoming day as the Buckeyes, their scoring ambitions foiled in the first period cross the Maroon goal line six times in the last three periods and seemed to gain at will through the Chicago line. It was Ohio's third Big Ten victory this year.

DARTMOUTH TIES OLD ELI, 9 TO 9

first was for 28 yards. The second for 35 yards as Hessberg took the ball 20 yards from the goal and shook off two tacklers to complete the scoring play.

It was a race against time, with the huge clock at one end of the field showing only three seconds remaining, and the Eli took full advantage of their opportunity. Gil Humphrey, substitute fullback, place-kicked the tying point, with Captain Frank holding the ball. There was time only for another kickoff before the final whistle.

Yale's slender margin of a two-point safety gained early in the second period and preserved until the final quarter, was wiped out when MacLeod intercepted one of Frank's long passes on Dartmouth's 10-yard mark, near the side lines, and raced to a touchdown.

| Score by periods: | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Dartmouth | 0 | 0 | 0 | 9 | —9 |
| Yale | 0 | 2 | 0 | 7 | —9 |

Dartmouth scoring: Touchdown—MacLeod. Field goal—Dostal (sub for Schildgen) (placement).

Yale scoring: Touchdown—Hessberg (sub for Wilson). Point after touchdown—Humphrey (placement) (sub for Ewart). Safety—Hutchinson.

PENN SURPRISES NAVY TO WIN, 14-7

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Oct. 30.—(UP)—The University of Pennsylvania scored twice in the second period on a startling pass attack and a blocked punt to upset a highly-favored Navy football team, 14-7, today before 65,000 persons.

Navy threw passes wildly in all four periods, but tallied its seven points in the third without throwing an aerial. Instead, the Middies hammered 50 yards down the field with successive cracks at the weak left side of the Penn line to score their only touchdown.

Wood and Cooke carried the ball alternating to the one-foot line where Wood scored over center for the Navy touchdown.

Navy passes twice threatened the Quakers' goal line in the opening period but Penn's pass defense, ineffectual in midfield, stiffened always when the ball entered Pennsylvania territory. Fumbles, after passes had carried the Navy into scoring position, cost the favored Middies at least two touchdowns.

| Score by periods: | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Penn | 0 | 14 | 0 | 0 | —14 |
| Navy | 0 | 0 | 7 | 0 | — 7 |

Touchdowns—Daly, Mischo, Wood.

Purdue Trounces Iowa Eleven, 13-0

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 30.—(UP)—A line that was a bit more rugged and a running attack that clicked in the pinches gave Purdue University its first Big Ten victory over Iowa today. The score was 13 to 0.

JACKETS UPSET VANDERBILT, 14-0

and said, "Come on, let's go, do you want to live forever?"

There was something of that spirit in the Tech attack. It was an attack born of desperation and sired by the bitterness of two defeats.

There was a frenzy about it which could not be resisted. It was a fight to make one want to stand and cheer as they made the great fight back from nowhere to the sunlit field of victory.

Georgia Tech scored twice in the second quarter. There were just four plays between the touchdowns. The first one came after a march had been stopped by the Commodores at their own 18.

"Now," they said in the stands, "Vanderbilt will begin."

But always there was that fighting Tech line, tearing in there with such a ferocity and intensity nothing could stand before it.

Vanderbilt started back. And once in that start, they threw those fast, rabbit-type backs at the line. But the line again took away the ball and when Sims kicked again the ball went out on the Vanderbilt 22.

Jimmy Huggins, one of the heroes of the Vanderbilt victory over L. S. U. last week, started around end. Ed Jones met him. Huggins stopped very abruptly. He forgot the law of inertia. He stopped. The ball kept going. Red Collins fell on it to give Tech the ball at the Vanderbilt 22.

Big Baby Ray, who played great football for Vanderbilt, broke up two tries at the line. And then Fletcher Sims, the Tennesseean, dropped back for Tech.

He had the ball. It lay like a huge yellow melon in his hands. Somehow, I recall that at the time there was a haze in the sun, a sort of thing harvest autumn afternoons have in them. There is in Sims something of the old accuracy of the long rifles which won Tennessee from the wilderness. He dropped back.

Bill Jordan was running. Jordan was but a few days out of the hospital. Sims had perhaps one good throw in an arm that was hurt and would respond only once.

THE BALL GAME.

Sims knew it. There was the ball game. He had one real throw. He was dropping back, looking. And then, through the light haze, he saw Bill Jordan's tall figure cut across the goal line and turn just so slightly.

There it was. One throw, one chance. He threw.

There was a rushing toward Jordan. He looked, out there in the October haze, like a tall outfielder reaching up for a high fly ball. His hands were up. The ball hit them. It stayed there.

They seemed to hang up there in the haze, his hands and the ball. And then they came down and a great crashing roar came from the crowd.

Tech had scored.

GIANT HURT.

No one then really thought Tech would win. The deadliness of the Tech attack was not even then apparent. The Vanderbilt giant was hurt. It was later, though, before he began to wilt under the persistent attack of the Tech line.

So they held their breaths as Sims dropped back. Even the soft drink vendors were silent as the ball came back. Twenty thousand people held their breaths as the ball spun back, went down and lowed his chum Pilney to Notre Dame, sneaked through the Golden Gophers' huge line for 4 yards and a touchdown in the first 10-minutes of play.

KICK IS GOOD.

Then with Halfback Jack McCarthy holding the ball, Puplis placekicked the extra point. And the big red letters on the scoreboard read: Notre Dame 7, Minnesota 0.

From there on, Notre Dame, rated a 1-2 underdog in the betting, hung on for dear life and outlasted the heavier Gophers through three-quarters of smashing play.

Minnesota executed a breath-taking double lateral-forward pass to get its touchdown in the second period.

With the ball on Notre Dame's 20-yard line, fourth down and 2 yards to go, Minnesota pulled its touchdown play. The ball was snapped to Halfback Wilbur Moore, who tossed a short lateral to Fullback Martin Christiansen, who in turn whizzed a long lateral to Halfback Harold Van Every. While these maneuvers were going on, Captain Ray King, Minnesota's right end, had raced diagonally through the Notre Dame secondary and was out in the flat zone on the opposite side when Van Every pegged a rifle-shot pass to him. King raced over standing up.

With a chance to tie the score, Minnesota failed. Coach Bernie Bierman sent in Horace Bell, negro guard, to try for the extra point. He left the field without attempting it. The Minnesota players apparently preferred George Faust, substitute quarterback, to make the attempt. When the ball was snapped, five Notre Dame linemen swarmed through, and Chuck Sweeney, Irish right end who won last week's game by tackling a Navy man in the end zone for a safety, blocked the attempt. The ball was barely off the ground when Sweeney smothered it.

After that Minnesota never crossed midfield until the last two minutes of play when a daring series of passes by Van Every held the throng spellbound as the Gophers swept from their own 12-yard line to Notre Dame's 35.

Manhattan Defeats Georgetown, 20-12

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(UP) Manhattan College, trailing, 0 to 12, at the midway mark, sprang to life in the second half today to sweep Georgetown University off its feet and take a 20-to-12 victory.

Badly outplayed in the first half, Manhattan looked like a different team in the second half. Georgetown was unable to cope with the furious drives of the boys from New York.

Eight thousand spectators were brought to their feet time after time, thrilled by the brilliant playing of Tubby Savage, Al Caruso and Vic Fusia. The three fast-stepping Manhattan backs ripped the Georgetown line to shreds in the second half.

The Jaspers piled up 14 first downs to Georgetown's five.

Golden Bears Beat Uclan Eleven, 27-14

Victor Bottari and Bob Herwig Star in Offensive Battle Before 50,000 Fans.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—(AP)—California's Golden Bears paraded through here today on their steady march to the Rose Bowl, pausing long enough to defeat the University of California at Los Angeles, 27 to 14.

A. U. C. L. A. home-coming day crowd of 55,000 saw the game. Many turned away saddened, but hardly disappointed by the inability of the belligerent Bruins to stem the onrush of the Blue and Gold from the north. Few, if any, expected an upset.

Vic Bottari scored two of the Bear touchdowns, Dave Anderson another and a brilliant reserve back, Wilbur Ingram, added the fourth when Bottari went out of the game injured.

The Uclans covered themselves with glory, even in defeat, and a tremendous cheer went to lanky Kenny Washington, negro halfback, who engineered both Bruin scores and accounted for one himself.

WEST END CARDS SPECIAL SHOOT

A special shoot, consisting of three events, has been announced for today at the West End Gun Club. The shoot will start at 9 o'clock this morning.

A large list of prizes and trophies will be awarded, including three special prizes of the club for the novice shooting the best 50-bird score, the best 50-bird score by a shooter under 18 years old, and for the best 50-bird score by a lady.

Class A will be a modified Lewis class, with any best 50-bird score posted during the day to count. Class B will be a "scratch" race with 100 targets while Class C will be a 50-bird ladies' shoot with handicaps.

Also during the shoot, colored targets will be thrown from time to time with prizes awarded for the different colors.

Northwestern Nips Wisconsin, 14 to 6

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Northwestern pushed Wisconsin from the ranks of the undefeated in Big Ten football competition today with a 14-to-6 victory before a crowd of 30,000.

Captain Don Heap, left halfback, put Northwestern in the lead midway in the first period, plunging to a touchdown from the 5-yard line after he led a drive from his own 33. Nick Conteas, quarterback, kicked the extra point from placement.

Temple Ties Holy Cross 0 to 0

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 30.—(UP)—Holy Cross and Temple University remained in the nation's undefeated class by playing to a scoreless tie at Fitton field today.

A crowd of 22,000 saw Temple repulsed twice at the Crusaders' five-yard line during the second half.

Temple again proved to be the Holy Cross jinx opponent by today's tie. Two years ago Holy Cross was knocked from the undefeated and untied class by a defeat from Pop Warner's Owls.

Temple made 10 first downs against four and gained 161 yards against 71 for Holy Cross. Holy Cross completed three passes for 31 yards against two for 10 yards for Temple.

CLEMSON BEATS DEACONS, 32 TO 0

Shad Bryant Stars for for Tigers in Home-Coming Game.

CLEMSON, S. C., Oct. 30.—(UP)—The Clemson Tigers delivered for a home-coming crowd of 4,000 today by outclassing Wake Forest, 32 to 0, to score their second Southern Conference victory.

Sophomore Shad Bryant, with two touchdown dashes in the third quarter, starred for the winners. On one of his runs, for 36 yards, he dodged several tacklers who apparently had him trapped.

Willis, McFadden and Pearson accounted for the other Clemson scores. Pearson's came on a pass from Bailey late in the game, after another toss of the same combination had placed the ball in scoring position.

Pearson kicked two extra points.

Tech Meets Clemson, Georgia Battles Florida Next Saturday

'BAMA VS. WAVE; AUBURN CLASHES WITH TENNESSEE

Louisiana Faces Mississippi State in Baton Rouge.

By JACK TROY.

The majority of Southeastern conference elevens will swing briskly into the November schedule this coming Saturday.

It will be no bed of roses, no lilac-scented path for most of them. For here is the schedule of intra-conference games for the first Saturday of final month of regular season play:

Auburn vs. Tennessee.
Alabama vs. Tulane.
Georgia vs. Florida.
L. S. U. vs. Mississippi State.
Vanderbilt vs. Sewanee.

One won't be able to put a definite finger on the outcome of any of these games except, perhaps, the last one listed. Vandy will rest up against Sewanee before tackling Tennessee the following week.

All other games scheduled this week end send Southeastern conference teams against outside opposition.

Georgia Tech tackles the burly Clemson club at Grant field, Ole Miss meets George Washington at Washington, D. C., and Kentucky takes on South Carolina at Lexington.

This is the month many coaches have been waiting for. This is the time of the year when "November teams" begin hitting on all eleven.

And it is during this month that speculation becomes rife, or ripe, regarding the prospective champion and what chance does dear old alma mammy have of being invited to the Rose Bowl (1) or Sugar Bowl (2)?

The "home" teams for the opening Saturday in November are Tennessee, Tulane, Florida (Jacksonville) L. S. U. and Vanderbilt.

MAULDIN MEETS MASKED MARVEL

The masked marvel, known throughout wrestling circles as the "Bat," defeated Red Roberts, former Illinois football star, two straight falls at the Spring Street arena Friday night, then proceeded to attack John Mauldin, the referee, the free-for-all was broken up only after the Bat had planted two haymakers to the Mauldin jaw, flooring him twice.

Mauldin challenged the "Bat" to a no-holds-barred match, to take place at this arena Monday night. The Atlanta wrestler also stated he would turn his purse over to charity if he failed to beat him and not remove his mask.

Farmer Mack, the rough Canadian wrestler, will again make his appearance on a local mat. The promoter has him matched against Jack Bloomfield, the Jewish star.

Peacock Juniors Top McCallie, 19-6

The Peacock Junior school eleven continued to keep pace with southern undefeated, untied junior teams by defeating McCallie Military Academy Juniors Saturday by a score of 19 to 6.

Early in the first quarter Herzog, Peacock's flashy quarterback and track ace, behind perfect interference eluded three McCallie backs and raced 60 yards for a touchdown.

S'Western Beats Chatanooga, 20-13

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 30.—(UP)—A perfected passing attack gave the Southwestern Lynx a 20-to-13 victory over the University of Chattanooga Moccasins today.

Approximately 5,000 spectators in shirt sleeves watched Hartwell "Kite" Morton, Lynx back, fling passes from all angles, accounting for two touchdowns.

Davidson Outscores Furman Team, 13-9

DAVIDSON, N. C., Oct. 30.—(AP) Gene McEver's Davidson Wildcats turned loose unexpected power in the final quarter here today and came from behind to defeat the Purple Hurricane of Furman University, 13 to 9, before 4,000 spectators.

Centenary Battles Maroons to Draw

Violet Rally Beats Colgate Team, 14-7

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(UP)—The New York University Violets scored late in the final period and then made a goal line stand to defeat Colgate, 14 to 7, at Yankee stadium today.

Here's Tech's Second Touchdown --- Juno Page Goes Up To Grab Pass and Score

Constitution Staff Photo—Rogers, Slayton

Just four plays separated Tech's first and second touchdowns yesterday as the Jackets defeated the Commodores, 14 to 0, in a great game. After Jordan had caught a pass to score, there were just four plays and then Juno Page, shown above, went up to grab the ball from Vandy's Preacher Franklin and run 23 yards for the touchdown. It was a great play. Page and Howard Ector, two sophomores, played fine football. This play was the knockout blow for Vandy, who came to Atlanta just about ready to buy a ticket for the Rose Bowl. (See first sports page for first touchdown.) Ector was at fullback for the first time and had had but three days of practice at the position.

War Admiral Easily Wins $15,350 Event

Unbeaten Three-Year-Old Champ Romps With Seabiscuit on Scratch List.

LAUREL PARK, Md., Oct. 30.—(UP)—America's unbeaten three-year-old champion, War Admiral, today galloped away with the $15,350 Washington handicap, and the title of the year's leading money winner, without drawing a long breath.

With dollar marks as thick as the winner's hoof prints on the big oval, the champion son of Man o' War-Brushup brought his 1937 total winnings up to $160,720 by running things his own way for 2.04 4-5 minutes over a good track.

Charles S. Howard's prized Sea Biscuit, whose victory would have blocked War Admiral from his title, was scratched this morning because of damp spots on the track.

Elimination of Sea Biscuit took much of the thrill from the feature race for the crowd of 22,000.

GRUDGE MATCH SET WEDNESDAY

Teams of Slim Bowden and Jim Wilson To Meet.

A grudge golf match extending over a period of several years will be fought Wednesday afternoon on the Druid Hills course when C. M. (Slim) Bowden and his mates meet Jimmy Wilson and his bunch.

It will be a losers-pay tourney, and a barbecue dinner will be served in the clubhouse soon after the one-day match ends.

The Wednesday match will be the final on the year's schedule at Druid Hills, and every member of the club is urged to communicate with Harry Stephens, the pro, and get assigned to one of the two teams.

Each player in the tourney will have to wear a cap, either red or blue, and the winners will wear their caps at the dinner.

Just which team will become the reds, will be decided later. The red caps appear a bit more "classy" than the blues and both team captains have asked for the "Reds."

Kerr Gets Dodo At Capital City

J. S. Kerr sank a tee shot in the 14th cup at Capital City Saturday afternoon for the 32d ace of the year on Atlanta's courses. Kerr used a No. 5 iron and played with G. D. Garner, Fred Avery and J. A. Gantt.

Last Saturday on the same green, Garner sank his tee shot for an ace.

Kerr's pitch went into the cup on the fly, while Garner's pitch last week hit a few feet from the cup and bounced in.

Sewaneee Is Upset By Tennessee Poly

SEWANEE, Tenn., Oct. 30.—(AP) Tennessee Polytechnic Institute scored an upset today to defeat the Sewanee Tigers in a close game, 9 to 6. Tech's margin came in the fourth quarter with a field goal after a third period touchdown. Sewanee tallied in the second frame.

Xavier University Defeats Clark, 27-0

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—(UP) Scoring once in each period Xavier University of New Orleans today defeated a Clark eleven from Atlanta, 27 to 0.

among A. G. Huston, A. T. Bassett, W. D. Tumlin, Keith Conway, Jackson Robertson, T. L. Reed, J. J. McConneghey, J. A. Harris Sr. and A. V. B. Gilbert, one stroke away from the winners.

F. E. Kries won the booby prize.

Another of the one-day dogfites will be played this afternoon on the No. 2 East Lake course.

Women's Tourney At Forrest Hills.

The Forrest Hills Country Club will be host to the Atlanta Women's Golf Association Wednesday, at which time the weekly one-day flag tournament will be held.

This will be the last one-day tourney of the year.

Prizes will be awarded the winner and runner-up.

The players will tee off in twosomes between 9 and 10 o'clock.

Five Share Prize In East Lake Bogey.

Five East Lake golfers shared first prize Saturday in the weekly blind bogey on the two courses. The winning score was 72. A. M. Perkerson, Alan Yates, E. L. Wight, George Fogg and C. S. Whitner had winners.

Second place was divided

Four Champs To Vie In Ansley Exhibition

Four champions—Dorothy Kirby, Southern Woman's; Jack Cook, City Amateur; Billy Caye, Atlanta Junior, and Jiroud Jones, Ansley Park Club champion—play an exhibition at 1 o'clock this afternoon on the Ansley Park course.

Kirby and Cook will play Caye and Jones. Only Dorothy is not a member of the Capital City Club.

The match will be free to the public and was arranged especially for members of the Ansley Park course.

Jackets Upset Vandy, 14 to 0

Sims' toe swung. It was exhaled in a long sibilant hiss that broke into a scream as the ball went true between the uprights and the referee waved his arms, signaling the kick was good.

They sat back. But they were hardly down before they were up again, screaming with a hysteria in which there was incredulity and joy.

Two plays had lost six yards. The kickoff had been halted at the Vanderbilt 22. One play failed, and Jimmy Huggins then lost six yards. Jimmy Brooks, of whom more anon, had tackled him.

The ball at the 28. It was third down.

Huggins got back to kick. The ball came back. Huggins, I think, tried to kick too soon. The ball fell from his anxious hands. He was frantic. He picked it up. He was like a trapped animal. The Tech players were rushing toward him. He started to run. It was the wiser choice as the loss would have been small. Just then he saw his end, McElreath, loose and far out to his, Huggins' right. It was dangerous territory out there in the flat zone but he was too frantic to consider. He threw the ball.

McElreath had seen the throw. He turned for the ball. Even as he appeared there came, probably from out of the ground, the leaping figure of Juno Page, a Tech sophomore from North Carolina.

He leaped high in the air and his hands clutched the ball. He came down running, landing inside the startled McElreath. The rest was simple. He ran 23 yards for a touchdown.

It was unbelievable. Yet it was true. The pigmy was tying the giant, David was giving Goliath a going over.

Sims kicked the point. It was 14 to 0.

The Vanderbilt magic was gone. The plays that had out-rushed L. S. U. were ineffective. The passes were no good. And the fight began to tell. The Tech forwards fought on, seeming to gain strength, like the hero of the myths, who grew stronger each time he was thrown to earth. The Vanderbilt line began to sag. Only Baby Ray and Carl Hinkle were playing football.

The seven iron men who had played all the L. S. U. game were paying the penalty. They were not iron yesterday. They were, with the exception of Ray and Hinkle, lead that could be bent.

Three times in the last half the Georgia Tech team drove back the Vanderbilt line. Once the Vanderbilt team stopped the attack at the two-foot line. Once they stopped it at the four-yard line. And once at the six.

TECH PENALTIES.

Twice officials penalized as Tech was about to score. With a little luck Tech might have won this game by at least 32 to 0.

Vanderbilt made just one threat. That was the opening one in which the Commodores drove to the Tech 13.

Jimmy Brooks, and I must get to him soon, tackled Hollins for a loss of four yards. It was at the Tech 17.

Ray Andrus, who missed three field goal tries in the L. S. U. game, tried another. It went wide.

That early rush was the high tide of the Vanderbilt attack. From then on it ebbed as the fierce fight of the Vanderbilt line and the amazing defense against passes took away the play.

Only twice thereafter did Vanderbilt get past the middle of the field. In the third quarter they went to the Tech 49 and to the Tech 32. That was all.

The game swung, perhaps, on two things—the desperate, frenzied fight of the Tech forwards and backs and the pass defense.

PASSES INTERCEPTED.

Tech intercepted six passes yesterday. One went for a touchdown. One by Dutch Konemann almost got a touchdown, taking the ball to the Vanderbilt five. Tech brought back intercepted passes, a total of 105 yards. Tech had no passes intercepted.

Out of this great defensive play there stood the figures of two sophomores—Juno Page and Howard (Bad) Ector.

Ector intercepted three passes. He was omnipresent. He was here, there and everywhere. Vanderbilt's magic couldn't get by the cold facts of rushing the passer, covering the eligible receivers and charging back the line.

They put Bert Marshall, the suave Texan, in there for a while. He tried some of his magic from behind his own goal line. It was daring stuff, skilfully executed. But Tech was too alert. Tech was not to be fooled yesterday. So alert were they the Commodores never even attempted that famous trick which beat L. S. U.

LINE GREAT.

The play of the line was magnificent. General Wood, a sophomore, played out his heart until he went out with a fractured collarbone.

They all played well. There was Jack Nixon, coming back with some fine play at guard. He was a scourge. He was down on kicks. He was rushing passers and kickers.

Rimmer played a fine game. Chivington gave all he had. They all did. Bill Jordan, back from the hospital; Jim Morgan, Ed Jones, they all played well.

Jimmy Brooks, somehow, was the outstanding lineman, although they all played so well it is hardly fair to say so. But he made the most tackles. He bobbed up here and there and was a tremendous factor in the play of the line.

I'll remember Red Collins, hurt and staggering with weariness, playing a fine game and hawking the ball so that his recovery of a fumble led to the first touchdown.

APPLEBY, TOO.

No one can forget Appleby. I recall one run when he almost scored. He gave it all he had. The Flying Dutchman, Big Konemann, came back yesterday with a fine game.

Sims was magnificent. Had he been able to pass, Tech would have scored some more. He had one good one. He made it for the first touchdown. Tech completed four of 13 passes but only one—the touchdown pass—was a real effort. Sims' hurt shoulder wouldn't let him.

The figures are not startling with just one exception. That already has been mentioned. Tech returned intercepted passes 105 yards.

Tech made only four first downs, three in the second quarter and one in the third. That is a bit unusual. Or would be except that in the last half Vanderbilt had the ball for most of the time. Vanderbilt made eight first downs, seven were earned. So, the difference was only three.

VANDY OUTGAINS.

Tech gained 142 yards from scrimmage, including passes. Vanderbilt gained 179 for an advantage. Tech gained 36 yards on four passes completed of 13 tried. Vanderbilt gained 42 yards on four completed of 15 attempted.

For Vanderbilt, Hinkle was a great player. The heat hurt him. But it hurt all players. Ray was good. The others seemed to fade. They left too much in the L. S. U. game, or else Tech's fight took it out.

And so, it came about that Tech won. It was an upset hardly to be considered. It was a great triumph for Coach W. A. Alexander and for Bobby Dodd and Mack Tharpe and the other aides. They got a team ready for a great game after two defeats, one of them a crushing one.

It was a fine bit of coaching. And the defense set was superb. Out of it all, somehow, the pleasure it brought to Alexander and his staff and team, was the finest bit of the triumph.

The road back is long and bitter. They marched it all, every league of it, to victory.

CORNELL WHIPS COLUMBIA, 14-0

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Two touchdowns in the third period, both via the air, gave Cornell its first victory since 1931 over Columbia, 14-0, on Schoellkopf field today. Twelve thousand spectators saw Peck score on a 27-yard pass play and Eichler on a 60-yard run after a pass interception. Rose converted both points.

Duke Overpowers W.&L.Generals, 43-0

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 30.—(AP) A blue-clad horde from Duke University overpowered a big but outclassed Washington and Lee football team, 43 to 0, in a Southern conference game before 5,000 spectators here today.

Coach Wallace Wade used three squads with equal effectiveness in registering the Blue Devils' fifth victory of the season and uncovered a dazzling sophomore ballcarrier in George McAfee, of Ironton, Ohio.

McAfee, a long-striding youngster with the grace and drive of a trotter, gathered in a punt late in the fourth period and streaked 88 yards for a touchdown through the entire W. & L. team in the most spectacular play of the game.

Marshall-Zaharias Grapple Here Nov. 9

Everett Marshall, recognized in 27 states as heavyweight wrestling champion of the world and George Zaharias, king of villains and one of the foremost contenders, will meet at the Atlanta theater Tuesday night, November 9, according to announcement by Matchmaker Frank Speer.

This show will see a resumption of wrestling here after a three weeks' layoff and will inaugurate a series of strictly big-time programs for Atlanta. Speer, unable to obtain the sort of talent he thought local fans deserved, decided to wait until he could lure big-time stars down this way.

"I cannot go around town and hold up my head when I put on bad shows," explained Speer. "They're going to be good or there will not be any. I assure fans that in the near future they will see many of the leading wrestlers of the world."

The Marshall-Zaharias match looms as one of the great attractions presented here in recent years. It is a match sought by promoters throughout the country and brings together two giants who are very much in the limelight. Marshall Friday night left no doubt about his superiority over Orville Brown by tossing the Missourian at Columbus, Ohio, while the big Greek, Zaharias, hasn't lost a match in more than a year.

SMITHIES BEAT COLUMBIA HIGH BY 14-7 SCORE

Pair and Plaster Star as Smithies Win Game in Columbia.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 30.—Tech High concentrated its power in two 62-yard drives to defeat Columbia High here tonight, 14 to 7, before 1,500 fans.

The mighty Smithies warded off several touchdown threats in the first half, then rallied in the third period to make an opportunity for themselves and score on it.

Pair slashed off right tackle for 24 yards behind a wave of interference for the opening touchdown in the third period.

In the final quarter, Tech High punted across the goal line and Columbia, with a baffling display of running and passing plays, swept down the field for 80 yards and a counter. Cargill passed to Owings for 9 yards and the score. Judson Roof place-kicked for the extra point.

Columbia kicked off and Tech High put on its mightiest offensive show of the contest to sweep the stalwart and stubborn Capital line aside. Plaster plunged the final yard. It was also Plaster who scored the two Smithie extra points, both by place-kicks.

Cornhuskers Stop Indiana Eleven, 7-0

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 30.—(UP) The game was only 17 seconds old, and the echo of the referee's starting whistle scarcely had died away, when Nebraska's Cornhuskers shook loose a halfback on a long touchdown run today to defeat a favored Indiana eleven, 7 to 0.

Hundreds of the crowd which later swelled to 37,000—second largest in Nebraska history—still were hunting their seats when Jack Dodd broke off left tackle, and, with three blockers clearing his way, blazed 65 yards for a score. Lowell English booted the extra point to make it 7 to 0—and that was the ball game.

The victory, achieved in amazingly warm weather for this prairie section in late October, kept Nebraska riding along with the select group of major teams which have not been defeated this year, and revived the Rose Bowl talk that flared after the Cornhuskers had opened their 1937 program with a win over mighty Minnesota.

Arkansas Defeats Texas Aggies, 26-13

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 30. (UP)—Jack Robbins, recovered from an injury, was the "old master" of a lightning-like Arkansas passing attack today which scorched the Texas Aggies with a 26 to 13 Arkansas victory.

Arkansas, with only one more conference game to play, seemed likely to repeat as Southwest conference football titlist.

Oregon State Ties Stanford Eleven, 0-0

PALO ALTO, Cal., Oct. 30.—(AP) Oregon State College and Stanford universities battled on a slippery field to a scoreless tie today in their Pacific Coast conference game before 10,000 fans.

Halfback Gray, flash of the Oregon State attack, went out of the contest early in the second period with an injured leg. With him went the power of the northern team.

Southern California Is Tied by Cougars

PULLMAN, Wash., Oct. 30.—(UP)—Washington State College's Cougars kept an alert eye on University of Southern California's sensational quarterback, Ambrose Schindler, today and held the Trojans to a scoreless tie in a Pacific Coast conference football game.

Schindler, who has been the Trojan's biggest menace this year, was kept bottled up most of the game. Only a few times was he able to get away for medium-sized gains. U. S. C. never seriously threatened to score as the Cougar line outcharged the Trojan forwards.

ROSS TO WED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Barney Ross, of Chicago, world's welterweight champion, today announced his engagement to Miss Perri Siegal, of New York. No date has been set for the wedding.

OWLS' 2 PASSES IN INITIAL HALF BEAT PLAINSMEN

Auburn Second Stringers Star in Last Two Quarters.

By ZIPP NEWMAN,

RICE INSTITUTE STADIUM, HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 30.—Two long returns of punts and two touchdown passes thrown by the bulky Earnest Lain, beat Auburn in the first half for Rice here today, 13 to 7.

The Owls shut out the starting Auburn team and then had enough in reserve to keep a courageous second team from taking the game away from them in a third period drive.

Auburn's first team was badly outplayed by the Owls. The Owls using several of their second string, were as badly outplayed in the second half as they outplayed Auburn in the first.

The Tigers beat down four scoring opportunities for the Owls before Earnest Lain, a sophomore, took charge. He beat Auburn with two passes that were worked as slick as the old shell game. He threw the first one to Frank Steen, a giant, towering at least a foot over Auburn's defense right halfback, who didn't have a ghost of a chance to bat the ball down.

Floyd Mechler took the second touchdown pass from Lain, after taking the pass from center and tossing it to Lain. The play had so much deception that he took the right side of Auburn's defensive setup by complete surprise.

George Kenmore stole the show. He punted brilliantly, he threw passes and he skirted through the line like it wasn't there. And this George Wolff took up playing tackle like Bo Russell had played until worn down. Wolff won his spurs in today's game. And the two big, strapping sophomore ends were matches for Steen and Jim Nance.

Rice's blocking was superb in the first half. They sent tanks, battleships and fortresses in front of their runners. Many times a runner would be in the open, only to be tripped or brushed into the turf by a desperate tackle. Auburn's ends couldn't stand the power that came storming in front of the ball carrier.

WOLFPACK BEATS BOSTON, 12 TO 7

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Sore-jawed Eddie Berlinski, called "little buzzer" by his North Carolina State teammates because he sounds the signal to get under way, scored both touchdowns to give the southern Wolfpack a 12-7 victory over Boston College's powerful but sluggish forces today before a 12,000 crowd.

The southerners trailed by a single point until the eleventh minute of the final quarter, when Berlinski waited clamly on his own 28 for an opening and then sped through his right guard and tackle for a 72-yard touchdown that decided the game.

VILLANOVA TRIPS DETROIT ELEVEN

DETROIT, Oct. 30.—(UP)—The University of Detroit was bumped out of the exclusive class of major undefeated college football teams today by a powerful Villanova College eleven, 7 to 0, before a Dad's Day crowd of 22,000.

Undefeated in five previous games and hopeful of a bid for one of the many "bowl" games, the Titans of Gus Dorais fiddled and fumbled away their chances for glory. A fumble only a foot from Villanova's goal in the fourth period brought the collapse of Detroit's only serious scoring threat.

Santa Clara Swamps Marquette Team, 38-0

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Santa Clara's galloping Broncos trampled a willing but inexperienced Marquette eleven from Milwaukee, 38 to 0, at Soldier field today to continue undefeated and untied. An estimated 40,000 attended.

Passes accounted for five of Santa Clara's touchdowns and an alert lineman scored the sixth.

By Wire From Knoxville---Hunnicutt Gains Three Yards for Georgia

Georgia was swamped at Knoxville yesterday, losing 32 to 0 to an alert, Tennessee eleven. The picture above, sent by Acme telephoto to The Constitution, shows Oliver Hunnicutt, of Georgia, being tackled by Perkins, of Tennessee, after a three-yard gain in the first quarter. The Bulldog running attack didn't get going at any time in the game. With wire pictures from Knoxville, Minneapolis and the Yale Bowl, plus the two touchdowns by Tech and other fine action, The Constitution again presents the best in football pictures.

Jack Troy's Running Story of Georgia-Tennessee Game at Knoxville

FIRST QUARTER.

SHIELDS-WATKINS FIELD, KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 30.—It was decidedly warm as Georgia's red-shirted Bulldogs and Tennessee's orange-shirted Volunteers sped through their warming up.

The Tennessee guards lined up and ran through their part of the Vols' famous "three out and up" play in which the tailback cuts inside end behing the blocking of the two guards, the wing and quarterback. Both guards pull out and execute a smart turn up the field, keeping in step and racing shoulder to shoulder. It's something of a puzzle as to how they get both guards out there as they do.

It began to appear that at least 15,000 would see the game, first between Tennessee and Georgia here since 1925. Harry Mehre and Major Bob Neyland were assistant coaches then.

A last-minute change in the Georgia lineup sent Oliver Hunnicutt to left half in place of Billy Mims.

TOWNS AT END.

Spec Towns was at left end in place of Maffett.

Shortly before the game the Vollettes, orange-caped young ladies of the university's drum and bugle corps, staged an attractive parade on the field.

Captains Hartman, of Georgia, and Joe Black Hayes, of Tennessee, met in the center of the field. Georgia won the toss and chose to kick, with Tennessee defending the south goal.

Young kicked to Wood on the 7, and Wood, showing a neat pair of hips, carted the ball back to the 36, Hartman stopped Wood on the first buck.

Then Wood quick-kicked over Young's head and the ball bounced over the goal. Georgia's ball, first and 10, at the 20.

Captain Hartman ran the first play for Georgia. He circled left end for 11 yards and a first down. Hendricks stopped Cavan for no gain. Hunnicutt tried to sweep right end and lost a yard.

Hartman kicked short out of bounds on the Tennessee 41.

FIVE-MAN LINE.

Georgia set up a five-man line defense and Wood failed to gain. The defense was prepared by the Bulldogs for this game and it seemed to be working rather well. Wood got a yard on a cutback as Towns tackled.

Wood kicked and Young fair-caught the ball at the Georgia's 25. The Tennessee blockers were at some loss as to just who to block on Georgia's 5-3-2-1 setup.

Hunnicutt bored center for 2 yards. Then Hartman kicked to Wood, who returned 11 yards to his 36.

Tennessee called time out to talk things over. Wood skirted left end for 7. Tinsley and Hartman stopped him. Wood tried the other end and ran 12 yards to the Georgia 47.

Wood cut loose a flat pass to Duncan and it was good for 18 yards and put the ball on the 27. Perkins got 2 at the line.

VOLS PENALIZED.

Tennessee was penalized 15 for holding and the ball was moved back to the 44. Wood ran off tackle for 12 yards and a first and 10 at the 32.

Wood flung another pass and Duncan caught it in the clear and ran to the Georgia 3, where he was run out of bounds by Cavan.

Wood bucked over for a touchdown, and Herring, with Wood holding the ball, kicked the extra point.

Tennessee 7; Georgia 0.

Rodenberry replaced Young. Wood kicked and Rodenberry returned 14 yards to the 28. Cavan spun off left tackle for 9 yards.

Hunnicutt took the ball and ran off right tackle for 10 yards. It was a first and 10 at the 47.

Georgia seemed to be detecting a bit of a weakness at the Vol flanks.

FIVE AND TAKE.

Tennessee set up a five-man line, too. It was a case of five and take. But Georgia gained running. Cavan ran off left tackle for 9 more yards. But Hunnicutt lost 4 on a spinner.

Captain Hartman took the ball and circled left end for a first down at the Vols' 41. Cavan lost 2 when Captain Hayes smashed through and stopped him. Georgia called time.

Cate, Mims and Fordham went into the Georgia backfield for Cavan, Hunnicutt and Captain Hartman.

Tennessee was off side as Mims passed incomplete. The ball was at the 31. It was third and inches for a first down.

Fordham ran off tackle for the first down at the 29, Georgia's march had been steady and remorseless. Mims, however, tried a pass down the middle and it was too high. Eight Tennessee players warmed up on the side lines.

Georgia was penalized 5 for off side. Cates lost 10 yards as Hendricks broke through. The ball was at the Vols' 39 as the quarter ended.

Tennessee 7; Georgia 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Fordham gained 6 at the right side of the line, but it was fourth and 14 and the march was ended as Mims kicked out of bounds at the 24.

Cafego quick-kicked and the ball rolled out of bounds at the Georgia 18. He had just come into the game for Wood, Tennessee's Babe in the Wood.

BALL ON 10.

Cate cut up the sideline for 2 yards. But Georgia was penalized 15 for roughing and the ball was at the 10.

Mims tried a pass standing on his goal line, but was incomplete. Mims kicked and Cafego ran the ball back 12 yards to the Georgia 39.

Cafego cut off left tackle on that three-out-and-up maneuver and ran 20 yards to the 19. Then Cafego threw a touchdown pass to Eldred, who was in the clear over the goal line.

Tennessee 13; Georgia 0.

Wyatt kicked to Cate, who got the ball back to the 22. Mims tried to run around right end and Eldred threw him for a loss of 6 yards. Georgia called time.

Georgia drew 5 yards for excessive time out.

On a fake kick, Cate ran 5 yards. Mims went back to kick, it went out on the Georgia 34. A short kick.

Cafego, the wing-heeled sophomore, ran on that three-out-and-up play and the guards led him through for a gain of 14 to the 21. Cafego passed and Barnes caught it at the 8. Georgia's pass defense was taking it on the chin.

BAD SNAP.

There was a terrible center snap and Cafego recovered the ball back on the 24. That was a real break.

But, Cafego came right back, swept wide around left end and ran to the Georgia 7 where Mims finally got him. Tinsley and Troutman went back into the game for Georgia.

Barnes took the ball on a reverse and cracked the line for 3 yards. And so on fourth down, Cafego tried a pass; it fell incomplete and Georgia had the ball at the 20.

There was great play. Hartman led Cate around right end and the gain was 20 yards. Mims passed. But again it was incomplete.

Mims ran off tackle and stumbled. The gain was 3 yards.

Mims again passed and Miller, in the game for Georgia, couldn't catch up with it.

Cafego received Hartman's kick, fumbled, recovered and got back five yards to the Tennessee 27.

LUMPKIN OUT.

Milner replaced Lumpkin at center for Georgia.

Harp went into the game for Cafego. He faked a pass and ran to the Tennessee 41, where Tinsley ran him out.

Tennessee was penalized five for offside.

Harp ran again. He ran around left end to the Georgia 45. But the ball was called back and Georgia drew a five-yard penalty.

Barnes gained three on a buck. And the elusive Harp ran again. He made it a first and 10 at the Georgia 46. Tennessee was penalized five for offsides.

Harp tried a pass. It was no good. Harp went back and ran again, but this time the blocking was faulty and Hartman and Cate stopped him after a gain of two yards. Hendricks replaced Wyatt at end for Tennessee. Harp passed again. It was a touchdown pass. It went some 40 yards and Eldred, catching it, ran nine more to score. Barnes' kick was no good.

Tennessee 19; Georgia 0.

MIMS PASSES.

After the kickoff, which Mims carted back to the 27, Mims started firing passes. His first one was incomplete. More Tennessee subs came into the game. He passed again and Harp intercepted. He was hauled down at the Georgia 47.

Harp ran again behind a bevy of interference. It was a gain of 21 yards to the Georgia 24. Coffman smashed the middle for three.

Tennessee 26; Georgia 0.

Georgia called time after the next kickoff. Cavan had got the ball back to the 28. Georgia lost five yards for excessive time out. Mims tried a reverse pass and Rice intercepted almost at midfield as the half ended.

Tennessee 26; Georgia 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

Following the kickoff, Cafego quick-kicked and the ball was dead at the Georgia 8. Hartman went back and ran with the ball after Hunnicutt gained 2. He made 5.

Hartman kicked to Wood. He was smashed down after returning 8. The ball was exactly in midfield.

Duncan raced around right end got 43 yards on a great run. Only Cate was able, finally, got him at the Georgia 7. Hunnicutt was injured and Holland replaced him.

Then Duncan carried the ball on an offtackle smash to the Georgia 3.

WOOD AGAIN.

Wood tried a cutback through the middle. He was stopped at the 8 as Georgia took the ball away. It was a dtermined stand. The Georgia players were fighting.

Hartman passed to Cavan for a gain of 15 yards. It was at the 17. Cavan got a yard at the line. Cavan gained 3 more.

Georgia was penalized 5 yards for delaying the game, so the official ruled. Little tossed Cavan for no gain. It was fourth and about 10.

Hartman kicked. Wood took it at his 45 and returned to Georgia's 46.

Duncan cut off tackle for 8 yards. Duncan took it again and got 4 and a first down at the 32. Perkins picked up 5 on a spinner. Wood cut back through the middle and ran 7. It was another first down. The ball was at the 20.

DUNCAN GAINS.

Duncan picked up 1 and 6 yards on two runs. Tennessee called time out for water. It was somewhat hot down there. The Vols had been two-teaming the Bulldogs, in a sense, however, and had plenty in reserve.

Wood fumbled and Cavan recovered at the Georgia 4. Again the Bulldogs had taken the ball away at the goal. There was a fake kick. Holland lost 2 yards on the run.

Hartman passed to Miller. The gain was 13 yards, putting the ball on the 15. Hartman lost a yard trying to circle right end.

Tennessee was penalized 5 for offside. On a half spinner, Holland was nailed for a 2-yard loss. Hartman passed and Cafego intercepted it at midfield and ran 13 to the Georgia 37 as the quarter ended.

Tennessee 26; Georgia 0.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Cafego passed to Wyatt for a first down at the 24. Cafego carried and the gain was 7 yards. Georgia had quit using the five-man line. So had Tennessee.

Cafego made it a first and 10 at the Georgia 11. Georgia called time. Cafego gained three on another run. There was a neat running pass, Cafego to McCarran, for 7 yards and a touchdown.

Rodenberry was hurt as he tackled McCarran on the goal line. Cafego's kick failed.

Tennessee 32; Georgia 0.

After the kickoff, Fordham ran 15 to the Georgia 41. Cate swung around left end and put the ball in midfield.

MORE RESERVES.

More Tennessee reserves came in. Hodge replaced McCarran, who caught the touchdown pass. Georgia drew another penalty for excessive time. Mims passed incomplete.

Mims tried to pass, was rushed and threw the ball over the receiver's head.

Mims passed again and again it was no good. Tennessee took the ball over on the Georgia 45.

Coffman punched center for 5 yards. Cafego kicked out of bounds at the Georgia 24.

Mims ran all the way across the field for no gain.

Georgia's finest gain of the game came next. Cate swung wide around left end and ran to the Tennessee 39. A fine run of 37 yards. Mims tried two passes. Both were incomplete.

Tennessee persistently pushed the passer and hounded the receivers. Mims kicked out of bounds at the Tennessee 7. More Tennessee subs. Will they never run out?

Cafego got a big hand as he left the game.

QUICK KICK.

Bacon, a new man, meant to bring it home on a 5-yard smash at the line. Snead quick-kicked. Young got it and returned 11 to the 36.

Ehrlich replaced Cate for Georgia.

Mims passed and this time it was ruled complete because of interference. Ehrlich was trying to get it. The ball was at the Tennessee 47.

There was a loss and then a gain by Cate. Mims tried to pass and lost some 15 yards on fourth down. The ball went to Tennessee at the Georgia 40.

Tennessee was penalized 5 for too much time in the huddle. Snead was run out of bounds after gaining 5 as the game ended.

VOL BACKS ROUT GEORGIA, 32 TO 0

was given a chance to shine on pass receiving and accounted for two of the touchdowns after steady Tennessee advances. Wood, Harp and Bill McCarran made the other touchdowns.

There was one in the first quarter, three in the second quarter, none in the third and the final one in the fourth period.

Tennessee's manner of blocking, combined with the speed of the three alternating stars—Wood, Cafego and Harp—left Georgia a baffled but fighting force.

THREE-OUT-AND-UP.

A tricky off-tackle smash—called the three-out-and-up—was one of Tennessee's best gaining plays. Two guards wheeled out for interference and the wingback and quarterback lent a hand. The running back would go three steps out and cut up the field. The remaining back was left to block also.

Trick passes off the same formation were virtually unstoppable. Georgia ends smashed, but the ball carrier almost always managed to elude the end because of the way his blockers worked in his behalf.

Tennessee always manages to see red when playing the Georgia Bulldogs. And it's not because of the color of their shirts, either.

Georgia players fought their hearts out in this game. But the odds were overwhelming. They couldn't stop the passes and that off-tackle smash cutback play over center was ruinous.

Tennessee had the power, with a smaller line. To pave the way.

CATE STARS.

Vassa Cate, the fleet Georgia sophomore, did Georgia's most spectacular running. He made runs of 20 and 37 yards with Captain Bill Hartman supplying the needed blocking.

But outside of that and, as said, a couple of drives that bogged down, Georgia never really threatened to cross the Volunteers' goal line.

The figures shed a bit of light on the matter. Tennessee earned 14 firstdowns to Georgia's nine. Tennessee threw nine passes and completed seven of them for a gain of 145 yards and three out of the five touchdowns. Georgia threw 14 passes and completed three for a total of 45 yards.

Net yards gained rushing showed Tennessee with 196 and Georgia with 145. Total yardage favored Tennessee, 241 yards to 191.

It was a sort Halloween preview that Tennessee put on this afternoon, with Wood, Cafego and Harp, Orange, Wraiths on a Gray-ing gridiron, playing the roles of goblins.

Tennessee didn't do it with mirrors, hidden ball tricks or any other form of trickery. Georgia could see very well what was going on, but stopping it was another matter altogether.

Tennessee started out, first of all, after sparring with Georgia's five-man line, by taking the ball on its own 36 in the first quarter and driving, by land and air, 64 yards to a touchdown. Wood, Tennessee's babe in the wood, passed twice to Cheek Duncan for gains of 18 and 29 yards, respectively. And after this weapon had worked the ball down to the 3, Wood smashed the line for the score, Melvin Herring kicked extra point.

The Vols were some time scoring again, but in the second quarter they got themselves together and went 39 yards for the second touchdown.

Cafego ran a punt back from midfield to the Georgia 39. He promptly set out on that three out and up proposition and was at the 20 before he was brought down.

Only one more play was needed for the touchdown. He shot one 19 yards to Eldred, who was in the clear.

A bit later Cafego ran and passed the Vols to the Georgia 8. The Bulldogs took the ball.

The next touchdown drive was a spectacular thing. Harp had come into the game for Cafego and it all started on the Tennessee 27. Harp ran to the 41 and then to the 51.

And without any further ado, Harp made as if to run one of those clever fake pass or run plays—hit and run, guys, that's what they were. He fired a 40-yard pass to Eldred, who made a nifty catch and ran 9 yards to score.

The fourth touchdown also was brought about by this fiddling Harp, a mite of a back who runs like a wraith.

There was an intercepted pass at the Georgia 47. And, with very little help in gaining ground, Harp twice cut loose on 21-yard dashes. He scored on the second one.

Well, sir, the Bulldogs battled back and there was no scoring in the third period. Twice Georgia took the ball away virtually on the goal line.

In the closing seconds of the third quarter, Cafego intercepted a Georgia pass and ran it back some 13 yards to the Georgia 37.

The Tennesseeans kept the attack going as the fourth period opened. Cafego shot a pass to Bowden Wyatt for a first down at the 24. And then ran the ball to the 11. He ran again. And the ball was at the 7. A running pass followed, Cafego hitting McCarran on the goal line for the final touchdown.

Seldom do you see a fellow who did as much for one team as did this Cafego for Tennessee today without ever once crossing the goal line himself.

Wood and Harp both got touchdowns, of course, and they were not quite on a par with Cafego, the candy kid.

The five-man line business was abandoned by both clubs after the game had turned so decisively in Tennessee's favor.

Captain Hartman led Georgia in a courageous fight. But it wasn't in the cards for Georgia to win or even come close.

Coach Mehre praised the great offensive work of Jim Fordham and the second-half play of Pete Tinsley.

SECOND WIN.

It was Tennessee's second victory in the conference, Georgia's first start and first loss in conference competition.

The Bulldogs engage Florida next. A sell-out is reported for the game at Jacksonville next Saturday. Georgia will face no two-teaming there. The two-teaming Tennesseeans may well go on from here to make trouble for all the rest of the foes on the schedule.

For Bob Neyland's boys seem, at long last, to have discovered just what it's all about.

Greenie Back Scores Winning Marker in Final Period.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—(AP) Tulane University pitted a superior running attack against a weak ground game and erratic aerials today and defeated the University of Mississippi, 14 to 7, in a Southeastern conference game. Tulane kept her conference slate free from losses, having been tied by Auburn, while the second loop loss was marked up for Ole Miss.

Buddy Banker, brother of the great Billy Banker, a Tulane hero of 1928-29, was the star in Tulane's superior ground game, with "Honest John" Andrews, substituting at fullback, running him a close second with line smashes when short gains for first downs were needed.

Tulane assigned two men to take care of the marvelous "Bruiser" Kinard, the Ole Miss captain and candidate for All-American honors at right tackle, and he had a comparatively bad afternoon. The right end, Ralph Wenzel and Billy Payne, the Tulane Green Wave right halfback, kept Kinard pretty well boxed. The Ole Miss tackle managed to get nine of his team's 45 tackles. Tulane avoided Kinard largely but did manage to send four plays through his position, one of them for a short gain at an opportune time.

Western Reserve Finally Checked

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 30. (AP)—A blond, 161-pound sophomore halfback from Philadelphia, speedy Jack Padley, pushed Western Reserve off the peak of football fame here today as Dayton University beat the Red Cats 18 to 6 to end the Cleveland club's unbeaten streak at 28.

The victory ran Dayton's string of victories to 8, six of them being scored this year.

A crowd of 12,000, the largest ever to witness a game in Dayton, sat spellbound as the Flyers tossed caution to the winds and opened a first-period barrage which netted two touchdowns, both by Padley.

PITT CONQUERS CARNEGIE TECH

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 30.—(UP) In a wild game of fumbles, a blocked kick and passes the University of Pittsburgh won a 25-to-14 victory over its home-town foe, Carnegie Tech, today to gain the 1937 Pittsburgh city football championship.

A crowd of 37,500 saw Pitt's goal line crossed for the first time this season. For a few minutes in the second period, Pitt trailed by a point until the toe of Frank Souchak booted a placement kick from the 25-yard line to put the Panthers in the lead.

Score by periods:

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Pitt | 6 | 3 | 9 | 7—25 |
| Tech | 0 | 7 | 0 | 7—14 |

Pitt scoring touchdowns: Patrick 2; Spotovich. Goal from field—Souchak. Converted point after touchdown: Souchak 2. Safety: Lee, Carnegie Tech.

Crackers Seek Jimmy Hitchcock

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 30.—The Atlanta Crackers are figuring on entering into negotiations with the New York Yankees relative to securing the services of Jimmy Hitchcock, infielder and former Auburn star, it was learned here today.

Hitchcock, here scouting for Auburn, admitted he had talked with President Earl Mann on the subject. And said that he hoped something would come of it. "I certainly would like to land with the Crackers," he said.

Hitchcock played with Oakland in the Pacific Coast league last season. He had a good year. He started out as a shortstop and played third in 1937.

Army Turns Back V. M. I. Cadets, 20-7

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Army rode out of the trenches of a hard battle with a last-half offensive today to crush the Virginia Military Institute, "the Little West Point of the South," 20-7, before a sellout throng of 27,000 spectators at Michie stadium.

URBAN LEAGUE

By JESSE O. THOMAS.

The purpose of the Bulletin is to chronicle the worthwhile things done for, by, and with the negro, as a basis of increasing inter-racial goodwill and understanding.

The labor institute, or workers' council which is scheduled to be held under joint auspices of the National Urban League, the Atlanta Urban League and the workers' council, promises to be one of the most provocative discussion groups ever assembled in the city.

There are a great many cross currents surging through the orthodox labor organizations which promise important changes in the technique and methodology of organized labor in its approach to management. The conflict ensuing between the AFL and CIO simply represents a small element of these cross currents.

Labor Problem.

Whatever shall be the program of organized labor in the immediate future, as well as in the indefinite future, it is important that the clear-thinking element of both wage-earning groups, white and colored, shall be intelligent with regard to what is going on in either camp. If the more sane and constructive element in the two groups fails to establish working relationships and build up attitudes of interracial goodwill, it will be left to the less intelligent and responsible groups to promote and encourage efforts and enterprises calculated to undermine our established order.

In order that sanity and intelligence might lead the way, the National Urban League is promoting these labor institutes in different parts of the nation. The best informed and most prominent labor leaders and students of organized labor, white and colored, are being sought as speakers and discussion leaders for this institute, which will be held October 30 through the 31st at the First Congregational church.

Following the advice of his physician, Executive Secretary J. H. McGrew, of the Butler Street Y. M. C. A., is retiring from active duties in order to give himself a chance to completely recover from a condition which has threatened to undermine his health for the past two or three years. His resignation was tendered to take effect as of October 15.

Secretary McGrew has completely remade the Butler Street "Y" from the point of view of physical environment. At no time since the day the building was first opened has it presented a more sanitary and wholesome environment than it does at the present time. It has been repainted and redecorated throughout.

Born in Shelbyville.

Secretary McGrew was born in Shelbyville, Tenn., and received his early education in the public schools of his home town. He later entered Tuskegee Institute, from which he received a diploma and trade certificate, specializing in tailoring.

He took a special course at the Y. M. C. A. secretarial school at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and the Eastern Association school at Silver Bay, N. Y. In addition he took a course in social psychology at Columbia University, New York city.

His first employment after graduating from Tuskegee was as field secretary of Tuskegee in the northwest. He later taught tailoring and was dean of men at St. Paul's school, Lawrenceville, Va. He also began work with the "Y" as a volunteer. It was while he served in this capacity that he met Hattie Smith, who was dean of women, who later became his wife.

He has been connected with the "Y" for 25 years and among others has held the following positions with that organization:

First Colored Secretary.

Secretary in charge of the largest industrial Y. M. C. A. building in Buxton, Iowa, with interracial membership, for four years. He was the first colored state secretary of the Y. M. C. A. movement with headquarters in Virginia. He held this job for six years; for 13 years he was associate regional executive in the national council with 11 states under his jurisdiction. While serving in this capacity he either organized or reorganized branches in the cities of Lynchburg, Roanoke and Norfolk, Va.; Winston-Salem, N. C.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Columbus, Ga., and New Orleans, La.

He also organized interracial committees in some 70 of the 100 counties in the state of Virginia. He organized interracial groups after the World War. After serving as personnel officer in the state of Virginia, he was borrowed from the state to organize the interracial program.

Two years ago he was elected executive secretary of the Butler Street Y. M. C. A., of Atlanta, Ga. What he has done in Atlanta is characteristic of the type of work done and service rendered in all of the capacities and relationships where he has been given the responsibility and opportunity.

He claims his early inspiration to render service came from observation of and contact with Booker T. Washington, the sage of Tuskegee.

In Birmingham, Ala., a few days ago a negro janitor by the name of Edward Wilson died in a church in which he had worked for 43 years. Funeral services were held in this church with the pastor, Rev. W. A. Alexander, officiating. A large number of negroes among whom he had lived for 60 years occupied pews in the church. A large number of white people who were communicants in the church in which he had worked for 43 years were also listed among the mourners. Flowers were sent by members of both races. The deacons and elders of the church were pallbearers.

DISABLED TANKER DUE.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 30.—(AP)—The disabled American tanker Gulflight, which since Thursday has been in tow of the coastguard cutter Modoc and the tanker Gulbelle, will arrive off Cape Henry tomorrow about noon, a wireless message received from the Modoc this afternoon said.

DOHERTY TAKES 2 HOTELS.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Plans for operation by Colonel Henry L. Doherty of two resort hotels in Palm Beach were announced today. The hotels, the Palm Beach Biltmore and the Whitehall, will be opened January 10.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

Jean Harlow in 'Suzy' on Screen At Rialto Theater by Fans' Demand

Manager W. T. Murray, of the Rialto theater, has received innumerable requests for a return engagement of another picture starring the late Jean Harlow. This week he has responded by showing "Suzy," considered by many critics the finest performance ever given by the glamorous platinum star.

In "Suzy" Miss Harlow is supported by two young leading men who have climbed to the top of their profession, Franchot Tone and Cary Grant. Also in the cast, one of those exceptionally fine M.-G.-M. selections, are Lewis Stone, Benita Hume, Reginald Mason, Inez Courtney, Una O'Connor, etc. George Fitmaurice directed the production.

The rare artistry that was the gift of Miss Harlow is displayed to perfect advantage in "Suzy." It is the story of a girl in London and, later, in France, who at first believes she is accused of murder and who later finds herself with two husbands, the innocent practitioner of bigamy

Such a situation calls for the utmost in acting ability and Miss Harlow reveals, in this role at any rate, that she added to her glorious beauty a very real histrionic gift.

The romance, while not a war story, is told against a background of war conditions and it is circumstances resulting from that conflict which make possible the startling and dramatic climax that comes at the end of a picture packed with thrill situations.

With clever short subjects completing a program that is entertaining from start to finish, "Suzy" will remain on the Rialto screen for the full seven-day week, closing its run next Thursday night.

Sailor and Marine Film 'Riot,' 'Live, Love, Learn' at Loew's Grand

The ancient rivalry between gobs and marines needs but little to institute a riot anywhere, and in Central Park the opponents hit upon an unusual excuse—that is, a picture an artist is painting. Robert Montgomery is the artist, and Ronsalind Russell is his wife, in "Live, Love and Learn," at Loew's Grand theater.

A passing sailor observes Montgomery's canvas and remarks that it's terrible; a passing marine overhears the gob's opinion and counters with his own—the picture's great! Other sailors gather; other marines. They fight to decide which judgment is correct.

All of which is very disconcerting to the painter. It's most amusing to newshawks who happen on the scene, and write stories about the critical combat between sailors and marines. The newspaper accounts arouse an interest in the painting which instigated the battle. On the strength of the publicity, Montgomery gets a chance to display his work.

And it's good work. His wife, a smart society girl, realized this in the beginning. She fell in love and married the painter, confident that eventually he would be famous—and in the meanwhile, she was very happily in love. The wife's confidence in her husband is justified — the critics praise Montgomery's pictures, and his prosperity is assured.

But sudden success threatens to upset romance. Especially when Helen Vinson, attracted by the painter and his popularity, attempts to oust the wife. How the marriage is saved, and how Montgomery's pal (Robert Benchley) plays Cupid, is told in "Live, Love and Learn" in hilarious style, making this at once a shrewdly understanding domestic drama and a film rich in gay and very human understanding.

Comedy, Many Song Hits, Drama and Romance on Atlanta Screens

Erroll Flynn in his first modern dress role since "Green Light"—and Joan Blondell in "The Perfect Specimen," which opened at the Fox theater Friday. Erroll is the perfect answer to a maiden's prayer.

Another story of the gridiron is to be presented movie fans of Atlanta by Van Heflin and Mirian Marsh in "Saturday's Heroes," opening at the Capitol theater today. It's a modern version.

Robert Young, Rosiland Russell and Robert Benchly, principal stars in "Live, Love and Learn," at Loew's Grand theater. It's a scintillating comedy interspersed with domestic drama of the modern era.

"This Way Please," means just that at the Paramount theater this week. "Buddy" Rogers and blonde Betty Grable lend color, excitement and romance to this laughable production. It opened Friday.

Modern College Gridiron Film Comes to the Capitol Screen

Life on the American college campus shows a gradual change each year, and according to a recent issue of a national magazine has made a complete revolution since writers like George Ade, in the '90s, and F. Scott Fitzgerald in the post-war '20s, started to glorify the American undergraduate in fiction.

The day of John Held Jr.'s "flapper," as another instance, has passed as definitely as the day of the turtleback sweaters, monogrammed pipes and handlebar moustaches.

The movies, which have contributed college stories regularly each fall for the last 10 years, have, however, kept abreast of the changes, and each year has found advancement on the screen to correspond with the changes in life.

In "Saturday's Heroes," the screen's new contribution to views of the college scenes and which opens a week's engagement today at the Capitol theater, the characters are as modern as the situations the film depicts. They speak a different language than their predecessors, and they are involved in difficulties that would have been beyond mention 10 years ago. For the subject of the film is professionalism in college sport, and though this in itself may be an old topic, public discussion of the evil is a trend as timely as a streamlined train.

Van Heflin and Marian Marsh have the leading roles in the picture and others in the cast include Richard Lane, Alan Bruce, Al St. John and others.

Music is to be offered by Enrico Leide's Capitolians.

In accordance with the directions in his will, the ashes of George Herbert Bennett, surgeon in Gerrigong, New South Wales, have been buried secretly 10,000 miles from the scene of his death.

"Suzy," one of the outstanding triumphs of Jean Harlow's screen career is again on the screen at the Rialto theater. It opened Friday. Franchot Tone is the leading male actor with a large supporting cast.

WAR FEATURE LISTED AT FAIRVIEW THEATER

"Last Train From Madrid," with Lew Ayres and Dorothy Lamour, will be the feature attraction today and tomorrow at the Fairview theater. Red and Raymond, radio stars, will be on the stage for three performances.

Tuesday will bring "History Is Made at Night," starring Jean Arthur and Charles Boyer. "Ghost Town," with Harry Carey, is scheduled for Wednesday.

Simone Simon and James Stewart will be seen in "Seventh Heaven," Thursday and Friday. "Get Along Little Dogies" is the feature for Saturday.

RUSSIAN BALLET TO APPEAR HERE

The famous Mordkin Russian Ballet will appear at the Erlanger theater for two performances on the nights of November 17 and 18, it was announced yesterday by the Alkahest Celebrity Bureau.

This company is composed of 10 artists, many of whom are of international fame, including a symphony orchestra. Their Atlanta engagement promises to be one of the outstanding musical and terpsichorean treats of the season.

The performance here will include the world premier production of the widely discussed Tcherepnine 3 act ballet, "Giselle," which is the first production of this ballet in a generation, as well as the first world production on any stage tour of the famous "The Goldfish."

Comedy, Romance 'This Way Please' Delights Paramount Film Audiences

A smash musical comedy goes to the head of the class among Paramount's successes for the year with the release of that hilariously funny comedy-romance, "This Way, Please," which opened Friday at the Paramount theater.

The picture marks the screen debut of Mary Livingstone, Jack Benny's Mary, to be exact, whose infectious laugh has endeared her to millions of radio fans these several years. Also seen for the first time on the screen are Fibber McGee and Molly, who are Jim and Marion Jordon in real life. Their antics serve to enliven one of the most spontaneously delightful musicals ever to flit merrily across the screen.

"This Way, Please," also brings to its cast Charles "Buddy" Rogers, more romantically known to the public as Mary Pickford's "Buddy," and sparkling, vivacious Betty Grable, as well as the perpetually sour-pussed comedian, Ned Sparks; Lee Bowman, the up-and-coming young player who scored in "I Met Him in Paris," "The Last Train From Madrid," and "Sophie Lang Goes West," a quartet of laugh getters in Rufe Davis, Romeo Vincent, Wally Vernon, and Jerry Bergen—these, plus a chorus of very lovely lovelies trained by Leroy Prinz for the stage dance routines.

The story concerns the troubles of a theater manager who has on his hands Rogers, band leader, and idol of millions of fluttering feminine hearts; Ned Sparks, an enterprising press agent whose loony ideas for romance and publicity provide plenty of manager's headaches and much fun, and Mary Livingstone as the head usherette who is out to marry the press agent.

Betty Grable, an out-of-work singer and dancer, gets a job as usherette and immediately falls under the spell of Rogers. Sparks capitalizes on the romance and Rogers immediately quits his job. This gives Betty her chance for starring. Rogers plans his revenge by proposing to Betty—arranging a stage ceremony, bringing in the capacity audience and then failing to show up for his wedding.

Lee Bowman, the stage manager, who loves Betty, steps into the opening, but not until the audience has had some mighty good entertainment from Fibber McGee and Molly, Mary Livingstone and the comedy quartet. At the crucial moment Rogers flies down the aisle, shoves Bowman from Betty's side and takes his place as the groom.

Errol Flynn in Film at the Fox, 'Perfect Specimen,' With Blondell

Errol Flynn, the young Irish actor who skyrocketed to motion picture fame with his performance in "Captain Blood," is co-starred with Joan Blondell this week at the Fox theater in Warner Brothers' "Perfect Specimen."

Previewers have said the show is one of the better laugh-and-thrill photoplays with Edward Everett Horton and May Robson supplying wisecracks.

The story deals with an eccentric old lady possessed of many millions who has an ambition to see her grandson raised as an altogether perfect young man, and who for that reason supplies him with an abundance of tutors but keeps him confined to the limits of the family's vast estate.

A young village girl—Joan Blondell—manages to break into the virtual prison and meet the young man. She succeeds in getting him outside of his bounds, and he begins to understand and love the world without.

That gives you a general idea of the possibilities of the story. It was written by Samuel Hopkins Adams, who authored "It Happened One Night," and was adapted into screen form by the quartet of Norman Reilly Raines, Lawrence Riley, Brewster Morse and Fritz Falkenstein. Michael Curtiz was the director. Mike is the same man who guided Flynn through "Captain Blood" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

Others in the cast include Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, Beverly Roberts, Dick Foran and Dennie Moore.

This is Errol Flynn's first essay at out-and-out comedy, and he is said to be excellent.

'BULLDOG EDITION' TO SHOW AT LIBERTY

The Liberty opens its movie program with Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette in "Rootin', Tootin' Rhythm," today and tomorrow.

Ray Walker and Evalyn Knapp, star in "Bulldog Edition" Tuesday and Wednesday, plus the tenth chapter of "Custer's Last Stand."

"Two-Gun Law," starring Charles Starrett and Peggy Stratford, plays Thursday and Friday, also the fourth chapter of "The Clutching Hand." Conway Tearle and Margaret Morris take the leads in "Desert Guns," and the sixth chapter of "S O S Coast Guard."

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

ZIEGFELD FOLLIES SCHEDULED HERE

Three Performances Listed at Erlanger Theater.

Not excepting such numerously populated and prodigiously panoplied productions as the Al Jolson series, "Student Prince" and several Passing Shows, the Messrs. Shubert have never before sent on tour a larger or more opulent attraction than Ziegfeld Follies, which will hold forth at the Erlanger theater for two nights and Saturday matinee, beginning Friday, November 19.

The complete production that served the current edition of the famous extravaganza during the run that ran over into two sermons at the New York Winter Garden will be seen here.

Four double-length railroad baggage cars are required to transport paraphernalia, while an equal number of Pullmans are provided for accommodation of the company.

More than 100 persons are included in the entourage. In the tradition of the late great Ziegfeld the most effulgent of the luminaries are the 75 or more "glorified girls." Lovely creatures to titillate the visual senses are the very vertabrae of the Ziegfeld hallmark.

Among the featured players are Dr. Rockwell, Sibyl Bowen, Cherry and June Preisser, Hugh Cameron, Enrica & Novello, James Farrell, Boy Foy, Ben Yost's Varsity 8 and the daring Marian Martin.

When Florenz Ziegfeld passed on there were those who doubted the ability of a successor to carry on the work of the master. With the vast experience and resources at their command the Shuberts accepted the challenge. The result has made theatrical history.

RUBBISH YIELDS GOLD.

The American Smelting & Refining Company, in San Francisco, as highest bidder, purchased the sweepings from the San Francisco mint and extracted metal valued to the extent of $16,000. The mint's rubbish contained gold, silver, nickel and platinum particles.

Appears Here With Ziegfeld Follies

Yvonne Dennis, who is scheduled to appear in Atlanta at the Erlanger theater, November 19 and 20 with Ziegfeld Follies, the first musical comedy offering of the 1937 fall season here. She is a premiere dancer.

'ANGEL'S HOLIDAY' BILLED AT EMPIRE

'Blonde Trouble' Is Scheduled for Tuesday.

Both stage and screen join in making today and tomorrow gala days in the way of entertainment at the Empire theater, corner of Georgia avenue and Crew street. The screen offering will be that delightful little Atlanta personality star, Jane Withers, in her latest movie, "Angel's Holiday." The stage will offer two performances daily of Jessie Reese and her "Follies" in song, dance and patter.

The heartaches and headaches of a young songwriter in love are vividly brought to the screen in Tuesday's comedy, "Blonde Trouble," with a cast headed by Eleanore Whitney, Johnny Downs, Terry Walker and Lynne Overman. Kipling's colorful characters live glamorously, adventurously and courageously on adventure's last frontier in "Wee Willie Winkie," the feature for Wednesday and Thursday, starring Shirley Temple and Victor McLaglen. From the heart of mighty India, where the British raj ends at Khyber Pass, in the land of the Bengal lancers, comes this glorious adventure of the Scottish highlanders in action and of the little girl who won the right to wear their plaid.

Friday's offering will be "It's All Yours," a romantic comedy starring Madeleine Carroll and Francis Lederer. Dick Foran promises plenty of action and trick riding in "Blazing Sixes," billed for Saturday.

Pat O'Brien at Cameo

Pat O'Brien, who will be seen with Henry Fonda and Margaret Lindsay in "Slim" on the screen at the Cameo theater tomorrow and Tuesday.

'WINGS OF MORNING' LISTED AT CASCADE

'The Midnight Madonna' on Screen Next Tuesday.

Today and tomorrow the Cascade theater offers "Wings of the Morning" in natural technicolor, with Henry Fonda, Leslie Banks, John McCormick and Annabella. The flaming romance of a lovely fugitive fleeing from war-torn Spain. Reckless young romance with the new star team of Henry Fonda and the glamorous new film find, Annabella.

"The Midnight Madonna," starring Warren William and Mady Correll is the feature attraction for Tuesday. William Boyd (Hopalong Cassidy) and Jimmy Ellison will be seen Wednesday in "Trail Dust."

Thursday and Friday brings Atlanta's own Jane Withers in "Angel's Holiday," with Robert Kent, Joan Davis and Sally Blane. It's a "holler-day" all right. The harum-scarum halfpint of dynamite is off on her rip-roaringest rampage. It's a holiday for Jane when she turns sleuth-reporter and routs the riot squad with their own tear gas bombs. "Join the Marines," with Paul Kelly and June Travis, is Saturday's feature, plus Dick Tracy serial, selected shorts and at 8:15 the "Kiddie Revue" on the stage.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE AT TENTH STREET

'Holy Haywire' Is Attraction for Wednesday.

Shirley Temple and Victor McLaglen share the glorious adventures of the kilted Highlanders in Rudyard Kipling's "Wee Willie Winkle," at the Tenth Street theater today, tomorrow and Tuesday. The cast includes C. Aubrey Smith, June Lang, Michael Whalen, Cesar Romero and Douglas Scott.

"Hotel Haywire" with Leo Carrillo, Lynne Overman, Mary Carlisle and Benny Baker, the hilarious story of a wife who believes in astrology and whose belief is so consistent that she agrees to divorce even though she does not want it, will be offered Wednesday.

"Sing and Be Happy" on Thursday and Friday features Tony Martin, Leah Ray, Joan Davis, Helen Westley, Allan Lane and Dixie Dunbar against an amusing background of advertising agency warfare and radio community sings.

"The Great Gambini," with Akim Tamiroff, Marion March, is scheduled for Saturday.

CAMEO THEATER SCHEDULES 'SLIM'

'The Wildcat,' With Jean Rogers, Wednesday, Thursday.

"The Go Getter," starring George Brent and Anita Louise, will be the feature attraction offered today at the Cameo theater.

Tomorrow and Tuesday the Cameo offers "Slim," with Pat O'Brien, Henry Fonda and Margaret Lindsay. "Slim" is an outdoor, action picture and deals with the life and the adventure of the daring men who string high-tension power lines across the country.

"The Wildcat," starring Jean Rogers, will be the feature for Wednesday and Thursday.

A double bill is scheduled for Friday and Saturday. "Gunsmoke Ranch" and Johnny Mack Brown in another chapter of "Wild West Days" will be offered. A Popeye cartoon also in included on this program.

'Slim' at the Center

Pat O'Brien, who is at the Center theater tomorrow and Tuesday in the film "Slim." Henry Fonda and Margaret Lindsay are in the supporting cast.

DEKALB WILL SHOW 'SINGING MARINE'

Wednesday's Offering Will Be 'Captain Kid.'

"The Singing Marine," starring Dick Powell, will be featured at the DeKalb theater tomorrow and Tuesday. The picture tells of a leatherneck from the San Diego barracks, possessed of good luck and a splendid voice, who is sent to New York to have a try at the amateur hour contest. The cast includes Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, Larry Adler and Lee Dixon.

"Captain Kid," with Guy Kibbee and May Robson will be the feature for Wednesday. Thursday brings "The Road Back."

Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea will be seen in "Internes Can't Take Money" Friday. "Land Beyond the Law," with Dick Foran and Linda Perry, is scheduled for Saturday.

GINGER ROGERS STARS IN BROOKHAVEN FILM

Brookhaven theater opens its program this week, starting today for two days with Ginger Rogers in "The 13th Guest." This picture is chucked full of super thrills and chills.

"Stake Struck," with Dick Powell, will be offered Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday and Friday will bring "Make Way for Tomorrow," a Paramount hit, starring Beulah Bondi and Victor Moore.

The theater will offer "Custer's Last Stand" Saturday in addition to other added attractions.

The Brookhaven theater has been open for only a week.

'SMART BLONDE' LISTED AT TEMPLE THEATER

"Smart Blonde," with Glenda Farrell and Barton McLane, will be the offering at the Temple theater today and tomorrow. Red and Raymond, radio artists, are scheduled for three performances on the same bill today.

Tuesday brings "Three Live Ghosts," comedy riot, with Richard Arlen and Cecelia Parker. Wednesday and Thursday, "King and the Chorus Girl," starring Joan Blondell and Edward Everett Horton will be offered. "Let Them Live" is Friday's feature. "Border Cafe," with Harry Carey and John Beal is the offering for Saturday.

FAIRFAX OFFERS 'THE SLAVE SHIP'

'Behind the Headlines' Will Be Shown Tuesday.

Today and tomorrow the Fairfax theater presents "The Slave Ship," which traces the tempestuous career of a swift bark engaged in the slave trade, and its courageous captain, played by Warner Baxter, who planned to retire from slave trading to settle down to a new life with his young bride, Elizabeth Allen. Wallace Beery is co-starred as a villainous mate of the ship.

Sybil Jason, seven-year-old star, captures every heart as she sails to greater glory alongside May Robson and Guy Kibbee, famous veterans of the screen, in "The Captain's Kid," scheduled for Wednesday.

"The Go-Getter," a comedy-drama, is scheduled for Thursday and Friday. George Brent and Anita Louise co-star in this film.

Dick Foran, the singing cowboy, will star in "Guns of the Pecos," a western drama to be shown Saturday.

'NEW FACES' LISTED AT HILAN THEATER

'Cafe Metropole' Will Be Shown Thursday, Friday.

Today and tomorrow the Hilan theater offers "New Faces," the musical comedy hit of the season, with an all-star cast headed by Joe Penner, Milton Berle, Harriet Hilliard and many other featured players.

A double feature program will be offered Tuesday and Wednesday.

Thursday and Friday bring "Cafe Metropole," starring Loretta Young, Tyrone Power and Adolph Menjou. "The Great O'Malley," with Pat O'Brien, Sybil Jason and Humphrey Bogart, will be offered Saturday.

'THIS IS MY AFFAIR' SCHEDULED AT PALACE

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck—the screen's most talked-about real-life sweethearts—have been teamed in the picture the world is talking about, "This Is My Affair," which opens today, tomorrow and Tuesday at the Palace theater. Playing Wednesday at the Palace is that grand drama, "The Isle of Fury," with Margret Lindsey and Humphry Bogart.

Thursday brings "The Road Back," with John King, Richard Cromwell, "Slim" Summerville and Andy Devine. There are riotous runs and dizzy drop-kicks, foolish forwards and cuckoo coaches, hilarious halfbacks and tuneful touchdowns in the giddy gridiron musical, "Pigskin Parade," scheduled for Friday.

Saturday brings "The California Mail" with Dick Foran and Linda Perry.

ORLANDO SEEKS HELP FOR BETTER AIRPORT

Lieutenant E. C. Nilson, director of aviation for the city of Orlando, Fla., and G. Wayne Gray, city commissioner for Orlando, yesterday were conferring here with Department of Commerce officials in an effort to obtain better facilities for the Orlando airport.

Lieutenant Nilson, who was an instructor in the army during the World War, and Mr. Gray have taken an active interest in promoting aviation activities in the south.

WIFE OF EX-TULANE PROFESSOR DIES

Mrs. William Woodward Was Mother of Atlantan.

Mrs. William Woodward, mother of Mrs. George C. Moseley, of Atlanta, died Friday night at her home in Biloxi, Miss., it was learned here yesterday.

Mrs. Woodward is the wife of Professor William Woodward, retired head of the department of art and architecture at Tulane University. Mrs. Woodward was well known in Atlanta, where she had many friends. She had visited here frequently. Her husband had exhibited his paintings here at the High Museum.

Besides her husband and Mrs. Moseley, another daughter, a Mrs. Logan, of Shreveport, and two sons, William J. Woodward, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Carl Woodward, of New Orleans, survive.

Dramas and Comedies At the West End

"Slave Ship" Is Scheduled on Screen Three Days.

The West End theater opens the week's program today, tomorrow and Tuesday with the mightiest of all sagas of the sea, "Slave Ship," starring Warner Baxter, Wallace Beery, Elizabeth Allan and Mickey Rooney. Wednesday's run will be "Another Dawn," with the screen's most dazzling personality, Kay Francis, and the newest romantic idol of the hour, Errol Flynn.

Thursday and Friday presents a merry-go-round of hilarity, "Easy Living," with those favorite stars, Jean Arthur, Ray Milland and Edward Arnold. The daffiest screen comedy of all times. Wait'll you see Jean Arthur as the little stenog who was almost making both ends meet when a sable coat lands in her lap and that was only the beginning.

Saturday's featured attraction is "The Ise of Fury," with Humphrey Bogart and Margaret Lindsay, plus Chapter 12 of "Secret Agent X-9," and selected short subjects.

BARBARA STANWYCK STARS AT BUCKHEAD

The Buckhead theater presents today, tomorrow and Tuesday, "Stella Dallas," co-starring Barbara Stanwyck and John Boles. This is a tense drama of a mother who sacrifices her own right to happiness for the sake of her daughter. It gives Miss Stanwyck the strongest role in her entire career and one which was coveted by every leading actress in Hollywood. Eleanore Whitney and Johnny Downs, the screen's most appealing pair of young sweethearts, hit the bell again for another film triumph in their new comedy, "Blonde Trouble," which will play Wednesday only.

Marking the beginning of a new phase in Shirley Temple's screen career, "Wee Willie Winkie," the famous Rudyard Kipling story of India will be the feature for Thursday and Friday.

A Zane Grey western picture, complete with chases, gun fights and all kinds of exciting conflict, "Thunder Trail," starring Gilbert Roland and Charles Bickford, will be the feature for Saturday.

GEORGIA WOMAN DIES IN SUBWAY ACCIDENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Miss Merle Pinkston, 34-year-old dress designer who came to New York 10 years ago from Parrott, Ga., was killed today when she fell from a platform under the wheels of a subway train.

Studio Builds Chinese City Scene in 3 Weeks

It's 15 or 20 days to North China, from Shanghai, by boat or railroad. But it was only half an hour to North China from the Warner Brothers studio a few weeks ago.

For a scene in "West of Shanghai," Art Director Max Parker built a complete Chinese city on the Warner ranch near Calabassas. The set which represented a small town and missionary station in northern China, covered 10 acres and took three weeks to construct.

It is this town which thousands of extras in the role of Chinese soldiers give battle to opposing troops, under the leadership of General Wu Yen Fang, which role will be played by Boris Karloff. Others of importance in the cast of this special picture are Ricardo Cortez and Beverly Roberts. "West of Shanghai" opens a week's engagement at the Capitol theater starting next Sunday.

CORNELIA SKINNER WILL APPEAR HERE

Famous Monologist To Be Presented at Emory and Woman's Club.

The woman who changes from youth to age, from peasant to queen, from clown to tragedian, in the flash of an eye and the change of a wig will appear before Atlanta audiences Saturday and next Monday.

Cornelia Otis Skinner, actress-authoress, has a different voice for each of her characters and uses several different languages. She writes her own sketches and memorizes them word for word.

"I don't change my make-up," she says. "The wings do the work. I never paint lines in my face for elderly characters. Such lines wouldn't correspond with the lines that are already in my face and the effect would be that of a cobweb."

When reminded that her skin is as smooth as satin and there are no lines visible, it is understood that her keen sense of humor often leads her to turn a joke on herself.

She will appear first in the Glenn Memorial auditorium at Emory University Saturday night, November 6, on the program of the Student Lecture Association, presenting a series of monologues. The following Monday night she will present the famous costumed play, "The Loves of Charles II," in the auditorium of the Woman's Club.

Sale of tickets to the public will open at Davison-Paxon's store Thursday morning for both performances and continue each day until the afternoon of the performance when the sale will be transferred to the box office of the hall in which the performance is to be given. Out of town and mail orders will be filled as received at the office of the Alkahest Bureau, in the Mortgage building.

CENTER WILL OFFER 'LET THEM LIVE' TODAY

Opening today at Center for one day is "Let Them Live." The story deals with the efforts of a young doctor, played by the popular John Howard, who puts aside personal ambition to wage a battle against corrupt politics. Nan Grey of "Three Smart Girls" in the role of a girl whose father was ruined by a crooked political ring.

Tomorrow and Tuesday brings "Slim," a story of the colorful, perilous, touch-and-go lives of high-tension linemen, those sturdy lads who put up steel towers across the land and string the wires that carry the electrical current over the country. Pat O'Brien, Henry Fonda, Margaret Lindsay and Stuart Erwin are in the leading roles.

"Love in a Bungalow" comes Wednesday with Nan Grey and Kent Taylor in the leading roles. Thursday and Friday will feature "There Goes My Girl," starring Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond. Saturday brings "Paradise Isle," featuring Warren Hull and Manitia who won fame as ranchot Tone's sweetheart in "Mutiny on the Bounty."

'50 ROADS TO TOWN' SCHEDULED AT PARK

Marooned by a blizzard in a mountain lodge, with only a stuffed moose as a chaperon and caviar and crackers for food—many hilarious situations arise from this romantic predicament that faces Don Ameche and Ann Sothern in "Fifty Roads to Town," at the College Park theater, tomorrow and Tuesday.

"Breezing Home," a swiftly paced, brightly humored story about modern night clubs and streamlined race horses at the Santa Anita race track, comes Wednesday, featuring William Gargan, Binnie Barnes and Wendy Barrie.

"Seventh Heaven," Austin Strong's immortal story of the conflicts, heartbreak and ecstasy of love and war, comes Thursday and Friday, with Simone Simon and James Stewart in starring roles. Fast action and plenty of thrills are furnished in Buck Jones' "Empty Saddles," Saturday, with Louise Brooks as the feminine romantic interest.

PONCE DE LEON LISTS ROBINSON, DAVIS FILM

Today and tomorrow the Ponce de Leon theater presents "Kid Galahad," starring Edward G. Robinson and Bette Davis. This is a story of two rival fight managers, Edward G. Robinson and Humphrey Bogard, and their attempts to double-cross each other.

Tuesday, "The League of Frightened Men," starring Walter Connolly and Irene Hervey, will be opened. Nero Wolfe, America's ace detective, played by Walter Connolly, will slay you as he solves three strange slayings, cracking down on a menace that blights the lives of 12 men.

Wednesday brings "The Soldier and the Lady," Anton Walbrook and Elizabeth Allan.

Thursday and Friday, Pat O'Brien and Margaret Lindsay will star in "Slim." Henry Fonda and Stuart Erwin are in the symphony cast.

"The Devil Is Driving," starring Richard Dix and Joan Perry, will be Saturday's feature.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Many pivotal issues slipped a trifle lower in an indecisive abbreviated session of the stock market today.

No particular trend was apparent, and trading was at a fairly slow pace through most of the day, with the ticker frequently at a standstill.

Steel shares proved the most hesitant, although one or two closed higher. The rails, in spite of the decision of carrier executives to ask a new blanket increase in freight rates, were narrow and mixed. A few amusement and specialty stocks moved higher.

At the start the market generally seemed inclined to follow up yesterday's final hour rally, with small investment buying reported from the floor. But the upswing was weak and short-lived and profit selling soon shaved gains. From then on apathy set the tone.

Traders were inclined mostly to even up accounts over the week end. News was not impressive and there was a disposition to await the outcome of talks at Hyde Park between the President and Treasury officials over taxation matters before assuming commitments. Threats of renewed tension between Great Britain and Japan in China were closely studied.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped .1 of a point at 50.2. Transfers totaled 713,910 shares against 1,565,020 last Saturday.

INCREASED SELLING ERASES CURB GAINS

Some Leaders Dipped Sharply Under Previous Closings.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Increased selling near the close erased many gains made in early curb market trading today in an extension of the recent rally. Final prices were mixed.

A few leaders dipped sharply under previous closings as bids were withdrawn. Mining shares were generally steady and utilities and oils held to a narrow range.

Aluminum Company of America finished at 97, off 1 1-2; New Jersey Zinc 67, off 1-4, and American Gas & Electric 25 3-4, off 1-4.

Fractionally higher were American Cyanamid "B" at 26, Hecla Mining at 10 1-2, Hudson Bay Mining at 22 1-2, Molybdenum at 6 7-8, Electric Bond & Share at 11 1-2, and United Gas at 6.

Transactions totaled 128,000 shares, against 273,000 last Saturday.

WALL STREET LEAD SWAYS LONDON

Margin Revision Response Starts Sharp Upturn.

By LEONARD J. REID.

(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.)

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(By Cable.)—The chief lesson of the past week's experience in the financial district is the continued dependence of the London market on Wall Street trends. During the early part of the week, attempts at improvement, despite the New York market relapse, failed with the sole exception of persistent strength in first class bonds, while, on Thursday and Friday, Wall Street's encouraging response to the revision of margin requirements induced a sharp and general uptrend here.

The week ended with sentiment better than for many weeks, largely because of rumors circulated that the Roosevelt administration is likely to take further steps to encourage the markets and big business.

It is not doubted that conditions here warrant recovery in commodities and securities, but it is also certain that caution will continue as the inevitable result of recent substantial losses by speculators. The amazing degree of control Wall Street has over all markets was strikingly evidenced during the last week by the immediate sharp rise in rubber in Singapore on the reduction in margin requirements on American securities.

The outstanding feature of the London markets was the daily increasing strength in British government stocks and the revived demand for recent municipal issues.

TIME FACTOR RIGHT ON STOCKS

We bought stocks last Monday and wrote subscribers there would be a fast advance at end of week. Again our MASTER TIME FACTOR proved right. Our 1937 Stock Forecast issued in November, 1936, said: "There will be a panicky decline in the last half of the year and the Dow-Jones averages should decline 80 points," which they did from the high in March to October lows. This Forecast would have protected you from losses and helped you make profits. There will be another decline this year. Our 1937 Forecast will tell you when. CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Advancing prices of wheat at Buenos Aires and Winnipeg, stimulated apparently by reports of frost in Argentina, pulled Chicago wheat values out of a rut of nervous fluctuations today. December and May wheat here closed fractionally higher but July wheat was unchanged to 1-4 lower.

The Winnipeg market led the upturn which was held in check here by failure of buying power to expand and by scattered week-end selling. Winnipeg closed 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 higher and Buenos Aires was 1 3-8 to 1 5-8 up. Liverpool deferred contracts rallied to an unchanged close after starting at a fractional decline.

Stimulating to buyers here and at Winnipeg were reports of overnight North American export sales of around 400,000 bushels, including 160,000 bushels of soft white Pacific coast wheat to the United Kingdom, together with gossip that some domestic No. 3 mixed wheat had been sold to Spain.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—(AP) The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 8.03 cents a pound. Average for the past 30 days 8.15 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Cotton eased below 8 cents today under liquidation and hedging. March sold off from 8.04 to 7.98 and closed at 8.00, with final prices 7 to 8 points net lower.

Opening losses of 4 to 6 points reflected the influence of easier cables but the undertone held fairly steady early in sympathy with steadiness of the stock market, and on trade buying. Reports of an easier basis in the south and of a poor demand for spot cotton influenced sentiment. Although trading was more active than in recent sessions, the total volume of selling was not especiall large.

Outside interest was still limited in face of uncertainties in the crop legislative program at Washington. Cotton goods sales for the week were estimated at around 60 per cent of the current rate of production. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week was estimated at 206,000 bales, against 165,000 last year and 232,000 two years ago.

MODERATE SELLING DEPRESSES COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Moderate selling depressed cotton prices here today and at the close the market was barely steady, at net decline of 7 to 13 points.

Influences behind the offerings were easier stocks, increased tension in the far east, favorable weather in the belt and lack of sustaining support.

Trade purchased moderately on all dips and there was some covering by shorts but the best the demand could do was rally prices 1 to 2 points soon after the opening.

Very little new business was reported and traders seemed disposed to await the next official government report and Washington developments.

The heaviest selling of the short session was encountered in late trading when long's liquidated for over the week end and some hedging orders from the interior were executed.

Port receipts 58,534; for week 58,534; for season 3,966,550. Exports 41,733; for week 41,733; for season 1,635,086. Port stocks 3,229,337. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 185,077; last year 162,373. Spot sales at southern markets 42,999; last year 55,641.

FRENCH MOBILIZE TO COMBAT ARABS

Heavy Patrols on Guard at Border in Morocco; Jails Jammed.

CASABLANCA, French Morocco, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Heavy patrols of French troops were stationed on the frontier between Algeria and Morocco tonight virtually closing the border to all but foreigners to prevent the spread of Arab Nationalist agitation.

Police and troops pushed their roundup of Nationalist leaders, arresting Mohammed Hassan El Ouszzani, chief of the "Moroccan action committee," which officials said worked closely with Arabs in Syria and Palestine.

General Amedee Blanc, commander of French troops at Fez where Hassan was arrested, told a gathering of Arab leaders that France "clearly recognizes the hand of a foreign power" in the attempts to overthrow the French protectorate and set up a native Arab kingdom.

Heavy troop patrols were established on the Algerian frontier to prevent Arab Nationalist agitators from fleeing Morocco. The frontier was practically closed to all except foreigners.

TERRORISM RENEWED IN HOLY LAND AREAS

JERUSALEM, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Snipers renewed Holy Land terrorism today by firing on constables guarding American stone quarries outside Jerusalem and cutting telephone wires. No casualties were reported.

Connecticut has started a plan of making automobile license plates last five years, by equipping each aluminum plate with a small colored insert for the proper year.

FARMERS FAVOR NORMAL GRANARY, SENATORS ASSERT

95 Per Cent of Those Interviewed Also Want Crop Control.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Two members of the senate agricultural subcommittee, which for a month has been holding hearings in various parts of the country seeking farm legislation sentiment, today said a vast majority of farmers wanted crop production control.

Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, said 95 per cent of the farmers who have appeared before the subcommittee want production control incorporated in the farm bill to be considered by congress in special session next month.

"They want the ever-normal granary as insurance against the nonproductive years and continuation of the soil conservation program," Senator Thomas asserted.

LEADERS SEEK FARM HARMONIZATION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(UP) Congressional leaders, facing a November 15 deadline, tonight worked to harmonize in a fortnight a three-year disagreement among farm organizations and to present an agricultural control legislative program shortly after the special session convenes.

Chairman Marvin Jones, Democrat, Texas, of the house agriculture committee, asserted he would have a "work bench" bill ready for study by his committee Monday. The measure, he said, will contain noncontroversial features, including permanent continuation of the present $500,000,000 a year soil conservation act.

EMPLOYER KILLS FIANCE OF AIDE

Jealous of Attentions Paid to Housekeeper.

WAYNESBORO, Va., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Police Chief Switzer said a jealous employer shot and killed his housekeeper's prospective bridegroom today and offered the explanation that he "just had to do it."

The bullet-riddled body of Pierce Lovegrove, 55, was found in the kitchen of a small East Waynesboro home early this afternoon and less than a half hour later, Jasper Mullins, 54, was arrested on a murder charge.

Switzer said he had obtained a signed confession from Mullins, and would hold Mrs. Ethel Anderson as a material witness.

The officer said the woman told him she had lived at the Mullins home as housekeeper at intervals in the last 10 years and that Mullins had become jealous because of attentions Lovegrove paid her.

ATLANTA MUSIC NOTES

by Mozelle Horton Young

"Activities" Program.

The November morning musicale of the Atlanta Music Club will be given at the Woman's Club auditorium Wednesday at 10:45 a. m., with Mrs. Harold McKenzie, chairman, presenting "The Activities of the Atlanta Music Club." Lillian Rogers Gilbreath is chairman of all the morning programs and Mrs. Thad Morrison president of the club. The junior division of the club will be represented by Margaret Fairlie, pianist; the Student Concert Guild by George Waters Jr., pianist; the Young Artists' Club by Elizabeth Jackson, violinist, and Robert Guy, baritone; and the Music Club by Clarence Ehrhardt Jr., pianist. Mrs. Gilbreath will be at the piano with Miss Jackson in the performance of the entire Brahms Sonata for piano and violin in A major, Opus 100. Tallulah Codington Reed will play Mr. Guy's accompaniments. His songs will be "Le Cor," Flegier, and "Avant de quitter ces lieux," from Gounod's opera, "Faust."

Mr. Ehrhardt will play Beethoven's "Sonata in D Minor, Opus 31, No. 2," known as the "Recitative Sonata." Mr. Ehrhardt has recently returned to Atlanta, his native city, after five years' study in Germany under the eminent piano pedagogue, Teischmueller, at the Leipsig State Conservatory. He studied theory, harmony and composition under Paul Schenk, pupil and disciple of Karg-Elert. He also spent one summer in study at the Mozarteum. While abroad he was Leipsig correspondent for the Musical Courier, and among his many interesting experiences were his assignments to cover the festivals at Munich and Bayreuth and the Bach Festival at Magdabourg. He also played an important part in the German Youth Movement in Leipsig, training the boys of the Dietrich Von Bern Faehnlein (troop) in choral singing.

Mr. Waters has chosen for his selections, "Intermezzo, Opus 117, No. 2," by Brahms, and "Etude, Opus 25, No. 5," by Chopin. Little Miss Fairlie will play "Song Without Words (Sweet Remembrance)," by Mendelssohn, and "Warrior's Song," by Heller.

Buckhead Concert Today.

The Buckhead Symphony orchestra, Enrico Leide, conductor, will give a concert at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the auditorium of North Fulton High school, on North Fulton drive. Laura Shallenberger, pianist, and Patricia Makinson, soprano, will be the soloists. Matt Perkins is president of the Buckhead symphony and Albert Howell Jr., treasurer.

Miss Shallenberger, 15-year-old pianist, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Shallenberger, will play a group of solos, including "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring," Bach-Bauer; "Intermezzo, Opus 116, No. 6," Brahms, and "Etude, Opus 25, No. 12," by Chopin. Miss Makinson will sing with full orchestral accompaniment Strauss' "To You."

Among the numbers that Mr. Leide will lead this group of Atlanta's symphonic players in will be two movements of Tschaikowsky's "Fifth Symphony;" "Valse Triste," by Sibelius; three dances from Smetana's "The Bartered Bride," and an orchestral phantasy from Friml's "The Firefly."

Cantata Tonight.

The choir of 30 voices of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church, under direction of Haskell Boyter, will present the cantata, "The Woman of Sychar," by R. S. Stoughton, at the evening service tonight at 7:30. Soloists for the occasion will be Mrs. Gladys Roper, soprano; Mrs. Walter Ward, contralto; John Gibson, tenor; Haskell Boyter, baritone, and Mrs. Haskell Boyter, pianist. The public is cordially invited.

Senior Piano Recital.

Eldin Burton will give his senior piano recital at 8:30 Thursday night at 416 Peachtree street, to which the public is invited. Mr. Burton is a pupil of the late Charles Beaton. His program follows: "Prelude, Chorale, and Fugue," "Cesar Franck;" "Hark! Hark! the Lark!" Schubert-Liszt: "Un Sospiro," Liszt; the entire "Sonata in E minor," Opus 7," by Grieg; and a Chopin group including "Impromptu in F sharp, Opus 36," three etudes, E major, C minor, and A flat, and the "Ballade in G minor, Opus 23."

'BUG' STILL BUZZES, POLICE RAID SHOWS

Lottery Tickets Are Seized and Woman Arrested; Books Confiscated.

Evidence that the "bug" still breathes in Atlanta, despite the 60-day lottery probe of the Fulton county grand jury, climaxed by fines and suspended sentences for the "big shots," was uncovered yesterday as deputy sheriffs raided an alleged "pick-up" station, seized 107 lottery tickets dated October 30. They arrested a negro woman.

Woman Arrested.

Deputy Sheriffs John Hopkins and P. N. Nelms arrested Emma Stephens, 38-year-old negro woman, at her home at 281 Green street. Four lottery books were also confiscated. The woman said she "didn't know who she worked for," that she operated as a "pick-up" agent.

At Fulton tower she was fingerprinted, held under $1,000 bond for trial in Judge Jesse M. Wood's misdemeanor court. Solicitor John S. McClelland recently asked that all lottery arrests be tried in the criminal court.

First in Two Weeks.

Yesterday's arrest was the first lottery arrest in more than two weeks. The September-October grand jury in its final presentments Friday said "while indictments have been returned against the larger operators in the lottery field we recognize that no permanent good can be accomplished unless the full force of public opinion and enforcement of law and order continues squarely in back of this movement, which is only started."

Special Prosecutor E. E. Andrews, at court trials for the indicted "big shots," expressed belief the lottery was smashed and had ceased operations. Twenty-one of the lottery "higher ups" gave their 'words of honor" they would cooperate in keeping the "bug" suppressed and promised they would never get back into the racket.

SHIP LOSES PROPELLER.

Miss Martine Tuller And Henry H. Joyner Wed at Church Here

The marriage of Miss Martine Tuller and Henry H. Joyner, of this city, formerly of Baton Rouge, La., was solemnized yesterday at noon at the North Avenue Presbyterian church by Rev. Richard Orme Flinn. Groups of palms and foliage plants were arranged at the back of the pulpit with floor baskets filled with Easter lilies adding an attractive floral effect to the lovely decorations.

Ushers were John A. Brice, Frank Inman, William P. Hammond and Dr. Perrin Nicolson Jr. Prior to the ceremony Miss Emilie Parmalee presented a program of nuptial music.

Mrs. Robert H. Logan, of Old Hickory, Tenn., the bride's sister, was her only attendant. Mrs. Logan wore an attractive gown of wine-colored brocaded satin crepe worn with a velvet hat to match and she carried a bouquet of talisman roses.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Charles Tuller Jr., was attired in a smart suit fashioned of Hunter's green velvet and worn with a gold brocaded blouse. Her velvet hat matched her costume and a shoulder cluster of orchids graced her left shoulder. Mr. Joyner was attended by Bernard Swint as best man.

Mrs. Charles Tuller, the bride's mother, entertained informally at breakfast after the ceremony, the guests being limited to members of the bridal party and the immediate families.

Mr. Joyner and his bride left for a motor trip to Louisiana and Mississippi. Upon their return they will occupy an apartment on Penn avenue and become prominent additions to Atlanta's young married ranks.

Mrs. Killette's Message Features 4th District Meet in Manchester

By Mrs. George Caldwell, Press Chairman.

In her message as president, Mrs. J. C. Killette, of Hogansville, appealed to every woman in the fourth district, assembled in Manchester on October 22, to fulfill to the best of her ability her responsibility as a member in the ranks or as officer of her club in an effort to overcome the handicap received from changing district officers from time to time during the past year. Mrs. Killette asked that every member serve with her on the committee of "a club for every county" and "every member get a member." The district executive board meeting was a real rally day in club work honoring the request of Mrs. A. B. Conger, state president, who was present, with Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, state director; Mrs. Ralph Butler, vice president at large; Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Albert Hill, Mrs. Hunnington, of Warm Springs, and others.

The president of the hostess club, Mrs. R. C. Fryer Jr., called the meeting to order, opening with the collect, read by Mrs. S. A. Keefer, past president. Mrs. H. H. Ware, of Hogansville, was presented as song leader and led in singing "Georgia Land." Mrs. L. M. Bradford graciously welcomed the visitors, and Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville, responded. Mrs. Fryer introduced the recently elected president of the district, Mrs. C. J. Killette, who addressed the members and told her plans with illustrations. A large map of the district in the federation colors, green and white, was displayed. On this were the clubs in their correct location, the names of the presidents, and the number of members, officers and chairmen. Together with this were three charts containing the individual responsibilities of clubwomen, projects and awards for clubs, and awards given for district accomplishments. The district record book compiled by Mrs. Killette was displayed, showing a section reserved for each club, which Mrs. Killette said was symbolic of her heart. She spoke in appreciation of the compliments her book had received from Mrs. Howard McCall, Mrs. Harvie Jordan, Mrs. Charles Haden, Mrs. J. K. Ottely and others who saw it in Atlanta.

Mrs. Albert Hill introduced the distinguished guests, and Mrs. Conger gave an inspiring talk on different phases of club work, asking that the recommendations of this administration be carried forward. Mrs. Ritchie brought a message from the General Federation and urged the clubwomen to use the service offered them through general and state headquarters. She spoke of the excellent work being done in the cancer control campaign.

Mrs. Butler urged extension both in number of clubs and in increase in membership. In response, Mrs. Leon Meadors, of LaGrange, pledged to assist key women in Heard county in organizing a club, saying that these women had done excellent community work. At the lovely luncheon, roses were presented each guest from Mrs. H. W. Denham, of Manchester. Musical numbers were given by Mrs. Ralph Williams, with Mrs. Conrad, accompanist.

The Ella F. White jubilee celebration featured the afternoon session. Mrs. Fitzpatrick and Mrs. Ritchie made inspiring talks on this endowment and Mrs. E. M. Bailey, of Acworth, led a panel discussion on the subject. As a climax, Mrs. Killette presented as a district plan a tag day sale to assist the clubs to raise the $25 asked of each. Some of the attractive tags were displayed and offered for sale as a beginning of the campaign. Mrs. Hunnington bought one from the Warm Springs club for $5, and Mrs. Conger purchased one through the LaGrange Juniors for $2. The district pledged a $25 contribution.

Officers' reports were heard and local pages were presented by Mrs. Roy McLarty who also introduced the officers of her newly organized and federated Junior Club of 20 members. Mrs. Howard Means announced a new Junior Club in Zebulon.

Inspiring reports were heard from Griffin, Mrs. Joe Vason, president; LaGrange, Mrs. Wilbur Freeman; Talbotton, Mrs. S. C. Ingram; Hogansville, Mrs. B. A. Hogan; Covington, Mrs. R. M. Mobley; Gay, Mrs. W. C. Clark. The new Federation Cook Book was presented by Mrs. Hartford Green, of Zebulon, and a number were distributed. District chairmen reporting were Mrs. Albert Hill, legislation; Mrs. Pierce Lee, public instruction; Mrs. Roy McLarty, Juniors; Mrs. A. B. Anderson, safety; Miss Mary Grimes, fine arts; Mrs. B. A. Hogan, education; Mrs. Mobley, The Clubwoman; Mrs. Hartford Green, citizenship. A vote of appreciation was given the acting secretary, Mrs. A. B. Anderson, who read the minutes of the day's sessions. Mrs. Killette compared the Manchester club with the gracious host who offered his guest a cup filled to the brim and then on top dropped a rose petal as the final token of consideration.

Endowment Jubilee Celebration Featured at Sixth District Meet

By MRS. J. J. PILCHER, Of Wrens.

The loyalty of the members of the sixth district of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs was shown in the gift of $25 to the Ella F. White Memorial Endowment at the meeting held in Sandersville on October 15. As district chairman for the fund, Mrs. Lewis I. Waxelbaum, of Macon, presented the subject and urged each club as well as the district to make a gift of $25 during the jubilee year. Mrs. John Gladdin, president of the local club, and Mrs. Leo Browning, president of the district, presided over the deliberations, which were held in the Methodist church. The pastor, the Rev. Reese Griffin, gave the invocation before the assembly sang. Mrs. S. G. Lang extended welcome; Mrs. Herbert Franklin led in the pledge to the flag, and Mrs. W. W. Stone read the collect.

Distinguished guests honored were Mrs. A. B. Conger, state president; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, director for Georgia; Mrs. Ralph Butler, vice president-at-large; Mrs. L. I. Waxelbaum, second vice president, and Mrs. Virginia Polhill Price, national committeewoman from Georgia. In her splendid address, Mrs. Conger stressed particularly education for citizenship, co-operation with county health officers, support of world peace movements, attendance at club institutes, and making the club a constructive force in the community. Mrs. Ritchie presented the general federation (and discussed the new cook book issued to raise funds for the Ella F. White and the General Federation endowments. In appreciation of Mrs. Ritchie's fine work as editor, Mrs. Waxelbaum asked for a big sale of the book in the district, especially as a percentage of the proceeds will go into the campaign fund to elect Mrs. Ritchie recording secretray of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Waxelbaum suggested a one-day institute in Macon and Mrs. John B. Clark assured the members that the institute could be arranged at Mercer University, which met with the approval of the body. Mrs. Butler spoke on club extension and urged that names of key women in towns where there were no clubs be sent to her in order that she might interest them in organizing and federating. An invitation extended by Mrs. John B. Clark from the Macon Woman's Club to hold the spring meeting in Macon was accepted. Following a delightful lunch, Mrs. Herbert Franklin, of Tennille, thanked the hosts for the delicious food and for many courtesies extended. Mrs. Browning thanked the state officers for attending and, with others, expressed pleasure upon being in Sandersville and congratulated the members on their beautiful clubhouse.

Mrs. Tidwell Presides At Quitman Club.

Mrs. A. L. Tidwell presided at Quitman Woman's Club meeting and stated that an enjoyable event is due in November when the department of library and education will sponsor a program on "Georgia" with Miss Emily Woodward as guest speaker. The plan is to have a luncheon at the Country Club and Mrs. M. A. Brantley and Mrs. Walter Hunter are co-chairmen of this department.

December program will be led by the fine arts department of which Mrs. Pliny Sheffield and Mrs. C. E. Glusier are leaders, and the garden department of which Mrs. Frank Barker and Mrs. A. B. Sheffield are leaders. Welfare and health department of which Mrs. A. B. Jones Jr. and Mrs. Fred Cobb are leaders, will sponsor the sale of Christmas seals.

Each meeting will have a flower display conducted by the garden department and at the end of the year awards will be made for the greatest number of points. The displays will be grouped in two classes, No. 1, miniature in rangements not over eight inches high; No. 2, arrangements from eight inches up in height. At the October meeting Mrs. Frank Barker won first place with a striking arrangement of Tithonia, or Mexican sunflower, in a black jar. In the miniature class Mrs. Royal Daniel won first place with a bowl arranged like an old-fashioned bouquet with pink Camellia sasanqua and white Azaleas in the center and purple Torenia and Eupatorium as edging.

Other entries included long-stemmed lilies entered by Mrs. Lilian Coyne, evidently of the Crinum group. She also had a perfect, very large alba plena camellia.

American home department, through Mrs. Donald Davis, co-chairman, asked that club members note Governor Rivers' proclamation about using Georgia products called attention to the many excellent foods canned in Georgia and urged them to ask for Georgia products in the stores. Mrs. Carl Hurst talked about a class in physical culture and beauty training. The hostess committee of which Mrs. Frank Barker was chairman, served refreshments.

Clarkston Clubwomen Hear Mrs. Kilgore.

Clarkston Woman's Club met at the clubhouse, with Mrs. Sidney Wilson, the president, presiding. The collect was read by Mrs. E. P. Moody, and Mrs. J. L. Kilgore, chairman of conservation and natural resources, spoke on "The Preservation of Soil, Trees, Shrubs and Rivers in Georgia." Mrs. Milam was asked for a report of the number of dogwood and trees planted last year on the square.

A bronze marker in honor of Mrs. Mary Bryan, grandmother of Mrs. A. S. Johnson, will be placed on the club grounds and given by Mrs. Bryan's son, Fred Bryan, of Miami, Fla. Mrs. Johnson was program chairman and chose the theme "The American Home." Mrs T. R. Crawford read an original article on "How to Keep a Husband's Love." Margaret Milam gave her opinion of "An Only Daughter's Idea of a Happy Home." Lamar Ray as an only son's idea of a happy home read Edgar Guest's "Home." Mrs. Frank Hensler talked on "Making Ends Meet." Mrs. Kilgore announced plans for a flower show to be held at the clubhouse.

Safety Program Is Outlined

Mrs. Ira E. Farmer, of Thomson, chairman of public safety in the tenth district, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, has issued a public safety program to reduce fire hazards, preventable diseases and accidents as follows: 1. Secure co-operation of city and county authorities, school superintendents, Boy and Girl Scouts and negroes. 2 Have an open program at the Woman's Club, inviting representatives from all groups.

Following with "public safety and clean-up week," when county and city are divided into districts to be surveyed for dangers from breeding places for mosquitoes, bad curves, sandbeds, dangerous crossings, etc., listed and sent to chairman to be given to the proper authorities for correction or marking. Negroes love to help. Let them survey their sections and report.

Around the theme, "Prevention" points for discussion are the real foundation of public safety, "I am my brother's keeper." Methods of wiping out tuberculosis, malaria, typhoid, which have been successful; the pedestrian has responsibility for accident as well as the driver; young people are citizens with privileges and responsibilities and should do their part. Georgia stands first in number of accidents, with New York killing only one-third as many people per 10 gallons of gas.

Public safety fight must not be spasmodic, but systematic and permanent. Have the Scouts, boys and girls, repeat this program in their own language, 1, to his or her organization, for which they are to be credited; 2, in the school assembly to have credit in civics and English. The newspapers carry facts each day which may be incorporated with these suggestions. Report to me your contribution to public safety.

American Art Week Set for Nov. 1-7.

This year American Art Week is November 1 to 7. This is an annual event sponsored first by the American Artists' Professional League. It is a means used to arouse interest in contemporary American art and locally produced arts and crafts are especially featured. Every city and town is urged to exhibit paintings, sculpture or craftwork of artists in their vicinity, using museums, schools, women's clubs or merchants' windows for their display. Art pilgrimmages and art appreciation talks are suggested. Send reports of activities to the state chairman of fine arts, Mrs. Alva Maxwell, 2479 Dellwood drive, Atlanta.

Willacoochee Club.

The program included a piano duet by Mrs. J. A. Oberry and Clifton Parker Nugent; a vocal solo by Mrs. Tal Newbern; a paper on Columbus by Miss Georgia Lane Paulk; declamation of 1492 by Clifton Parker Nugent; declamation on Columbus by Billy Corbitt and Travis Sutton.

A business session was held with the president, Mrs. E. L. Moore, presiding. Mrs. A. Corbitte, Mrs. O. R. Roberts, Mrs. J. F. Black and Mrs. T. E. Chapman were hostesses.

Hoschton Juniors.

The Hoschton Junior Woman's Club met recently at the Braselton High school home economics cottage.

Present were Mrs. W. D. Bell, the club's new leader; Willie Nelle Coburn, Anne Lois Cooper, Mary Lou Davis, Hayzeen Baggs, Vertis Stancil, Dorothy Castleberry, Myrtle Ruth Baird and honorary members, Miss Ruth Davis and Miss Irene Dokins.

The vice president, Myrtle Ruth Baird, was in charge of the program. An interesting reading, Columbus Day, was given by Dorothy Castleberry. Hostesses were Anne Lois Cooper and Myrtle Ruth Baird.

Clayton Woman's Club.

The president of Clayton Woman's Club, Mrs. C. R. Hendrix, welcomed as new members at the October meeting Misses Mary Teasley and Marguerite Beckerman. The club met at the community house and hosts were Mesdames J. F. Ramey, H. E. Duncan and B. C. Dorsey. Mrs. E. R. Taylor, chairman, stated that $33.47 was realized from the Fair lunch booth, and thanked the members for their co-operation. The program was in charge of the garden division, and Mrs. Taylor talked on what should be done each month in gardening, for the most blooms during the winter months. Mrs. J. C. Dover talked on "Bulbs," speaking from experience with her beautiful flowers.

Under the Cherokee Rose

By Rose Marie

Yearbooks from four splendid clubs received at state headquarters are acknowledged with thanks; Wymodausis, of Valdosta; the Woman's Club of Augusta, and the Fitzgerald and Vidalia Women's clubs. Wymodausis featured a musical program at the opening meeting on October 13 with Mrs. D. W. Waldron in charge. A reception followed honoring new members, and faculty members from colleges, public schools and music studios.

"Education for Living; Education for Citizenship," living life's fullest and best, is the theme of the Augusta Woman's Club year. The yearbook contains the biennial reports and is most inclusive and helpful, Mrs. I. R. White is the president. At the October meeting of the Fitzgerald Woman's Club the president, Mrs. C. A. Holtzendorf, had as theme for her message, "Why Are We Clubwomen?" enlarging upon the thought for the day, "Life is fortified by many friendships." Vidalia also has as themes for the year, "Education for Living" and "Education for Citizenship," and has already featured two programs: "Know Your Community" and "Toward a Better Way of Living."

Another yearbook which is very much appreciated comes from the newest club to join the federation, the Manchester Junior Woman's Club, of which Mrs. M. D. Barker, is president. This group of young women has chosen as theme for the year, "Education for Citizenship" and the October program had "American Citizenship" as the subject. Mrs. Jack Brown was leader. The project for the month is a Halloween costume dance. Activities include: Equip and supervise playground for children, conduct story hour for young people, assist the rural folks to market their products, sponsor children's library, co-operate with the legislative program by writing letters, bind magazine stories attractively and give to shut-ins, sponsor contest for beautification of home and surroundings, singing Christmas carols, taking part in Red Cross roll call and seal sale, sponsor art appreciation contest in school, collect clothing for needy.

On the date of the first district meeting in Vidalia, Mrs. Abraham B. Conger, state president, was honored with a brilliant receptiton given by the executive board of Vidalia Woman's Club. Sharing honors were Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, and Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick. Members of the board of Lyons Woman's Club were special guests and assembled with the club members and their husbands to greet the receiving line which included Mrs. Conger, Mrs. Ritchie, Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Fred L. Huie, Mrs. R. E. Ledford and Mrs. M. F. Brice.

An outstanding program on the United States constitution was presented by Mrs. Maxwell Murray at the recent meeting of Fort Valley Woman's Club by Henry Harris, who gave an informative talk on the New Deal and the constitution. During the business routine with Mrs. Walter Lee presiding, a committee was named to draft memorial resolutions on the death of Mrs. John Fletcher, a beloved member. Musicl selections were rendered by Mrs. W. J. Liirpfert, and Miss Dorothy Matthews gave a reading. Hosts were Mesdames F. E. Titus, C. Hall, W. A. Wood and C. B. Almon.

We learn from the yearbook received from Toccoa Junior Woman's Club that the new president is Frances Isbell; first vice president, Margaret Leitch; second vice president, Min Lipscomb; recording secretary, Fay McFarlin; corresponding secretary, Rebecca Harper; treasurer, Jane Collier; parliamentarian, Nelle Edge; historian, Hazel Meaders. The October program featured Tallulah Falls school of which Josephine Andrews is chairman. This is the first yearbook issued by the group which has 44 members enrolled. Congratulations, juniors, and all good wishes.

Thomasville Study Class meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. W. D. Hargrave. The program featured a paper by Mrs. W. E. Young, "The School of Femininity," which dealt with women writers, and "Women in Soviet Russia," a paper written by Mrs. Edgar Brandon, was read by Mrs. W. W. Jarrell and presented a vivid picture of women in Russia. The book, "Jungles Preferred," by Dr. Jane Miller, reviewed by Mrs. James Evans Jr., gave touching and humorous stories of African peoples contacted during the author's residence among them.

Miss Florrie Lee Erb, of Georgia Baptist hospital, is the incoming president of Fifth District, Georgia State Nurses' Association and Mrs. Julian Swain is the new treasurer. Miss Erb is a young woman, completing her studies for a degree, and as the chosen leader of 685 members of her association she has the good wishes of Georgia Federation of Women's Club, of which this group is a part.

A New alertness on the part of the American people to the value of their democratic heritage and a new determination to preserve it were marked characteristics of the seventh annual forum on current topics held in New York city under the sponsorship of the Herald-Tribune. Hence, "The Second Discovery of America" logically became the general title, and leading citizens are "rediscoverers" in remedying flaws in the social and political life of today. A nation popularly supposed to have been discovered nearly four and one-half centuries ago was subjected to penetrating analysis and found to have as many exciting possibilities for future development as it had when Christopher Columbus first saw it and thought it was East India. Sixty-three speakers ranging from a young married couple, pondering the problem of whether a wife should work, to the President of the United States, participated in the forum. Capacity audiences of more than 3,000 delegates crowded each session.

Bainbridge Woman's Club held its October meeting in the clubrooms with the vice president, Mrs. W. O. Gaines, presiding, in the absence of the president, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, who is ill. Mrs. V. S. Porter, chairman, American home department, presented Mrs. Jake Crider, of Washington, D. C., who gave an interesting talk on the natural resources of Georgia. Mrs. W. R. Carswell gave an interesting talk on "Things for Georgia Citizens to Think About." Report of the board meeting in Albany was given by Mrs. C. S. Hodges. Hosts were Mesdames J. E. Nordan, T. N. Britton, T. C. Funderburk, O. M. Green, H. G. Bell, Otis Tool, Neil Brooks, Lindsey Cornell and Z. B. Subers.

Lena Madesin Phillips, associate editor Pictorial Review, has issued another of her valuable booklets. This latest, "A Guide For Club Women," is dedicated "to that unnamed multitude of women who, as members, try to give their best to their clubs." It tells how to organize a new club, gives suggested constitution and by-laws, order of business, parliamentary "tools," and duties of officers and of committees. Order a copy for 25 cents from Miss Phillips, Fifty-seventh street, New York city.

Meansville Club Elects School Grade Mothers

Meansville Woman's Club met recently in the clubroom, with the president, Mrs. A. J. McCord, presiding. Ways and means chairman, Mrs. William Slade, reported $8.12 added to the treasury. Money made from the candy sale was contributed to the school laboratory fund.

Mrs. J. B. Parham, who attended the seventh district convention in Marietta, brought greetings and birthday wishes from the state president, Mrs. A. B. Conger, and from the seventh district. Mrs. W. G. Wingate, of Ellijay, first vice president of the ninth district, extended greetings. Each member brought pennies denoting her age, this sum to go into the club's treasury. Charter members present were Mesdames N. E. Fackler, E. B. Green, E. A. McCanless and R. F. Poole.

Baconton Club Elects Officers.

Baconton Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Tom Jackson, and Mrs. J. B. Miller, who was elected president resigned on account of moving away. The former president, Miss Rose Greer, consented to resume the office, and presided. Other names present by the nominating committee and accepted were, vice president, Mrs. J. R. Pinson Jr.; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. E. Dean; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Tom Jackson. Mrs. J. B. Miller opened the exercises with the club collect and, as chairman of programs and homes, presented her committee members. Tallulah Falls school, Mrs. Andrew McDowell; American citizenship, Mrs. R. M. Tiller; American home, Mrs. J. B. Miller Jr.; education, Mrs. Glayde Mallard; fine arts, Mrs. J. R. Miller; public welfare, Mrs. Jessie Jackson; nature study, Mrs. R. P. Jackson; gardens, Mrs. L. C. Fleming; international relations, Mrs. J. R. Cole; press, Mrs. Tom Jackson.

On the program were Mrs. George McArthur, of Albany, president of the second district, and Mrs. J. E. Thomas, of Albany. Mrs. McArthur made an interesting talk on club work, giving an outline of the projects for the year, especially stressing the celebration of the 25th birthday of the Ella F. White Memorial endowment. She urged every club to get on the honor roll during this jubilee year. Baconton will join in the state-wide study of Georgia and will follow the prescribed programs sent out by the citizens fact finding committee. Leaders and hostesses were announced for the ensuing months.

Fort Valley Club Holds Meeting.

At Fort Valley Woman's Club recent meeting the president, Mrs. Walter Lee, brought greetings and welcomed members from other organizations. In presenting the new yearbooks, Mrs. C. B. Almon outlined the year's study program. Miss Thelma Wilson, the chairman, directed an interesting program on "The American Home," and members gave an item of interest pertaining to their homes.

On the program were Mrs. Chester Wilson, from the Governor Treutlen chapter, D. A. R.; Mrs. E. M. Whiting, Fort Valley D. A. R.; Mrs. A. Hollingsworth, U. D. C.; Mrs. Paul Murray, study club; Mrs. Mithoff, Service Star Legion; Mrs. W. E. Green, Legion auxiliary; Mrs. V. L. Brown, from the Garden Club, and Miss Elizabeth Woolfolk, from the library auxiliary. Musical selections were given by O. C. Turner, gifted singer from Ashburn, with Mrs. Turner at the piano.

Miss Martha Hall read and Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Almon presided at the tea table where the club colors, white and green, were in evidence. Hostesses were club officers: Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Alman, Mesdames H. ## Ninth District Convention Attended By 100 Prominent Clubwomen

By MRS. J. B. PARHAM, Press Chairman.

The ninth district convention of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, held recently in the new high school auditorium in Commerce, was attended by 100 women, representing clubs in the district, and some state officers.

Dr. J. C. Verner and Superintendent S. F. Maughon extended greetings from the city and school and Mrs. John Hood, representing Commerce Woman's Club, welcomed the visitors. Response was made by Mrs. W. J. Burch, of Winder.

The district president, Mrs. C. E. Pittman, of Commerce, presided. Her message to clubwomen was one of appreciation for work being done by the district and an urge to continue the work as outlined by the federation.

Mrs. J. O. Braselton, of Braselton, presented the following distinguished guests: Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge, president of Georgia Federation; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, general federation director; Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas, first vice president of Georgia Federation; Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, of Tallulah Falls school, past president of Georgia Federation and state chairman of Ella F. White Endowment Fund.

In her splendid talk Mrs. Conger recommended the offer of prizes to high school students for citizenship. She touched on all phases of club work in an informative and inspirational way, closing with this thought, that the aim of each clubwoman be "Let her face boldly and courageously her problems of today, whether they be of home, state or nation, lay hold of jobs which cry out to be done, strive fearlessly and whole-heartedly for a culture worthy of American tradition and ideals."

Mrs. Ritchie, who has been untiring in her work in the cancer control movement, spoke of her appreciation of the ready response and the great work done by the ninth district in that undertaking. She had some of the new cookbooks she compiled and had published for the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and clubwomen waxed enthusiastic over these books.

Mrs. Butler's message was based on club extension. She said it was a distinct compliment to a woman to become a member of a federated club, it affords privileges for working together with a band of women including the 48 United States and 19 foreign countries, clubwomen are termed "a group of women to be depended upon to promote all things for the betterment of life."

Mrs. Fitzpatrick explained in detail the Ella F. White fund and brought interesting facts regarding this fund and just how it is used. She extended an invitation to ninth district women to visit Tallulah Falls school at this season, while the scenery is so lovely in its rich autumn colors. District chairmen and club presidents reported on their activities.

The district went on record as approving the indorsement of Mrs. H. B. Ritchie for recording secretary of the General Federation, which will be an honor not only to Mrs. Ritchie but to the state of Georgia. The following nominating committee was appointed: Mrs. W. J. Burch, Winder; Mrs. J. O. Braselton, Braselton; Mrs. M. M. Bryan, Jefferson.

A new standing committee to be known as the records' committee was appointed, composed of Mrs. J. B. Parham, Woodstock; Mrs. John Holder, Jefferson, and Mrs. H. P. DeLaPerriere, Hoschton.

Mrs. A. A. Rogers, chairman of credentials, reported four state officers, three state chairmen, five district officers, 14 district chairmen, two endowment chairmen, 19 delegates and more than 40 visitors in attendance.

Commerce Choral Club, high school chorus, and Miss Olivia Hood gave musical numbers. Mrs. Homer V. Jones, of Norcross, extended invitation to hold the spring meeting in Norcross.

District officers present were: President, Mrs. C. E. Pittman, Commerce; first vice president, Mrs. W. G. Wingate, Ellijay; recording secretary, Miss Lonie Reece Couch, Winder; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Colquitt Hardman, Commerce; treasurer, Mrs. A. G. Mickel, Robertstown. ## Winder Juniors Hold Meeting.

Winder Junior Woman's Club held the second meeting of the club year on October 12, the president, Miss Louise House, opening the exercises by leading the members in the national pledge of Junior Clubwomen.

Mrs. Johnny Adams told the final plans of the readers' unit. Various groups of six members are to meet twice a month to discuss literature to be secured from the Sears library. It was voted to arrange for a dance at Thanksgiving.

On the program was an interesting lecture by Mrs. E. R. Harris on "Healthy and Happy Womanhood." Mrs. Harris emphasized health as an essential to the success of women in all phases of life. Hostesses serving refreshments were: Annie Hunter Hargrove, Melba Woodward, Reba Garner, Kathryn Hargrove.

Mrs. Hines Speaks To Tennille Club.

Mrs. Nell Wommack Hines, of Milledgeville, poetess, musician and authoress, spoke at the clubhouse when a "home and garden" program was presented under the direction of Mrs. Will Brantley, chairman of the garden division of Tennille Woman's Club. Cohostesses were Mesdames Joe Sinquefield and William Fulgham.

Mrs. Brantley gave original verses on appreciation of home, followed by a violin solo, "Trees," by Miss Mary Carolyn Carmichael. Mrs. H. M. Franklin introduced Mrs. Hines, who spoke on "Home and Gardens," written by her, which appeared in Holland's magazine, with illustrations.

Songs, "Green Gardens" and "My Little Flower," the words and music written by Mrs. Hines, were sung by Mrs. R. E. Long, of Milledgeville. Mrs. H. M. Franklin presented an original contest, "A Tour of Georgia," in which everyone participated. Other Milledgeville guests were Mrs. W. T. Wynne and Mrs. George Carpenter, who gave talks, and a gift was presented to Mrs. Hines.

Elberton Club Works For Local Welfare.

Elberton Woman's Club met recently at the club room with the president, Mrs. C. F. Cumming, presiding. The collect was read by Mrs. J. H. Miller. Clubwomen will work for the welfare of the community. The program was arranged by Mrs. Sam Combs, chairman department of gardens.

Mrs. Lloyd Mewbourne gave two readings. Mrs. Harris Bailey rendered vocal solos, accompanied by Mrs. W. A. Johnson. "How to Cultivate Roses" was given by Mrs. John Jenkins.

The flower contest prizes were won by Miss Janett Eberhardt and Mrs. Pat Furcron. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mesdames George Lee White, Vail Deadwyler, Harris Bond, Young Smith, Clyde Williams and C. F. Cumming.

Executive board members were entertained recently at a buffet luncheon at the home of Mrs. C. F. Cumming with Mesdames Harris Bond and G. L. White as hostesses. The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. C. F. Cumming. The center table decoration was a miniature rock garden, designed by Mrs. Sam Combs, chairman of garden department.

Members present were: Mesdames Lloyd Mewborne, W. A. Lee, W. M. Bowers, Young Smith, Walton Johnson, Clyde Williams, Jack Smith, Lula Peek, G. C. Hulme, Sam Combs, Pat Furcron, H. R. Bynum, J. H. ## PEEPLES SCHOOL HAS MERCY BAND

Fourth Graders Survey Community To Register and Innoculate Dogs.

Members of High 4 Band of Mercy made a survey of all the dogs in the community. Since a good many had not been inoculated and registered, they asked their sponsor, John Woodward, who writes "About Dogs" for the Atlanta Georgian, to ask a veterinarian to help them. On Friday, Mr. Woodward brought Dr. J. E. Severin to the school to inoculate neighborhood dogs. They hope to keep their register of the dogs up-to-date and remind owners when their licenses expire.

High 4 are sponsoring a pet show, at which they will stress care of pets rather than pedigree.

The Nature-Garden Club met in Hooper hall and elected officers: Blanche Seignious, president; Winter Griffith, vice president; Betty Olds, secretray, and John Holt, treasurer. This club sponsored an assembly program with Princess White Fawn in songs, dances, poems, legends and historical facts about the Vanishing American. From the proceeds of this program the Garden Club will build a fish pond and a lily pool.

SCHOOL OFFICIAL TALKS AT BROWN

M. E. Coleman Urges Students To Follow Advice of Teachers in School.

Mr. M. E. Coleman, assistant superintendent of the elementary schools of Atlanta, spoke to the seven low assembly at Joe Brown Monday, October 25. Mr. Coleman stressed the fact that there are a lot of things in the way of knowledge that students need to learn and if they follow the advice of their teachers they will invariably get it.

Joe Brown was second to having the best attendance record for all the schools in Atlanta for the week of October 18-22.

Mr. Rogers' 9-L-1 home room celebrates a birthday party every rainy day recess. The home room keeps a list of all the birthdays that come from one rainy day to the next and then celebrates them all on a rainy day recess.

Mr. W. H. Vaugham, a ceramic engineer at the state engineering experiment station, gave an interesting and educational talk to Mr. K. B. Edwards' sixth period science class Monday, October 25, about minerals found around Atlanta and their use in ceramics.

Superintendent's Message

October 31, 1937.

My dear Boys and Girls: I have been writing to you about the second great objective of our school program in Atlanta—the preservation of the American home. Of course the only kind of home that you have ever known is the home of the years of your particular life, and for most of you I am sure it is a happy home and a good home, but I am tremendously interested in each doing his particular part to preserve a beautiful home life for America.

As October fades away and November comes in, the chilly atmosphere drives us from our porches and outdoor activities into our houses, and this is a grand time to gather around the fireside and to really understand what it means for father and mother and sisters and brothers to sit together in the circle which really makes up home life.

My message to you is "let us learn to find our joys and our pleasures at home." Let us learn how to stay at home and to find our highest delights in making it attractive. Sometimes I think it would be a grand idea for us to get better acquainted with our own father and mother, our own brothers and sisters. The family is the greatest institution on earth; the house is but a symbol of that family; the ties that bind the group together; their willingness to work in a co-operative way, these really make up the institution of a home; but the house, its cleanliness and its beauty, the flowers that grow in the yard, the grass and trees on the lawn, the vegetables in the garden are all a part of the home institution. Let us try to make the house attractive, the home a place of love and devotion, a genuine symbol of the great Father of us all who loves each of us as His children, and then we can readily come to look upon the whole world family as God's family and God's children. Always your friend,

WILLIS A. SUTTON,
Superintendent of Schools.

Opportunity School Plans Library With Aid of Alumni and Friends

As this is Apple Week, the school had a display of a variety of Georgia apples. Various discussions were given about the value of apples to one's health.

The home-making class makes various articles for use in the home, and now the girls are busy planting potted plants and bulbs.

The school has started definite plans to obtain a library. A library has never been maintained at the school before, but the teachers, students and alumni have all been asked to contribute at least one book to the class. The library will become a great help to both students and teachers.

At the assembly on Friday a very fine program was given. Mr. O. Magnuson, director of electrical shops, spoke on the subject, "How the CCC Camps Are Being Taught Practical Vocational Skills." Mrs. Helen Krump, pupil of the trade sewing group, talked on the subject, "Smith-Hughes Bill Has Helped Carry Forward Vocational Work." The last speaker was Miss May Martin, co-operative sales student, who gave the "George-Deen Act." The meeting was well attended and enjoyed.

ATLANTA HISTORY SHOWN AT HARRIS

Original Pageant Celebrates City Centennial.

The teachers and pupils at J. C. Harris are presenting an original pageant in celebration of Atlanta's hundredth birthday this week. They are giving it for the parents, Board of Education and administrative department on Monday night, November 1, and for principals and teachers of the other schools Tuesday morning, November 2.

We have enjoyed getting up this pageant because we have learned so much about Atlanta and her people and resources. Our mothers have helped us so much because they have made our costumes, which we think are very pretty.

The high school council will meet on Thursday at 3 p. m. at the Atlanta Tubercular Clinic, at 286 Forrest avenue.

Center Hill School.

Reading certificates for finishing ten or more books during the summer vacation have been awarded to the following Center Hill pupils: Dorothy Jones, Robert Jones, Myrtle Wells, Barbara Rentz, Charles Litton, Sammie Lee Jones, Helen Jones, Herschel Jenkins, William Crawford, Sara Brock, Carl Bridwell, Marilyn Bartlett and Juanita Cantrell. Miss Brown's sixth grade gave a book pageant at the assembly when the certificates were given out.

All the pupils enjoyed the Halloween carnival sponsored by the P.-T. A. and the teachers on Friday afternoon.

Ben Hill School.

All the Ben Hill pupils were interested in Halloween and the first graders made unusually good pumpkins and jack-o-lanterns to decorate their room. The carnival held on Friday was very successful.

There is a reading corner in the second grade room which the pupils are trying to make the most attractive part of their room. The many new library books help them to enjoy their project very much. They are glad to have Edwin Pelot in the class.

An outdoor Indian village has been built by the third graders.

Sleighs, airplanes and canoes have been constructed by the fifth grade pupils in a study of transportation.

Chattahoochee School.

The Chattahoochee pupils are very proud of their new flag. It adds a great deal to the looks of the school yard which is being landscaped and prepared for a beautification project.

Nature study is absorbing the interest of many of the classes. The first graders are drawing autumn leaves and making a study of nature's care of the trees for winter. The third and fourth grades are making a study of autumn flowers, leaves and fruits.

The fifth graders have planted many tulip bulbs which they can enjoy in the spring.

The second grades have as their activities for this year a study of Indians, home life and a farm project.

Bolton School.

When the fifth and sixth grade pupils at Bolton school began a study of airplanes, they gathered all the material they could find. They read stories about the Wright brothers, Post, Amelia Earheart, Lindbergh and the China Clipper. There was a large collection of pictures. The class was divided into four groups. Two groups of boys actually constructed models of airplanes, making them according to scale. The other two groups made booklets that assembled all their information, and besides learning to name the kinds of planes and the control board instruments they learned to spell all those names.

Miss Tumlin's fourth and fifth grade have made a similar study of ships. All the pupils made ship models and the best ones are being saved for a school exhibit to be held later.

PUPILS AT MORELAND MAKE BOOKS ON PETS

Kindergarten had a Halloween party Friday, making their own hats and lanters.

High 2 planted some narcissus bulbs to put in the living room they are making.

Mrs. Battle's class are making booklets on their pets.

Miss Weston took groups of children to Grant park and to the city hall last week.

Mrs. Bethea has a group of children out of her class to pose for the famous pictures.

Low 4 are going to the municipal market.

Low 6-1 are planning to visit the Atlanta newspapers soon.

Low 6-2 put on a play last week called "The Fairy Frog."

High 6 are making transportation booklets.

Moreland is going to put on a play and some living pictures.

We hope everybody will have a happy Halloween week end.

GEORGIA JOHNS.

CONNALLY CLASS HAS PUMPKIN FOR LANTERN

Kindergarten children had a large pumpkin for their Halloween party. They made a Jack-o'-lantern out of it.

First grade have a new canary bird.

Second grade are busy preparing the grounds for the home they are going to build in their room.

Third grade are very sorry that their teacher is going to be absent for a few days because she is ill.

Fourth grade enjoyed making Halloween decorations and favors.

We miss Bobby Smith, who is out after undergoing an operation. We hope he will soon be back with us.

Sixth grade are studying the middle ages. They are finding out when the medieval life first started and how the people lived.

HAZEL IVEY.
JACQUELINE SWATTS.

O'KEEFE PARTIES NAME CANDIDATES

Annual Student Party Conventions Select Nominees for Major Offices.

The annual conventions were held at O'Keefe October 15. Broadus Carmichael and Bubber Ezell were nominated president and vice president of O'Keefe on the Green ticket; Pat Roberts and David Blackshear on the White. The records of these boys make them eligible for the offices.

Broadus is judge of the courts and a member of the cabinet. In both of these positions he has received experience in leadership. He has been on the Panther team every year and is now captain. Broadus appointed as his campaign manager, Dewey White.

Bubber is quarterback on the Panther team and has always had an outstanding scholastic record. Their slogan is "Stick to the Green Party."

Pat served a successful apprenticeship as vice president last year. He was elected the most popular boy at the hobby fair and was governor of the eighth grade. He attended the National Educational Association convention for the student government during the past summer as representative of O'Keefe. Henry Morrow was chosen campaign manager.

David is president of his class and very prominent in glee club work. He is captain of the 95-pound team. Their slogan is "See the Light and Vote White."

The election will be held November 2. There will be a possible 1,648 votes cast.

Jack McMurtrey has been appointed junior fire inspector. It is his duty to make periodic inspection of the building to see that it is safe. In this connection fire drills have been carried on. It is possible to have the building empty in one minute, 40 seconds.

ALICE RAYLE.

EAST LAKE PUPILS ENJOY HALLOWEEN

Annual Carnival Features Parade of Costumes and Amateur Show.

East Lake children enjoyed their annual Halloween carnival Friday. Everyone had much fun. There were Halloween parades of costumes, a hall of horrors, an amateur show, an orchestra, booths of all kinds and many other interesting features.

Two large Halloween pumpkins are visiting in the first grade, but soon they will be made into jack-o-lanterns.

Cotton picking was one of the pleasures enjoyed by the second grade children during their recent visit to Porter's farm.

Fourth grade are making poems, booklets and posters about apple week.

J. W. Creasy is a welcome new member in the fifth grade. The children are happy to have Dan Kennedy, who has been in the hospital, back at school.

LILLIAN RICHARDS,
EVELYN GRAY.

PUPILS AT CREW PREPARE FAVORS

Hospitals Will Get Articles for Halloween.

High 6 made Halloween favors for the Atlanta Junior Red Cross. These favors were sent to various hospitals. We are sorry to lose Louise Garrett, who transferred to Pryor Street school. Louise was one of our most capable pupils. We are enjoying an extensive study of rubber.

A group of Low 6 children visited the home of Judge Humphries on Wednesday night. They looked through his telescope and saw Jupiter, Mars and Saturn.

High 5 invited High 4 to their Nature-Garden Club program last Friday. The children told about their trips to the farm.

Nearly every one in Low 5 has a pot for a plant.

High 4 were glad to welcome Jewel Johnson from Key school.

High 3 made their first regular trip to the library Friday afternoon.

Low 3 won the P.-T. A. prize for the lower grades. They are going to spend it for something to beautify their room.

Low 1-1 have a beautiful terrarium in their room.

MARTHA HANKINSON.

FAIR PRIMARY GRADES GIVE SCHOOL PROGRAM

Fair gave a Halloween carnival Friday. We had a candy pull-pulling also on the playground. we had many other prize-winning things and other things to buy.

Low 6 and High 6 collected all the Halloween favors and sent them to the Red Cross committee.

Low 1 had some poems recited by children from that room.

High 1 played the play of the "Three Billy Goats Gruff."

Low 2 recited poems, sang songs and danced.

High 2 gave a play about the Japanese fairies.

ESSIE MAE FRENCH.

LARGE STABLES.

The largest stables of Palomino horses in the world are located at the Nevada stock farm in Reno, historic breeding and training ranch for George Wingfield's famous race horses. The farm, now the state's biggest dude ranch, has 50 of the beautiful cream colored horses distinguished by their silver manes and tails. Thirty of them are registered animals.

Actress Miriam Hopkins Takes Lead In Faith Baldwin Radio Drama Today

JULIE GIBSON.

Bidu Sayao Guest Star on Sunday Evening Hour Program.

Miriam Hopkins will star in "P. S., She Got the Job," an original radio drama written especially for the Sunday afternoon Silver theater by Faith Baldwin, in the broadcast to be heard over WGST at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

This will be the first of the Silver theater productions to be played in a single performance. According to Conrad Nagel, impressario of the series, plays to follow will be of both the single performance variety and the serial type of production such as "First Love," which inaugurated the series with Rosalind Russell and Jimmie Stewart as stars.

The orchestra, under the direction of Felix Mills, will furnish the musical background for the program.

OPEN HOUSE.

Wilbur Evans, concert baritone, who has been heard in support of Jeanette MacDonald, star of the "Open House" series of programs, has been signed to appear on all subsequent programs with the screen star, and will be heard with her on the broadcast to be heard over WGST at 6 o'clock tonight.

A medley of the better known Stephen Foster melodies will be woven together in a melodious pattern of Josef Pasternack and his orchestra and chorus, which also will be heard throughout the half-hour, assisting the two vocal stars.

The music to be heard on the program includes:

"Pardon Me, Madame" (Miss MacDonald).
"The Night Was Made for Love" (Miss MacDonald).
"Billy Boy" (Miss MacDonald).
"Oh, Promise Me" (Wilbur Evans).
"Orchestral Selection" (Josef Pasternack and orchestra).
"Les Filles de Cadiz" (Miss MacDonald).
"When You're Away" (Miss MacDonald).
"Lead Kindly Light" (Miss MacDonald).

BIDU SAYAO.

Bidu Sayao, young Brazilian soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be guest soloist on the Sunday Evening Hour broadcast to be heard over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight. The symphony orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, will contribute to the musical part of the program.

Music to be heard on the program includes:

"C'era una volta un principe" (Miss Sayao).
"Overture to Flinka's Russian and Ludmilla" (orchestra).
"On the Boughs the Buds Are Springing" (orchestra).
"Jota" (Miss Sayao).
"A Dream" (Miss Sayao).
"Londonderry Air" (orchestra).
"Love Has Eyes" (Miss Sayao).
"Hunxarian Dance No. 5 in G Minor" (orchestra).
"Caprice Espagnol" (orchestra).
"Prayer" (orchestra, chorus, audience).

JOE PENNER.

Comedian Joe Penner continues his ludicrous attempts to recoup the lost fortunes of his once proud Park Avenue family in the episode to be heard over WGST at 5 o'clock tonight.

As usual, Joe's ferocious, but futile, efforts will produce any number of laughs, if not any lucre. Joe will be assisted by a large cast of stooges and the music of Vocalists Gene Austin, Julie Gibson and Jimmy Grier's orchestra.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 31, 1937.

THE TAXES WE PAY

Out of every dollar earned in the United States today, approximately 30 cents must be subtracted to pay the costs of government.

Of this 30 cents out of each dollar, about 20 cents is consumed by federal, state and local taxes, paid either directly or indirectly. The remaining 10 cents represents funds borrowed.

For the year 1936, according to figures compiled by the National Industrial Conference Board, the total expenditures of all governments in the country—federal, state, county and municipal—amounted to approximately $17,000,000,000. Which is twice the total farm income of the United States for that year.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, the total of federal taxes and receipts was approximately $5,300,000,000. Expenditures for the same period were approximately $8,105,000,000, or $2,811,000,000 more than income.

In March, 1933, the public debt of the United States was $20,937,350,000. On June 30 last the public debt had mounted to $36,425,000,000. This represents an increase for the four years between March, 1933, and June, 1937, of more than $15,000,000,000.

The total expenditures of the federal government alone, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, was more than the total farm income of the entire United States for the calendar year of 1936, which is estimated at about $8,000,000,000.

Just after the World War, when taxes were regarded, in comparison to previous experiences, as extremely high, the tax collector gathered a little more than one-tenth of the national income. Today he demands twice as much, or more than one-fifth of the national income.

The federal government has been spending nearly as much as all the states and local governments combined. At the same time the necessity for "matching" federal appropriations has brought heavy spending by state and local governments.

In Georgia, state taxes for 1937 show an increase of $8,398,000 over all state taxes for 1936. This is exclusive of the unemployment insurance tax which, it is estimated, will amount to at least $5,000,000 in this state for 1937, thus making the increase in the taxpayers' burden in state taxes alone at least $13,398,000 for one year only.

Further proposed increases in state taxes totaling $7,000,000 would make a net increase of more than $20,398,000, and a total cost of operating the state government, including unemployment insurance taxes, of $50,398,000.

This is more than the lint value of the state's entire cotton crop, twice the value of the state corn crop, more than two and one-half times the value of the tobacco crop and more than ten times the value of the peach crop.

If this additional $7,000,000 is levied, the annual tax bill of Georgia, including state, counties and municipalities, will approximate $85,000,000, more than the combined value of the corn and cotton crops, including the value of the seed.

The amount collected in Georgia by the federal government, including an estimated $5,000,000 for old age benefits, totals $21,500,000. Add this to the state and local tax bills and it is shown that Georgians alone pay the stupendous sum of $106,500,000 in taxes. The entire crops of cotton, corn, wheat, peaches and sweet potatoes would not be sufficient to pay this bill.

Notwithstanding these tremendous tax revenues, the governmental agencies are spending more than they receive, running further and further into debt each year. This is especially true of the federal government.

The combined debt of state, local and federal governments as of June 30, 1937, is estimated at $53,400,000,000. This sum, as well as interest, must be paid some day.

In the United States today there is about $6,000,000,000 in currency in circulation. Every dollar of money in the entire nation would thus have to be scooped up and shoveled out again more than eight times to pay the present governmental debt.

Every day of the fiscal year which ended on June 30 last, the federal government alone spent an average of $24,300,000, Sundays and holidays included. Of this daily outgo, $13,000,000 represented increase in the total debt owed by the taxpayers of the nation.

It is foolish for any citizen, regardless of his position in life, to imagine that he escapes paying his share of the taxes. The old slogan, "Soak the rich," does not apply any more. If every penny of property owned by every so-called "rich man" was confiscated tomorrow it would make no appreciable dent in the expenditures of the governments.

Taxes are paid by everyone, either directly or indirectly. The man who does not pay ad valorem taxes, income taxes or school taxes, nevertheless pays every time he spends a dollar. His tax contributions are hidden in the rent he pays to his landlord, in the check he sends to his tailor, in the dollars his wife turns over to the grocer and the meat market man.

The dollar today is worth, in actual value, far less than it was worth a few years ago. In purchasing power it has shrunk still further.

High prices for the necessities of life are inevitable when, out of every dollar paid for food, clothing, shelter and other essentials, such a large percentage must first be taken to meet the demands of the tax collector and for the future payment of governmental obligations.

The man or woman who complains of advancing cost of living is really complaining of the tribute levied on all his earnings by a government whose spending has exceeded the wildest dreams of the most radical economists of ages past.

Surely the limit of ability to pay has been reached. Whatever else government does, it must not increase, either directly or indirectly, the tax burden which now rests upon the shoulders of every man, woman and child in America.

THE GRAND JURY REPORT

The final presentments of the outgoing grand jury constitute an analysis of conditions in Atlanta and Fulton county which should be read and studied most carefully by every citizen of the community.

This grand jury has devoted itself unselfishly and untiringly to an investigation of unsound conditions affecting the public welfare. Existing evils are fearlessly and intelligently attacked and the work of the jury should be met not only by public approval but by a response that will bring vitally needed reforms.

In pointing to the evil of graft-taking law enforcement officers, in turning the light of public attention upon the operation of "rackets" in this community, in showing where there is unnecessary expense in government operation, in pointing to unsound methods of conducting the affairs of the courts and in condemning excessively high salaries to public officials, the jury has performed a public service unsurpassed by any jury of the past.

The grand jury system is an integral part of democratic government. It is one of the basic essentials to the impartial administration of justice, protecting the citizen in his constitutional rights and providing a public check upon the conduct of local governmental affairs. When members of a grand jury realize, as have these Atlantans who now conclude their period of service as jurors, the full significance of their deliberations, the cause of good government is bulwarked by the alert intelligence of the people from whom government derives its authority.

The presentments are so lengthy and cover so wide a field of investigation it is impossible to make editorial comment upon them in detail. They speak for themselves, however, and every citizen of Atlanta and of Fulton county should, for the sake of the community as a whole, read and study them carefully. The jury has done its work earnestly and carefully. It is now the duty of all citizens to see that that work is not wasted and to insist that steps be taken to carry out the many excellent recommendations made.

The grand jury deserves high praise for having performed fine service, fearlessly and without shirking.

BETTER FOOD FOR THOUGHT

In a communication appearing elsewhere in this issue of The Constitution, Mrs. Elton Chapman, of Lindbergh drive, makes the arresting comment that discussion of the ideas on gardening and landscaping given by Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown at the recent Constitution Garden School is more palatable mental food than talk about wars and war preparations.

"It shows," she writes, "how much more interesting it can be to study building roads, houses, gardens, homes, cities, communities, trees, flowers and folks, than to build guns, gases, bullets, warships, bombs and forts."

There is more to Mrs. Chapman's observation than appears on the surface.

The more the thoughts of all the world are directed into the channels of beauty and progress, the less interest there will be for the false panoply of war. And, without public interest and enthusiasm even war itself cannot continue.

To this degree those who believe in the power of mind to affect events are correct. For men and women who do not think of war will not bring about conditions conducive to war.

It has been prophesied that a day will come when all the world shall live in peace and beat its swords into plowshares. Before that day comes the world must cease to think of the sword and must become plowshare-minded.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

STOCK MARKET ECHOES WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—It has now become evident, as indicated in this column last week, that the administration's "hands-off" policy regarding the stock market situation wasn't as "hands-offish" as indicated, even at the start.

There are some amazing—and, if you didn't get burned in the market, amusing—tales rustling among the fallen leaves on Pennsylvania avenue.

The most amazing is the charge from a certain set of anti-New Dealers to the effect that the President locked the barn after the horse was stolen and did it on purpose.

This is pretty emphatically denied—at least that hands were held off on purpose to give bad, big business a lesson. But the deniers admit that, ironically, the recent slump that ended on the bright, blue October 19, was, as their opponents called it, a "Roosevelt panic," but in a different sense.

This is the explanation: The Federal Reserve put the margin requirements on stock purchases so high in 1936 that the "little fellow" hasn't been able to get into the market and shoot the works the way he did in 1929. Not many miniature Morgans could plunge when they had to put up 55 per cent of their purchase in cash (45 per cent on the loan value of the stock).

That is what happened. The general public wasn't in this market. The "big fellows" were. They were the ones who got burned. And some of them are blaming the President, saying he refused to step in and save them when he might have.

However that may be, the affair, unless the situation grows worse, may work out all right for the New Deal. The "forgotten man" wasn't hurt directly, and the folks who pile up the majorities in November have almost forgotten it already.

SETTING THE STAGE The chain of events leading to the new federal reserve margin orders is interesting.

To Hyde Park came, first, members of the advisory board of the Department of Commerce, headed by Averell Harriman, and composed of leading businessmen. They invited the President to dinner, it was announced. It wasn't announced that they invited him to do something about the market. Perhaps they didn't.

The Wednesday following there arrived at Krum Elbow Joseph Kennedy, of the Maritime Commission, who is one of the President's advisers on other matters besides ships, and Chairman Douglas, of the SEC. Also among the visitors was James Perkins, president of the National City Bank in New York.

Meanwhile, in Washington, up until the eve of the announcement of the new margin requirements, there was no indication that any statement was forthcoming. The Federal Reserve Board met two days before and it is reported that Dr. Carl Perry, margin expert, didn't even attend.

Then suddenly, after the westernmost markets had closed on Wednesday, the statement came out raising the margin requirements on short sales, lowering them on stock bought. The latter is taken as a friendly gesture to Wall Street, which had complained about the penalty on buying.

SOME RECESSION BRAKES The belated salve for the market may not help stop a major business setback if it's on the books, but there are half a dozen reasons why there may not be much further recession anyhow. They are:

1. A strong and flexible banking system, well fortified with large excess reserves.
2. Absence of widespread speculation in the stock market, such as was the case in 1929.
3. Delayed building program, which, with proper encouragement by the federal government and banking interests of the country, may set the pace for a business recovery early next year.
4. Bountiful crops of cotton, corn and wheat, which assure a huge farm income despite the lower prices now prevailing.
5. Treasury policy of minimizing long-term financing and leaving capital market free to seek investments in corporate issues.
6. Earnest effort being made by President Roosevelt and Treasury officials to balance the budget for the next fiscal year.

REVIEW OF CONDITIONS Freight car loadings in the week ended October 16 totaled 810,000, a reduction of 5,000 cars from the preceding week. Construction contracts awarded in the first half of October were practically unchanged on a daily average basis from September.

The general level of wholesale commodity prices declined from 87.5 per cent of the 1926 average in the latter part of September to 85.2 in the middle of October. Excess reserves of federal reserve member banks, after increasing in September from $750,000,000 to over $1,000,000,000, showed little further change in October.

In the following chart each index figure is based on 1923-25 averages as 100, except prices, which are based on the 1926 level. Most of the figures are adjusted for seasonal variations and are official, except those of October, which are privately estimated.

By M. ASHBY JONES.

"What Eye Hath Not Seen"

No two people live in exactly the same world. Each one lives within the radius of his own experience, which consists of what he sees and hears and thinks. No two people have the same vision through their eyes, and that which their eyes reveals is in turn translated to them in terms of their knowledge, tastes, and opinions. Thus pictures of the same surroundings make totally different impressions.

We are familiar with the differences in testimony of two perfectly honest witnesses of the same scene enacted before them. The temptation for each one of us is to deny the existence of the world which we have not experienced. Each man is apt to make his own experience the true norm, or standard, and judge all variant experiences as abnormal.

So men dealing every day with the familiar world of the five senses, are apt to be impatient of any talk of a world of the unseen and intangible. What they call their "practical commonsense," demands the evidence of sight, sound, vision, and touch. Yet a little thought must convince us that there is an unseen, silent, and intangible world, in which we live just as truly and practically as in the world of five senses. The world we see and hear is in reality the expression of that world of the unseen and intangible. Back of the ponderous weights and the deafening noises of a busy city are the unseen and unheard aspirations and motives, plans and purposes, out of which was born the roar and force of industrial life.

Out there on one of our busy streets of the city, where men dart to and fro in seeming confusion, there is back of their movements a world of courage and fear, hope and anxiety. There the weighing and measuring, the lifting and hauling, are intermingled with standards of honor, shrewdness of selfishness, cruelties and sympathies. But the eyes see only conventional men and women, pretty much alike in dress and manners. It seems a world of the senses alone, but it is in reality a spiritual world, expressing itself in material appearances.

But the spiritual is still considered the dreamy theoretical realm, subordinate to what men term the real and practical. Yet a great building or a giant machine, is the embodied thought of the architect and the inventor. They were first conceived within the silences of the unseen realm, which we call the mind.

Not only is there thought and imagination back of everything which we have ever builded and forged of stone and steel, or manufactured into any material form, but they are all permeated with the personalities of those who planned and shaped them. Something of their standards of honor and sense of responsibility, their taste and temperaments, have inevitably been translated into their work, and will determine the worth of their work to the world.

But let us leave the city and walk into the forest which has not been touched by the hand of man. Here we love the harmony and beauty of birds and trees and babbling brooks. The harmony and beauty which we speak of, is only for the spirit which is sensitive and responsive to tones of beauty in sound and color. There is the stolid man who has dwelt beneath the majesty of a great mountain for a generation, and has seen no beauty in its verdant form, and heard no music in its feathered orchestra or its purling streams. But deeper than the beauty of such a scene, one who has the knowledge, may read the story of an orderly government of laws controlling and directing the growth of flower and forest, the tumbling streams below and the radiant stars above. And he is sure that just as there is the mind of an architect back of the strength and beauty of the great cathedral, there is a Master Mind back of the wonders of this seen world. Better still there is the consciousness of kinship with the Creator Mind who speaks through star and flower, in a language which the creature can understand.

So religion leads us into this realm of the unseen because it is the real world. We do not have to leave the world of the visible and tangible, for it is within the material things we discover the invisible and intangible laws which govern them, and find Him who created and preserves them. Here we learn that "the things which are seen are temporal, but that the unseen things are eternal." Here, too, is the truth of immortality. This material world is the vestibule through which we pass into the realm of the spiritual.

Look Around For Opportunity.

Pessimists moan that everything worth while has been done, that achievement has reached its ultimate peak and there is no opportunity, as there used to be, for youth and initiative.

Shucks! There's just as much opportunity today as ever there was for those with eyes to see. Consider, for instance, Peggy Mitchell and "Gone With the Wind."

And, if you will, consider the town of Tyler, in Texas.

Many a small community is bemoaning its economic difficulties and wishing something could be done to rescue the place, and its inhabitants, from deepening poverty.

Well, Tyler did something.

The town, and all its inhabitants, took up the culture of roses a few years ago.

Today Tyler is the center of the greatest rose-growing industry in the world. The town produces, annually, enough roses to supply at least one bud to every man, woman and child in America. Tyler ships out, each year, at least 15,000,000 young roses. And, each October, tens of thousands of rose lovers from all the world make the pilgrimage to the Tyler carnival of roses.

There were scores of other little communities in Texas and other states which could have done as much with roses as has Tyler. Georgia's own Thomasville has achieved wonders in this line. But the point is, Tyler dreamed and then created her opportunity.

Do you live in a stagnant little town? Look around and see if there isn't something you can start to give your own place a world-recognized spot on the map of some industry or art.

Argot of America.

A vacationist in the mountain country, far away from the beaten tourist track, stood one morning beside a rain-swollen mountain stream and watched the red, roaring river rush between its banks toward the distant sea. He saw great logs and piles of brushwood and odds and ends of rubbish whirl down on the crest of the racing waters.

A native of the vicinity, standing beside the stranger, remarked:

"The river's got its Sunday britches on, today."

And the stranger sought explanation of the striking expression.

The natives told him, simply enough, that whenever they went to town they wore their Sunday britches.

And the river, surely, was "going to town," that day.

Problem Parents.

Every now or then some erudite old bore—yes, I said bore—rears up and talks about "problem children." And I suppose the children he—or she—is talking about feel hot and embarrassed and insulted, inside and want to stand up and shout—"What do you know about our problems? You're so old, mentally, we doubt if you were ever young."

Did you ever stop to consider that there are problem parents as well as problem children? In fact, if the truth were known, probably all of us older ones are quite trying problems to our offspring, at times.

There are so many things, you know, that we don't want our youngsters to do, things they have their hearts set on doing. Things we think are dangerous but they know are safe. And when they try to tell us they are safe we are so apt to take refuge in that ancient hideout of parental authority, "you're not old enough to understand."

Whereas, generally, that isn't the cause of the trouble at all. The real cause is that we are older and hence want always to exercise caution. The point at issue doesn't seem so important to us so we say "no" and thereby feel we are playing safe.

Whereas the point is vitally important to the child and youth, in its wisdom, knows what it will and what it will not do, hence knows it is safe, anyway.

Seems to me a happier meeting ground, a sort of halfway mark, would induce greater happiness in the family. If the parents deferred, a little more, to the wisdom of youth the children would be more apt to heed the admonitions of age.

And you know the wisdom of youth is derived from the fact it is living in the midst of youth and thereby knows, whereas age is, at best, only an onlooker and can do no more than surmise or suspect.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Thursday, October 31, 1912:

"Returning with Chief Beavers to police headquarters after an entire day spent in inspection of the clubs of the city, Chairman W. G. Humphrey, of the police committee, declared that he considered a majority of the locker clubs to be valuable assets to Atlanta. His opinion was also voiced by Chief Beavers, while Recorder Broyles agreed with them both."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Monday, October 31, 1887:

"A correspondent asks us how bananas should be ripened. There may be more ways than one, but the Italians in this country take the bunches to bed with them, and they do not even search them for spiders."

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Planning and Planners

The governors of the Federal Reserve System have reduced margin requirements on stock purchases, and, for the first time, fixed a margin requirement on short sales in an effort to check the deflationary trend. Now that the planners of the New Deal have begun to demonstrate the same hindsight as the non-planners of the New Era, we might all sit down together, grinning sheepishly, and admit that we are brighter after the event than before. Which leads to the question: What price planning, and how far can it go? Obviously, it would seem, it can't go any farther than there are brains to distribute. You can't take any more wisdom into the counsels than exists. You can, however, very effectively shut out of the counsels part of what little there are. That's what we've been doing.

The middle classes have probably taken the biggest loss in their history. The big boys got out early, for cash. The small investors stayed in, because they could not afford to liquidate. They went in because there is nowhere that they can get a creditable return on their savings, and because they were afraid of inflaion. So they invested in equities, counting on a planning government and the SEC to protect them. The stock market became their savings bank, and now it has had a run on it, to the tune of a thirty-billion-dollar loss—more if you count in the junior railroad bonds that have gone down 50 per cent, involving industrial investments of banks.

The government was protecting us against the panic of 1929, just as our anti-war legislators are protecting us against a recurrence of the World War of 1914. The New Deal was hedging against the New Era. But the New Era is dead, the World War is over, we are wise in terms of the past, and ignorant in terms of the future. To admit it is the beginning of wisdom.

Because if we admit it we will move a little more cautiously, be less arrogant, return to humility, and resume critical thinking. Above all, abandon the argument ad hominem, which has become the curse of American intellectual life. We have been suppressing thought and looking for scapegoats. We ask of people not how much they know but how much they own. Whether they ought to own it is one question. Whether in the course of acquiring it they may have learned something is another. We put both things together, and like the Nazis ask of a man being selected for office whether he holds "the right ideas." The time has come to ask what the ideas are—they are not very clearly formulated—and to question whether, after all, they are right.

The government has a positive mania for amateurs. If you have ever been in business, it seems to argue, business has corrupted you. Therefore, let us put in control of business anybody except a business man. Let us put laymen into the supreme court and lawyers into the SEC. Let us send Columbia students to direct southern farmers and farmers to direct the Treasury. If a man knows nothing abolut what he is doing, he won't corrupt it. Stop a minute! Bright new idea! Maybe he'll ruin it. (Heresy! Anti-liberalism.)

Look what England's done, they say. Yes. Look at it. With an incomparable tradition of responsible government, a trained and incorruptible civil service, and a natural bent to move cautiously. With all its social ameliorations, the British government has never passed a surplus profits tax or a capital gains tax, and even the Socialists have listened to some capitalists on the subject, on the theory that as long as you live under capitalism, and are not prepared to abolish it and substitute something else, but expect it to furnish the funds to pay the bills, you had better let it function. The British have universal trade unionism, but they don't think being a labor leader gives anyone second sight in economics.

And the British aren't supermen, either. They got into a fine jam with Walter Elliott's planned economy for agriculture. When they did, they didn't look around for a villain. They changed the program.

They have a weakness for the Royal Commission. They try to pick good, disinterested brains, and put them to work on a knotty problem with plenty of time. Then they consider the results—openmindedly.

Look at the Swedes, people say. They do a lot of planning. But you can park your bicycle on the roadside in Sweden—where bicycles are the people's automobile, and come back in a week and it will still be there. They say that in some provinces a man accused of murder is asked to swear on the Bible and say whether he did it or not. If he says he didn't, he goes free. Maybe this is just a parable, but it reflects something. When Krueger went broke the whole world was appalled. Not because he was a crook, but because he was a crook and a Swede. In such a country you can do some things you can't do in this one.

In the Pericles Funeral Oration are these words:

"We do not look on discussion as a hindrance to action; the real impediment to action is the want of that knowledge which discussion should give beforehand. We have a peculiar power of thinking before we act and then of acting, although other men are courageous from ignorance but hesitate upon reflection."

We don't even discuss between agencies, concerned with the same materials and objectives. (Now we shall—through the medium of Jimmy Roosevelt, "my little son," aged 29). The treasury decides to makes heroic efforts to balance the budget. The Federal Reserve decides to raise reserve requirements and squeeze out into the public a billion and a quarter of bonds: All deflationary measures, and, apparently, too much at once. At least, now each blames the other. And both the SEC.

"All men are courageous from ignorance." Isn't it clear that one can plan as far as there is visibility, and administer to the extent that there are competent administrators?

The Pulse of the Public

The columns of The Constitution are always open to the expressions of the public, regardless of the opinion expressed. The only limitation on communications are that they shall be signed; be brief—preferably not longer than two or three hundred words—and not libelous. All communications will be subject to editing, and none will be returned unless postage is inclosed.

GARDENS ARE BETTER FOR THOUGHT THAN WAR

Editor Constitution: The Gardening and Landscaping school led by Mrs. Crown and sponsored by The Constitution was surely an eye-opener. At the closing session big applause expressed gratitude to Atlanta's morning paper.

It just goes to show how much more interesting it can be to study building roads, houses, gardens, streets, homes, cities, communities, springs, pools, outdoor living rooms, playgrounds, shrubs, trees, flowers and folks than to build guns, uniforms, gases, powder, bullets, knives, bayonets, pistols, warships, bombs and bleak cantonments and forts.

Here's hoping that The Constitution puts on another school next year. Some of the ideas are certainly revolutionary, such as moving the front yard to the back, etc. More palatable food for thought than all this war talk.

COTTON OF INTEREST TO ALL

Editor Constitution: It would seem the policy makers are making more knots to unravel without straightening out anything. I'm wondering what the liberty of individual initiative is worth, and what the price of excess government is going to be? There are too many conflicting group interests fighting one another that ought to be uniting for a common objective.

By chance, could any intelligent person consider cotton of interest alone to the farmer? If by making cotton a free product the entire domestic crop would be processed, distributed and consumed, what would it be worth as a work program? Could the government (people) afford to pay the farmer 10 cents? I'm asking.

SUCCESSFUL FORGET-ME-NOT DRIVE

Editor Constitution: The members of the Morton Turnbull Nicholes Chapter and Betty Harrison Jones Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War wish to express their sincere appreciation for the courtesies and assistance extended by The Constitution in furthering the Forget-Me-Not campaign.

The total amount collected was over $2,500. The money will be used by the D. A. V. chapters in relieving the necessities of many worthy and needy veterans and their families.

General Chairman.

DOUBTS NEW DEAL ABILITY TO SOLVE COTTON PROBLEM

Editor Constitution: For years we have looked in vain for a solution to the cotton surplus problem. Is curtailment the solution? That was proposed or tried when Hoover was President. The reception was not cordial to the program. It was tried again by the New Deal and the supreme court knocked it out. So far as I can recall there was no weeping or gnashing of teeth when the supreme court killed the program. I do recall a severe shortage of pork which resulted in extremely high prices and a dangerous scarcity of meat. I also recall that other countries started raising cotton as never before, and we lost part of our foreign market which is absolutely essential to the cotton farmer if he is to subsist.

Considering all this and more that could be stated, I wonder if the New Deal can solve the problem? Sometime I have my doubts. This is a great problem worthy of our most careful study and consideration. It appears doubtful to me if the government can solve the problem by the methods proposed.

MISSISSIPPI SALES TAX BALANCES BUDGET, CUTS AD VALOREM

Georgia Doesn't Have This Source of Revenue, But Its Per Capita Levy Is About the Same

Highway Program in This State Much Farther Advanced as Compared to Roads Mississippians Are Now Using; Schools Here Also Get Much More Cash.

Mississippi, the first southern state to invoke a general sales tax, has found the levy very lucrative. It spreads the cost of government so that the per capita levy is only $17, just about what Georgians this year will pay. But it took four years of such taxing to bring about a reduction in the 8-mill ad valorem tax, the highest in the south. This year the ad valorem levy has been cut to 4 mills.

Mississippi's population is slightly more than 2,000,000 as compared with the approximately 3,000,000 persons living in Georgia. Its total income last year was $45,074,000 as compared with a total income of $39,000,000 in Georgia. While Mississippians paid an average of $17 per capita for the upkeep of the state, Georgians paid only $14. But this year Georgia's per capita cost has been upped to about $17.

It is a matter of common knowledge that Georgia's highway program is much farther advanced than the program of its neighbor state. It has the same gasoline tax, but Georgia's yields nearly twice as much cash because of its greater population and its much greater use of motor cars.

SALES TAX BRINGS IN CASH QUICKLY

Mississippi was in the doldrums until it levied its 2 per cent sales tax in 1933. The sales levy brought in the cash and brought it in quickly. Last year the Mississippi tax commission, which has charge of collection of the sales tax, reported a yield of $5,304,000, more than half the yield from the 6-cent gasoline tax.

It might be mentioned here that while he is given the credit for making the state of Mississippi financially solvent, the sponsor of the sales tax, former Governor Mike Conner, is no longer in the political picture. He was defeated trying to oust United States Senator Pat Harrison last year.

The sales tax is just about the only source of revenue Mississippi has that Georgia doesn't have, although like other states Mississippi is farther advanced in its social security program than Georgia is and consequently is getting more money for the same than does our state.

The high ad valorem tax doesn't yield as much as Georgia gets out of a 5-mill levy and consequently this year with Mississippi cutting the levy in half the return will be small in comparison.

The value of all property against which ad valorem taxes are levied in Mississippi is only $544,000,000. In Georgia it runs something over $1,025,000,000, almost twice as much. The 8-mill levy netted Mississippi only about $4,432,000 while Georgia with a 5-mill levy gets more than $5,000,000 a year. This year Mississippi's 4-mill levy will cut its income from this source to a little more than $2,200,000.

GEORGIA IS FREE OF BONDING PROGRAMS

In any comparison of the financial situations of Georgia and Mississippi one of the first things to be noted is that the latter state is boding itself while in Georgia no such thing is going on or will go on because the constitution prevents it. Last year the state of Mississippi realized something over $13,000,000 of its total income from bond sales. These helped to keep down the per capita cost of government, but they will also help to increase it materially through the years when the bonds come due and must be retired.

As will be shown later nearly $2,000,000 was paid out last year in interest on the state's bonded debt. It is a sizeable item.

Privilege taxes are high and numerous in Mississippi. They are numerous in every state. Inasmuch as these levies run into the hundreds it is obviously impossible to detail them all. Suffice to say that in Mississippi the sheriffs alone collected last year $768,000, the state commission collected more than $1,200,000, the secretary of state collected $50,000 more and other agencies got some more in dribbles.

Insurance companies paid the Mississippi treasury about three-quarters of a million dollars.

ALL COVERED HERE UNDER GENERAL TAX

All of these things in Georgia are covered under a general tax act which is not designed to yield more than $2,000,000. So it can be seen that for its various privileges Mississippi business serving a population of 2,000,000 pays a great deal more than does Georgia business for serving 3,000,000 people.

These taxes take on an even more marked significance when it is cited that the per capita wealth of Georgia is $1,528, while in Mississippi it is only $1,212. And the total wealth in Georgia is fixed at $4,400,000,000 while in Mississippi it is only $2,400,000,000, slightly more than half of Georgia's.

Mississippi, like Georgia, is dry. But it has beer and wine. Beer taxes are lower in Mississippi. The wine levies are about the same. While Mississippi is getting much less than $500,000 from beer and wine Georgia has been getting nearly $1,000,000. And Georgia hopes to get more.

GEORGIA INCOME TAX HIGHER

The state of Mississippi levies the same cigar and cigaret taxes that prevail in Georgia, 3 cents for a 15 cent pack of cigarets. But the yield is much smaller. Mississippi gets only about $900,000 or $1,000,000 a year while under the new schedule in this state the monthly yield indicates a total net of close to $2,000,000.

Mississippi's income tax schedules have been higher than those in Georgia but ours has been boosted this year to a point where they are now higher. However, even with its higher levies in 1936, Mississippi obtained only $900,000 from this source while Georgia, with the lower rate, obtained more than $2,200,000. Next year, in taxes on 1936 incomes, Georgia hopes to yield close to $5,000,000. There is nothing to indicate that Mississippi will get much more from its income levy this year than it obtained in 1936.

INHERITANCE LEVY HIGHER, BUT YIELD IS DISAPPOINTING

Mississippi has a higher inheritance tax than does Georgia, which obtains only that portion of the federal tax allocated to the states. But it yields little or nothing more to Mississippi as the special state levy taxes only those estates of $50,000 or more and they are few and far between in Mississippi.

Of course the greatest income derived by Mississippi as in other states is from its gasoline tax. The 6-cent levy yields about $9,000,000 but of this only $5,000,000 goes to the State Highway Department as the gasoline tax law allocates 2 1-2 cents of each 6 cents collected to the counties for highway purposes. In Georgia with a 6-cent tax only 1 cent is allocated directly to the counties, although with a yield totalling $18,000,000 the Highway Department doesn't wind up with much more than does the department in Mississippi. In Georgia there also is allocated 1 cent for the common schools, another cent for payments to the counties for roads built before they were taken into the primary highway system and almost another cent given the counties to keep their convict forces going. This leaves the Georgia Highway Board little more than $6,000,000 a year for contract work, overhead and that portion of road maintenance which the automobile license tag revenues do not provide.

Mississippi has far fewer automobiles and trucks than Georgia has. The tag rates are higher on passenger cars and, considering Georgia's new bus and truck maintenance tag, the prices for trucks and buses are probably lower in Mississippi. In Georgia passenger cars get their tags for $3 each, while in Mississippi they have a graduated scale which averages about $11 per car.

GAS TAX LEVIES VERY SMALL ITEM

From auto, truck and bus tags the Mississippi Highway Department winds up with only about $250,000 a year, while in Georgia the total now runs well over $1,000,000 a year. The Mississippi Highway Department uses this fund for maintenance, while in Georgia a portion goes for maintenance and the balance goes for the newly created secondary or "post" road system. Both highway departments find it necessary to augment their maintenance funds from other sources.

We have seen where the two states get their money. Now watch where it goes.

Mississippi, like private individuals who use their credit, has to pay the bills. The largest single item in Mississippi's budget is for payment of bonds and notes and for the interest thereon.

In 1936 the report of the Mississippi tax commission shows that these outlays were made:

From general fund:

Expense of retiring bonds, $8,919.

Bonds paid, $2,731,750.

Interest paid on bonds, $1,943,028.

Special fund:

Bonds and notes retired, $2,850,000.

Interest paid, $1,727.

In addition, $60,524 was paid in interest on a special bonding known as the Chickasaw school fund.

Therefore nearly $8,000,000 was paid out during the year in bonds and notes, a staggering total. Of this about $2,000,000 was in interest alone.

STATE PAYING OUT CASH FOR INTEREST

So, it has been shown, while the state was bonding itself to the extent of $13,000,000 more, $8,000,000 was being paid out in interest and bonds and notes.

Last year Mississippi's common schools got slightly more than $5,000,000 out of the state treasury, while in Georgia they got only about $4,000,000. However, Georgia already has boosted her school appropriation. This year it is fixed at $9,000,000. The schools will get $8,000,000 or more, in addition to free books for the pupils, $3,000,000 from the gasoline tax and scores of small items from various funds, not to mention federal government assistance in the way of vocational training and other things.

Mississippi's institutions of higher learning, which include the state university and the famous State College at Starkville, as well as the teacher training institutions, received only $870,000 from the state, while Georgia gave more than $1,500,000 to its university system.

PENSIONS JUST HALF OF GEORGIA TOTAL

Confederate pensions in Mississippi run only $500,000, including the upkeep on the state soldiers' home. In Georgia they run over $1,000,000, not including the home maintenance.

Social security in Mississippi cost the state only $900,000 last year. There was no old-age assistance in Georgia in 1936, but the state has set up $4,000,000 a year for the program inaugurated by the general assembly last spring. So it can be seen that Georgia's old-age pension program will cost more in the first six months of operation than Mississippi's already well-established program costs in one year. Georgia is paying higher benefits and to many more beneficiaries.

The eleemosynary institutions of Mississippi likewise get much less than Georgia gives her institutions. In Mississippi these are handled through the State Department of Health. They all get a total of $1,400,000. In Georgia the institutions are getting about $2,000,000 a year and the health department $600,000. Georgia's health department is to get another $400,000 from the federal government.

Of course, with its larger population the various institutions of Georgia have a much larger population than those in Mississippi. And Georgia's health department has many more people and a much wider area to serve.

In the routine administrative branches of government the cost of operation is about on par in the two states, considering their sizes and their populations.

One thing may be worth noting. Mississippi's legislature, smaller by far than Georgia's costs its state more money. In Georgia it costs about $275,000. In Mississippi it runs over $300,000.

ASKS JUSTICE FOR GEORGIA FARMERS

Editor Constitution. The Bankhead bill is repealed as far as its taxing power and its production control features are concerned, but its allotments to Georgia are on the same basis as far as production is concerned. These allotments were based over a period of years that were subnormal as far as Georgia's production is concerned, and was abnormal for the western end of the cotton belt. I think that the Bankhead bill was the worst piece of legislation ever enacted by a national congress.

Senator Bankhead, acting as chairman of the senatorial subcommittee at the regional meeting held in Atlanta on October 21, said this to the writer: "The Bankhead bill does not represent my views today as the farm program should be, neither does it represent my views at the time of the passage of the bill. I intended it as a temporary measure."

Its enforcement lasted for two years as far as its taxing power is concerned on overproduction. Its allotments to Georgia on acreage control and on production control per acre is still on us, and we are receiving the inequitable benefits today that was originally given us. Why did not he and other congressmen of our state and of the South Carolinas meet these inequalities and not allow this emergency program stay on us (Georgians) for four years and the bill called a temporary measure?

The past and present program gave the authority to Secretary Wallace to administer the programs. He gave Georgia 840,000 bales of cotton to produce tax free, which I think should have been at least 1,600,000 bales because the allotments were based over a period of production when the boll weevil was eating us up, when farmer after farmer, was reducing the acreage of cotton, in order to escape bankruptcy.

Georgia has not produced a bale of cotton for the last 15 years, nor this year, that can be truthfully said added to any surplus in the past or to any surplus today of the 11,000,000 bales of cotton.

We find in every community in Georgia one or more families that are not capable financially nor physically to fight for themselves and it is our duty to fight for them. We find these fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, small children hungry, barefooted. What is the cause? I repeat the inequalities first, of the allotments allowed to Georgia by the Department of Agriculture in Washington and the many injustices of the allotments granted to Georgia by those who administered this program to the individuals in this state.

The Georgia farmer must demand and receive a just apportionment under the cotton program and a just amount that is on parity with the western farmer.

I know that the above and foregoing is a true statement of fact and is a true portrayal of the average cotton farmer's sentiments. All we ask is justice, nothing more.

PIKE COUNTY HAS 15-MILL TAX

Editor Constitution: I read your editorial of the 13th instant with real interest. You stated there were five counties operating this year without any local tax levy for local purposes, one of which was Pike county. Pike county's assessed values, generally speaking, are above the average, and the tax levy has usually been 14 mills for quite awhile. Pike's levy this year is 1 mill more than it ever was in past years, being 15 mills on the $1,000.

Your valuable paper would do constructive, educational work were you to publish more information occasionally pertaining to the fiscal affairs of the various counties.

Atlantan's Novel Now 'Blown With the Blast'

"Gone With the Wind" becomes "Blown With the Blast" when translated into Danish, as the front cover of the famous book about Georgia and the south reveals. This is the manner in which a Danish illustrator pictured Gerald O'Hara's plantation. Margaret Mitchell's name, however, remains the same in all languages.

This is the manner in which Axel Mathieson, noted Danish illustrator, pictured Rhett Butler and his small daughter, Bonnie, as they rode through the streets of Atlanta following the War Between the States. Miss Mitchell said she thought he had made a "marvelous" group of drawings for the Danish edition of her book.

In this illustration, Mr. Mathieson depicts cotton-picking time at Tara. The characters are Mammy, Prissy, Careen and Scarlett. Although he has never been to the United States, the illustrator has a grasp of his subject not duplicated by artists of this country, Miss Mitchell thinks. She is highly pleased, she said. These photographs reprinted by permission of the copyright owner, Steen Hasselbalchs Forlag, Copenhagen, Denmark.

Foreign Versions Surprise Author Of Best-Seller

"Gone With the Wind" Is Everything But That to European Publishers.

The most surprised person about the success of "Gone With the Wind" is none other than Margaret Mitchell—and her amazement grows as she learns that her book will be published in each new foreign country.

Already 1,408,000 copies of the book have been sold in America and 80,000 in England. Now comes word of publication of the book in three other foreign languages—German, Norwegian and Danish.

Going to 10 Countries.

Counting the United States and England as two countries, this brings the total number of countries in which the book has either been published or will be published to 10. Announcements of contracts with Sweden, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Finland have already been made.

Miss Mitchell has confessed that when the book was published she hardly dared to believe it would sell 30,000 copies in the south.

"I did not think for one minute that people in far-off countries—nations that salute the swastika, nations where wars are commonplace and nations where kings and queens flourish—would be interested in a book about the red hills of Georgia.

"However, the book has been received favorably by critics in each of the countries where it has been newly published. I received the reviews from Scandinavia recently and it was amazing how the writers there were interested in 'Gone With the Wind.'"

Amused At Illustrations.

The diminutive Atlanta writer was highly pleased—even amused—at the illustrations used in the three new foreign publications. While she thinks the cover of the German edition is "beautiful" in tone, she doesn't picture Rhett Butler at all like the illustrator who made the cover.

"Axel Mathieson, the noted Scandinavian artist, caught the spirit of the book more than any other illustrator, in my opinion," she said. "Although he has never been to America, his characterizations are very apt. He evidently studied very much before drawing the illustrations."

It was amusing for Miss Mitchell to study the foreign editions of her book, she said. Just the titles illustrate, she thinks, the manner in which some of the sentences had to be changed in translation of the book.

For instance, she pointed out the words "Borte med Blaesten," on the cover of the Danish edition, mean "Blown With the Blast," literally. The German title, "Vom Winde Werweht," means "From the Wind Gone," as nearly as she can translate. The "Tatt av Vinden," of the Norewegian jacket, puzzles her, but she thinks it means "Gone After the Wind."

Three Norwegian Volumes.

The Norwegian volume was the first of the new trio of countries to publish the book. Publication took place there on August 31 and each of her volumes required three Norewegian volumes. Next came the Danish editition on September 15, then followed the German edition on October 15.

She said the publisher of her Danish edition estimates he will sell 30,000 copies there.

"That's counted as being a good number for this country," she smiled yesterday. "I never dreamed my book would sell that many even here!"

Miss Mitchell revealed that the publishers in other lands are using all kinds of legitimate exploitation schemes to sell the book. Steen Hasselbachs, the Danish publisher, gave a coupon with every purchase of the book during the first two weeks of its sale there and the person holding the lucky coupon will be given a trip to the United States.

Predicts Disappointment.

"The winner of that prize is in for some upsets," Miss Mitchell declared. "He's coming over here to Atlanta expecting to see white plantations and buckboards and he'll be as disappointed as is possible."

She said that John M. Born, of Atlanta, will act as the visitor's guide in Georgia. She will be notified when the winner is to arrive in this country.

All the new editions of Miss Mitchell's book are on display in the reference room of the Carnegie library, and both books and illustrations are on display at the Atlanta Historical Society's room on the first floor of the Biltmore hotel.

'EVENING OF CULTURE' SERIES STARTS TODAY

The first of the "evening of culture" series of the Arbeiter Farband will be opened at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Jewish Educational Alliance building and the program will consist of readings of Yiddish literary masterpieces.

Local and out-of-town lecturers have been engaged for the series, which will extend throughout the winter months.

THE CITADEL PLANS PARENTS' PROGRAM

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 30.—Following custom and to permit those interested to make an inspection of the college, the annual Parents' Day program will be carried out at The Citadel, the military college of South Carolina, Saturday, November 20.

All classes will be suspended during the day. The forenoon program will include inspection of cadet quarters and departmental exhibits, with a review of the cadet regiment at noon. Luncheon and a football game between Citadel and Erskine College are on the program in the afternoon. At a dance in Alumni Hall that night, parents and friends of cadets will be the guests of the cadet corps.

The Poor Man Really Pays the Tax

By JOHN T. FLYNN.

(The following article was published in the October issue of The Commentator. It is reproduced by permission of the author and the editor of The Commentator.)

The greatest illusion of the working man and, perhaps, some of his naive leaders, is that the government can spend money for any purpose and then pay for it and for the expenses of government, too, by "soaking the rich."

In this country the money to pay the costs of government is obtained by the simple expedient of "soaking the poor."

Another childlike illusion of the downtrodden is that our good Uncle Sam is a man of great wealth. The truth is that the dear old gentleman has little or no wealth whatever. Certainly he has no income, which is what it takes to pay bills. The only way he can get an honest penny is to soak somebody—take it out of his beloved nephews by the ancient device of taxing them. Or he can borrow money from them or from the bank. Or he can print it. During the past five years he has taken some of it by taxes and as much again by borrowing. He has not yet got around to printing. And when he does the disillusioned nephews will discover that when a government prints money it does not create money but actually destroys money. But that is another story.

The point I want to make here is that up to now the government in this country, national and local, gets most of its money by soaking the poor; that now we must soak them even more because the government must certainly before long put an end to getting money by borrowing it.

Not Enough Rich.

One reason we cannot pay the expenses of government by soaking the rich is because there are not enough of them. I must not be understood as being opposed to soaking the rich. But those economists who favor this do so as a means, not of paying the government's expenses, but of making certain adjustments in the distribution of national income in the interest of a smoother running economy. Because of this many less informed persons have supposed that by soaking the rich we could dispense with soaking the poor.

Now suppose there had been as many millionaires last year as there were in 1929. Of course there were not, because the depression played havoc with the millionaire supply. So, to put this argument upon the most favorable ground for soaking the rich I suppose that last year we had as many millionaires with as many millions in income as in 1929.

Suppose we had taken every dollar of income—not a good percentage—but 100 per cent of the income of every man and woman with an annual income of $300,000 or over. How much in taxes could we raise by taking it all? In 1929 there were 3,130 persons with incomes of $300,000 or more. And their combined income was $2,890,000,000. As the expenditures were nearly nine billion, you will see that this would have supplied only about 32 per cent of the necessary cash.

Still Not Enough.

So we would have to come down the line a bit in search of large incomes to tax. If we descended to the $25,000-a-year income and taxed everybody with an income that large and larger and took by the tax 100 per cent we still would not have collected enough to pay the government's expenses last year.

This, however, is but a part of the story. The more serious part is that if very heavy taxes are imposed on large incomes the large incomes will gradually dwindle. There is a point at which it will not be profitable to have large incomes and at which employers will not pay enormous salaries which are subject to being taken in taxes. This, as a matter of fact, is one of the objectives of those economists who favor high income taxes to level out incomes. But it must be perfectly plain that, when they have been leveled out, the government will have to look elsewhere for its revenues.

But at the present time the heaviest and most oppressively taxed element in our communities are those with small incomes. The reason for this is to be found in the neat inventions which politicians have devised for what they call "painless taxation." These are devices by which the taxes are concealed so that those who pay them are not aware of it.

Taxed Without Knowledge.

The working man gets into his tavern and orders a glass of beer for which he pays 10 cents. He is not aware of the fact that 3 1-2 cents of that goes for federal and state taxes. As a matter of fact, it is perhaps 4 cents, but the 3 1-2 cents are quite easy to trace. As he does not dwell upon the tax features of the soothing suds as they trickle down his throat the tax gatherers have discovered that this is a good way to get taxes without a murmur. When you tax the man of wealth in an income tax he sets up a terrific roar. In fact even the smaller taxpayer emits a loud squawk when he is asked to pay taxes visibly—cash on the nail to the tax collector. But this beer tax is eased out of the unthinking victim as painlessly as a tooth under gas. Since repeal, the taxing powers have extracted to date exactly one billion dollars from the beer drinkers, which sum has been collected from them painlessly by the barkeepers of the nation. When the average man pays his rent bill of $25 every month he fails to note that at least $6 of it and maybe, at the present time, as much as $8 of it is taxes for the city. He doesn't pay the money as taxes but as rent. He growls at the landlord, which is all right with me. But he never pauses to reflect that the landlord is the tax collector for the city government.

The amounts of taxes imposed by various government units on the things the man with a small income buys are incredible. Cigarets, tobacco, in all forms; wines, beers, whiskys, matches, lubricating oils, gasoline, electricity, tires and inner tubes, toilet preparations, for articles, jewelry, automobiles and trucks and motorcycles, radio sets, phonographs, records, sporting goods, cameras, candy and chewing gum, soft drinks, telephone calls, theater admissions, oleomargarine, and other things are all taxed by the federal government. And all these taxes are paid by the consumer either directly or indirectly. You pay the tax on the gasoline you buy directly. But you also pay the tax on the gasoline the manufacturer buys because he puts that tax in as part of the cost of production and includes it in the price. Taxes of this sort extracted from the small income class of American consumers last year amounted to $2,181,000,000. And the people paid them "painlessly," which means unconsciously. They pay taxes in the form of tariffs on thousands of articles. They pay sales taxes in their home states and home towns. They pay taxes in their rent. And it is all these taxes which make up the great bulk of the sums collected by the government.

"Alas, Poor Saps!"

In September heads of families with incomes of less than $2,000 will be chuckling to themselves because they do not have to pay taxes. Alas, poor saps! The man with an income of $4,000 pays an income tax of 4 per cent—not on $4,000, but on $4,000 less his deductions. Ordinarily he pays on only $1,500 of his income. His tax is therefore $60. But what does this happy, "tax-free," unconscious working man who earns only $1,000 a year pay? He never goes near a tax office, never hands a dollar to a tax collector. But the amount he pays out in the prices of what he buys and which goes ultimately to the tax-gatherer will surprise you.

Fortunately the Twentieth Century Fund has traced all these taxes. A workingman with an income of $1,000 a year—less than $20 a week—pays an average of $190 in Illinois or $181 in New York. And if he earns and spends $2,000 a year he pays $359 in Illinois or $334 in New York.

The $1,000 man pays 19 per cent of his income in hidden taxes; the $2,000 man pays 17 per cent of his income in taxes.

You cannot call a man with an income of $5,000 a year rich. A salary of $100 a week is far from being predatory. A $5,000 salaried worker in New York pays $1,061 in taxes. A $5,000 merchant in that state pays $1,164. That's 20 per cent for the salaried man and 23 per cent for the merchant.

Worst to Come.

The serious part of all this is to come. Up to now nobody has been taxed to pay at least one-half of the sums paid out annually for the past five years by the federal government. That half has been raised by borrowing. But that must come to an end. This means that hereafter we must do two things. First, we must raise all of the cost of government by taxes. Second, we must raise, in addition, enough to pay the interest and principal on all those billions—20 billions—which we have been paying out these past few years with money borrowed from the banks. This means that taxes must be laid on. It means taxes must be laid on by the federal government as well as the states and cities. And, in accordance with our well-known policy, it means that new ways must be found to soak the poor. The rich, of course, will have to be soaked and, in some brackets, are already pretty well soaked. But they must be soaked some more. The pity of it is we haven't enough of those birds to do the trick. Therefore we must soak the poor.

Now the end of all this would seem to be that the poor and the near-poor ought to be given the poor privilege of knowing how much they are being soaked. The tax levier should have his bottle of chloroform taken away from him. When he taxes a dollar out of the pocket of the $1,000-a-year citizen, he should be forced to take it away from him while he is conscious and not extract it out of his glass of beer, out of the rouge on her cheeks, out of the bread on his table, out of the many things he eats and wears. These taxes should be labeled "taxes" all the time. Then we will know what we are paying and we will be a good deal more exacting as to what we are getting for our money.

We Shall Not Want.

Farewell to golden days of late September—
Those scented plumes of smoke denote the scene
Of Autumn's ceremonial fires. Remember,
When last we saw the Summer's store of green
We reckoned not with brown October's toll?
But Spring and Summer always pay the price
Of generous living. They reach Life's final goal
And offer leaves in smoldering sacrifice.

Not all that flourished in those halcyon days
Is lost. Nay! Every fruitful month its wealth
Of surplus yield still hoards—in various ways
Conserved against the cold's encroaching stealth.

Thus God and man prepare in warmth and light
For Winter's barren days of deadly blight.

GOLFERS AWARDED PRIZES IN TOURNEY

T. C. Erwin Jr. Wins Cup for Second Time.

The fifth annual golf tournament of the Atlanta Real Estate Board closed last week, and winners were presented with valuable prizes at the board luncheon-meeting Wednesday by George L. Harrison, chairman of the golf committee.

T. C. Erwin Jr., of Draper-Owens Company, was the winner of the championship flight. Mr. Erwin won the last tournament, which was held in 1935. The runner-up in this first flight was W. G. Bowen.

S. P. Cronheim was winner of the second flight, with Harry Cowee, runner-up.

The low medalist prize was won by W. G. Bowen, and the blind bogey was won by four entrants, Robert P. McLarty, Edwin Haas Jr., J. M. Garner, W. G. Bowen, all of whom received prizes.

BOARD WILL START APPRAISAL COURSE

First Lecture Wednesday Led by R. R. Otis.

In a desire to better the appraisal service of the board, and to instruct salesmen in the business of appraising as an aid to selling, the appraisal committee of the Atlanta Real Estate Board will conduct a series of four lectures during the next four weeks.

The first lecture will be given Wednesday afternoon, November 3, at 4:30 o'clock, in the board office by R. R. Otis, chairman of the appraisal committee. Mr. Otis will speak on purposes of appraisal, appraisal procedure, and forms for appraisals.

The second lecture will be given by B. F. White, on residential appraisals, the third lecture by W. J. Hogan on apartments, and the fourth by Ward Wight on cemmercial properties. Only members of the board may attend.

DR. McDOUGALL BUYS LOT IN TUXEDO PARK

Preparatory to building a handsome home in Tuxedo Park, Dr. W. L. McDougall has just purchased a large lot—200x600 feet—on Blackland road from Charles H. Black. The property adjoins that on which is located the new home just completed of David G. Black.

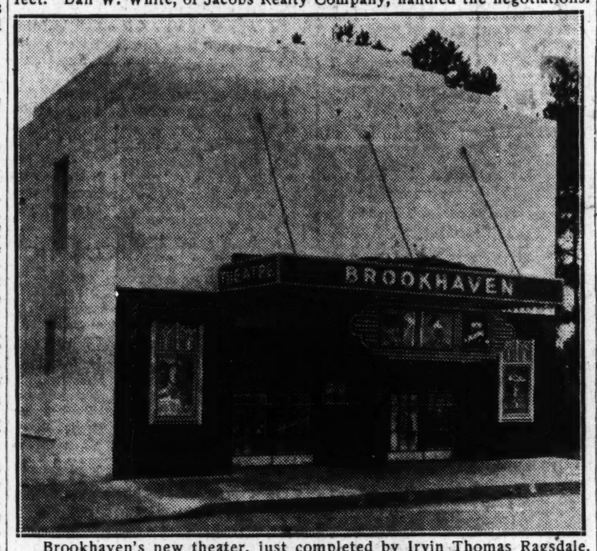

It is understood Dr. McDougall will begin at once the erection of his handsome home there, to be constructed by Charles H. Black Jr. and David G. Black. The sale of the lot was handled through the office of Carl W. Fort. Consideration was not announced.

A British chemist has reported finding a way to shrink wool so that it retains its fluffiness and durability.

Pretty Home Sold; New Northside Buildings

Home at 428 Brentwood drive, in Garden Hills, sold by the Yale, Inc., to J. C. Wittmond as a future home, and he has already moved in. The price was $9,500. It is a pretty brick veneer house, with a lot 60x200 feet. Dan W. White, of Jacobs Realty Company, handled the negotiations.

Brookhaven's new theater, just completed by Irvin Thomas Ragsdale. It is located at 4012 Peachtree road, is most modern and complete, and seats between 400 and 500. It opened a few days ago and is being well patronized by residents in that section. Alongside, Ragsdale has provided a large and convenient parking lot.

Constitution Staff Photos—Roton.

Another recent improvement along Peachtree road at Brookhaven, made by Irvin T. Ragsdale. Two new stores now occupied by the Brookhaven Hardware Company and Bill Taylor's Soda Company adjoin other stores at a well-patronized trading section. They are near the new theater, the stores and theater totaling between $20,000 and $25,000. Ragsdale has also installed six brilliant whiteway lights, which add to the beauty and convenience of that section.

Atlanta, in Six Years of Building, Cares for 57 Pct. of City's Increase

Emphasis is given to the shortage of new homes in Atlanta by the results of a nation-wide study made by Investors Syndicate, of Minneapolis, showing that new housing built from 1931 to 1936, inclusive, was sufficient to provide for only 57 per cent of this city's estimated population gain during those years.

And the accumulated six-year deficit has not yet been overcome despite a housing gain last year of 71 per cent over 1935, and the erection in 1936 of the largest amount of new housing here of any one year since 1930, according to C. J. Ryan, vice president of Investors Syndicate.

In number of persons provided with new housing, Atlanta last year ranged 30th in a list of 50 leading American cities. In value of home construction, however, this city ranked 36th. And in per capita costs of new housing it ranked 46th. These figures are based on a housing survey by Mr. Ryan's company of 310 cities, situated in 41 states and the District of Columbia.

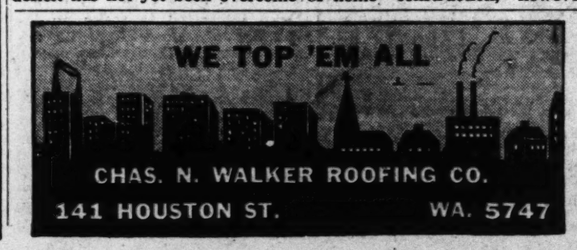

Residences put up in Atlanta between 1931 and 1936, inclusive, Mr. Ryan explained, provided shelter for 12,200 people, but the estimated simultaneous increase in population was 21,396.

Cost Per Person.

"One of the interesting features of this housing survey," said Mr. Ryan, "was the relation of cost of new housing per person. Atlanta had a per capita new housing cost in 1936 of $729.67, while the 1936 national average per person cost was $1,015.30. This 1936 figure was $35.49 less than that of 1935. The 1930 per capita new housing cost was $588.41, the 48th in the list of 50 cities."

Value of residential construction in Atlanta in 1936 aggregated $1,377,628. This 1936 valuation showed a decrease of $3,589,833, or 72 per cent from the $4,967,461 cost of new homes built in 1935. Last year's total values, represented a decrease of $302,876, or 18 per cent from the 1930 total. Atlanta, in the six years ended with 1936, erected new residences valued at $8,424,252.

"After reaching a low level in per capita new housing costs in 1933 at $394.51," Mr. Ryan continued, "these costs hit $729.67 in 1936. Per capita new housing costs last year were 4.6 per cent less than those of 1935. In 1936 such costs were $141.26 higher than in 1930, which home builders throughout the nation class as a 'normal' building year."

APARTMENT SOLD ON FIFTH STREET

Four-Unit Brick Structure Goes to New Owners.

Announcement was made Saturday of the sale of a two-story brick apartment of four units, located at 336 Fifth street, N. E., from Mrs. Emma F. Helsten to Ralph W. and Irene S. Johnson.

The structure is fully equipped and was bought as an investment. No price was announced, but the property is assessed by the city for $7,100. The sale was negotiated by L. C. Pitts, of Draper-Owens Company, realtors.

REALTORS RETURN, TELL OF MEETING

Short Talks at Board Luncheon About National Convention.

The dozen or more realtors who attended the 30th convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at Pittsburgh returned to the city early last week, and a number of them gave short reports on the work of the convention at the board's semi-weekly luncheon on Wednesday. All reported that the attendance was the largest ever enjoyed by the organization and many matters of vital concern were discussed.

Among those who spoke at the luncheon Wednesday, each discussing some particular phase of subjects discussed at Pittsburgh, were Frank Adair, John Teepell, Cone Caddox Jr., Fred Clegg, Herbert Kaiser, Ed Chapman Jr. and Mrs. Louise Peacock, secretary of the board, who was one of the speakers at the national convention.

Echoes from the national meeting show that news concerning stock market crashes which came to the 1,315 delegates from 36 states, District of Columbia and Hawaii, did not greatly disturb realtors. Reviewing in their sessions the piled-up demand for housing for the masses, the growing number of families, increasing business volume and industry, the delegates were convinced that in spite of the ups and downs of stock markets, the real estate business as a whole is in for steady improvement for a number of years to come.

Ickes a Speaker.

Unfair taxes came in for criticism by the realtors, who asked for state constitutional limitations of 1 1-2 per cent annually on real estate values, as has been done in Ohio and other states. Ohio's experience under such a limitation was recounted as being very favorable by former Governor Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, who addressed the conventoin.

Catharine New President.

Joseph W. Catharine, head of the old and well-established Chauncey Real Estate Company, of Brooklyn, was elected president of the association for 1938 to succeed Paul E. Stark, of Madison, Wis. Catharine has been president of the Real Estate Association of the state of New York and for years an officer and director of the national body.

Delegtaes voted enthusiastically to go to Milwaukee for their 1938 fall convention and cast a favorable eye upon the invitation of Los Angeles for 1939, including a one-day adjourned session at Honolulu.

Officers for 1938.

Newly elected officers and directors by the Pittsburgh convention which will serve during 1938 with 20 held-over directors and the members of the advisory board (past presidents) are as follows:

President, Joseph W. Catharine, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Treasurer, Mark Levy, Chicago, Ill. (Re-elected).

ADAMS-CATES SELL TRACT FOR $13,200

Ninety Acres on Pace's Ferry Road Bought by Mrs. H. P. McDonald.

Adams-Cates Company, realtors, through Henry Robinson, sales manager, report sales for the week amounting to $25,200, as follows:

Heading a varied list of sales was the 90.7 acreage tract bought by Mrs. Harold P. McDonald. This property was purchased from Hornbuckle & Cole, and is out in the West Paces Ferry and Ridgewood road section. It adjoins the estates of Dr. Jack W. Jones and ex-Governor Hugh M. Dorsey; it has a frontage of over 1,900 feet on the Chattahoochee river. It is understood that Dr. and Mrs. McDonald will improve this shortly with a home. The purchase price was $13,200 and the sale was handled by O. D. Bartlett.

The Fred Bostwick farm, in Morgan county, near Bostwick, Ga., was sold by Mrs. Mary C. Bostwick to J. G. Mergendoller. The price paid was $5,000 cash and this sale was handled by Rudolph Geissler.

Sarah Hall Missionary Society of the Central Baptist church, of Newnan, Ga., sold to the regents of the University System of Georgia the store property at 644 Cherry street, N. W., for $4,000 cash. Josiah Sibley represented the purchaser and R. W. Evans, of J. H. Ewing & Sons, represented the seller.

John O. Chiles sold the house at 1044 Washington street to Mrs. Laura J. Steinichen for $1,650. Howell D. Stevens, of Brookline, Mass., sold to Edward Jones a lot on Estoria street for $250. Piedmont Sales and Realty Company sold to Annie Mae and James B. Hall the cottage at 556 Highland avenue for $1,100. All three of these last sales were handled by Howard D. Watkins.

Rudolph Geissler, of the sales force, has been unable to be on duty for some time, due to illness. His condition is not considered dangerous, but he will be confined to his bed for several weeks.

ATLANTA BUILDING GAINS 27 PER CENT

Dodge Reports Show Evidence of Interest in Residential Property.

There is good evidence of interest in residential building in the monthly summary of Atlanta construction, prepared by the Dodge reports division of F. W. Dodge Corporation.

"During January-through-September, the volume of residential contracts in Atlanta was far ahead of the contracts awarded in the same months of last year." This was pointed out by R. M. Hairston, manager of the Dodge corporation's Atlanta office. "At the same time," he continues, "the local gain was greater than the average for most of the country."

At the close of September, in the Atlanta metropolitan area, the current total for the year in the residential classification was $5,512,700. Of that amount, September accounted for $598,300. The current total includes a gain of 27 per cent over the 1936 nine months' total, $4,340,300, of which $53,500 were awarded in September. An average gain of 25 per cent was established by residential work throughout the 37 eastern states.

Privately financed work here has a firm lead over the work to be covered by public funds. In line with the average drop of 18 per cent in the 1937 states, local public construction shows a decrease.

On September 30, the year's private work total was $8,119,000, a rise of 30 per cent over the corresponding 1936 total, $6,266,6000.

Public construction contracts awarded during the nine months amounted to $1,044,200. This is below the 1936 figure, $1,206,100.

Nonresidential work, during the nine months, was 23 per cent over that recorded for those months of 1936, with a total of $3,019,200. Last year this amounted to $2,454,200.

Total construction in the Atlanta metropolitan area, which includes Fulton and DeKalb counties, was ahead of the 1936 nine months' period with a gain of 23 per cent. In a grouping of all construction activity, private and public, the September 30 level was $9,163,200. In 1936 it was $7,472,700.

Mr. Hairston concludes with the comment that "the Atlanta construction activities considered in the summary are based on actual contracts awarded. Another large potential volume remains within a grouping of all contemplated projects."

BIG GAINS SHOWN BY B. & L. LEAGUE

112 Associations Have Assets of Over $5,000,000.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—There are 112 savings, building and loan associations, members of the United States Building and Loan League, which had assets of more than $5,000,000 as of July 1 this year. H. F. Cellarius, Cincinnati, in reporting this statistic, points out that 59 of these associations increased their assets between January and July, as compared with 47 of them in the growing group for the six months just preceding.

The gain registered by these 59 institutions totalled $23,058,417, and three of them added more than $2,000,000 each.

Of this group of larger institutions whose resources now total $1,098,456,261 and constitute nearly one-fifth of the assets of the thrift and home financing business, 34 have more than $10,000,000 and eight top $20,000,000. Two associations rose to the ten-million class during this six-month period, one of them a comeback and the other a new association to this classification.

NATIONAL HOUSING PROGRAM STUDIED

Cities Trying To Determine What Federal Assistance They Can Get.

City halls in many American cities are now scanning the provisions of the national housing program as set up in Washington at the last session of congress.

Cities are trying to determine what federal assistance they can get, and what the legislative guide lines are for pointing up a local housing project. And one vital phase of the housing program which thus far has challenged little attention is its city planning aspect.

Cities which have city plan commissions, or which have power under their state laws to establish such bodies, have a valuable tool immediately at hand to assist in launching housing programs, the American Society of Planning Officials point out, These planning commissions, indeed, are considered absolutely indispensable to properly conceived housing projects by some administrators.

The local housing authorities which are set up under the federal housing program must proceed in scientific fashion to lay down their plans for financing the program, for land acquisition, site-planning, layout and design of the dwelling units, supervision of construction, rent schedules, general operation and management. Certain facts must be known if each locally-independent housing authority hopes to achieve permanent success for its housing project. The community's known social, economic and physical factors have direct bearing upon housing project success.

For instance, the local authority should determine the extent of the housing need among the group to be rehoused; and the availability of land, large enough in area and low enough in price for low-cost housing accommodations. Sites for housing projects should be studied in their relation to employment sources, schools, shops, and transportation facilities.

The logical place to look for such data is the city plan commission. Planners recommend that the city examine its plan commission to see whether it is properly staffed and with sufficient funds to handle these added duties. Walter H. Blucher, executive director, American Society of Planning Officials, says that the aid to local housing authorities and the scientific base provided for housing activities in general will be only one of the many direct and indirect local benefits from a properly functioning city plan commission.

PEACHTREE OWNERS REORGANIZE CLUB

Edgar Craighead, attorney, was elected president of the reorganized club of property owners on Peachtree road and the Country Club estates at the meeting held Thursday at the Capital City Country Club.

Other officers are Mrs. Francis Dwyer, vice president, and T. B. Higdon, secretary and treasurer.

Visitors were Mrs. John W. Grant and Mrs. Valeria Manley, of the Peachtree Garden Club, who spoke on the beautification project of Peachtree road which will extend to the South Carolina line.

The next meeting is scheduled for November 29 at the Country Club when property zoning of Peachtree road at Brookhaven and in the Country Club estates will be discussed.

OUT-OF-TOWN WORK BY CITY BUILDERS

Local Architects and Contractors Handling Jobs Throughout State.

While building operations and realty deals have been rather quiet in the city during the past few weeks, many Atlanta architects and contractors have been busy with plans and preparations for building in localities scattered over the state.

One contract just let to the Raymond Concrete Pile Company will doubtless draw special attention as the work progresses, for pile driving is always interesting. This company has been awarded the contract to drive 15 concrete piles 25 feet long for foundation for the Henry Grady High school auditorium and gymnasium, corner Tenth street and Parkway drive. The cost will be around $9,000.

The new theater to be built as a part of the Rhodes development alongside the Rhodes Memorial, on Peachtree street, is well on its way, being built by the Pittman Construction Company, with Ivey & Crook, local architects.

From the Dixie Contractor is quoted several other large building operations either under construction or ready for bids, among them being:

Sunday school building for the First Baptist church, in LaGrange, with Ivey & Crook, architects, and a contract already awarded Newnan Construction Company, of that city, for $63,960.

Released for bids about December 1 will be the specifications drawn by Robert & Company, Atlanta architects, for the rebuilding of the Troup county courthouse, destroyed by fire several months ago. It is estimated to cost about $220,000.

The Aragon Mills, at Aragon, Ga., have also just let contract for about $50,000 to an Anderson, S. C., firm for building additional mill structures. Hardin & Ramsey, Mlon Construction Company, A. K. Adams, and Ray M. Lee Company, all Atlanta contractors, had bids around $50,000, but the job went to C. M. Guest & Son, as lowest bidder.

Remodeling the bank building for the First National Bank of Macon, to cost around $20,000, has been awarded to Barge-Thompson, Atlanta.

A school building is to be erected at Rockmart, Ga., cost not stated, but the architect for it is Jess Wilhoit, of this city. Will be released for bids within a few days. Mr. Wilhoit has also drawn plans for school additions at Rossville, Ga., and Riverdale, Ga. Bids will be asked soon on these.

Working drawings will be complete in a couple of weeks for a large dormitory for Rhinehardt College, at Waleska, Ga., to cost around $40,000, the architects being Constantine & Bradbury, Atlanta.

BUILDING PERMITS UNDER '36 VOLUME

Aggregate for 215 Cities of U. S. Is Shown.

The volume of building construction for which permits were issued in September was but slightly under the August level, the decrease being only 1.0 per cent, against a seasonally-expected decline of about 10.0 per cent for this period. A small decrease from the September, 1936, figure also was shown. The aggregate for 215 cities of the United States during September was $86,710,800, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. This compared with $87,589,587 in August, and $88,696,190 in September last year, representing decreases, respectively, of 1.0 and 2.2 per cent.

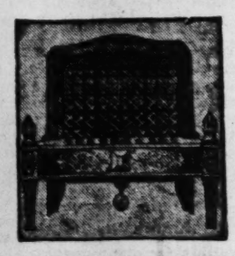

New York's total of $14,488,718 was 10.0 per cent above the August total, but fell below the corresponding 1936 figure of $17,331,441 by 16.4 per cent. Permit valuations for the 214 cities outside of New York amounted to $72,222,082, a loss of 3.0 per cent from the $74,421,590 recorded in the preceding month, but a rise of 1.2 per cent above the September, 1936, volume of $71,364,749.

The group totals of building permit values for 215 cities for September, this year and last, together with percentage changes, are shown in the following table:

| | September 1937 | September 1936 |
|---|---|---|
| New England | $5,331,200 | $3,751,115 |
| Middle Atlantic | 22,273,113 | 23,793,678 |
| South Atlantic | 9,510,509 | 9,885,231 |
| East Central | 18,715,200 | 25,122,219 |
| South Central | 6,515,604 | 7,020,596 |
| West Central | 4,774,540 | 3,676,547 |
| Mountain | 2,361,775 | 1,449,858 |
| Pacific | 17,238,859 | 13,996,946 |
| Total U. S. | $86,710,800 | $88,696,190 |
| New York City | 14,488,718 | 17,331,441 |

VOL. LXX., No. 141. ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 31, 1937.

Miss Mary E. Jones Will Become Bride Of Dr. Murl Hagood

MARIETTA, Ga., Oct. 30.—The announcement of the engagement of Miss Mary Evelyn Jones to Dr. Murl M. Hagood is of sincere interest, not only here, but throughout the state.

Miss Jones is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Chandler Jones, formerly of Albany, her only sister bei Miss Sara Dean Jones and her brother, Chandler Jones Jr. She graduated from Albany High school and later attended Wesleyan College. Her mother is the form· Mary Dean Towers, member of a prominent Marietta family. Her father is a member of the Jones and Davis families of Albany who have been identified with the civic and social life of that section of Georgia for many years.

After finishing school, Miss Jones held a secretarial position in Washington, D. C., and for the past year has been with the Retail Credit Company in Atlanta. She is a young woman of charm and beauty and is a social favorite among the younger set.

Dr. Hagood is the son of Dr. and Mrs. George Hagood Sr., of this city. His father has occupied a place of prominence in the medical profession in the city and county for a number of years. His mother was formerly Miss Sara Elizabeth Knight, of Marietta. His brother is Dr. George Hagood Jr., and his sister is Mrs. Shala Davis, of Gainesville.

Miss Utter Weds James L. Wilson.

Miss Janice Utter, daughter of Richard I. Utter, of 8287 Keystone River Forest, Chicago, and James L. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Wilson, of this city, were married Saturday at Oak Park, Ill.

The service was read by Dr. Albert Buchner Coe in his study at First Congregational church in the presence of relatives and a few close friends.

The bride was attired in a gray traveling costume worn with rust accessories and her bouquet was orchids.

Miss Dorothy Imhoff, of Oak Park, was her attendant. She wore a costume of brown with bouquet of brown and white lilies. Jack Wilson, brother of the groom, was best man.

Mr. Utter gave his daughter in marriage. The reception was followed by a dinner given for the bridal party.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left for a trip through Canada and the east, after which they will spend the winter in Miami, returning to Chicago where Mr. Wilson is associated in business with his brothers.

Mrs. Wilson is the only daughter of Richard I. Utter and the late Mrs. Utter, formerly of Cleveland.

Mr. Wilson is the youngest son of his parents. His brothers are Jack Wilson and Harry W. Wilson, of Chicago, and Carlos G. Wilson, of Atlanta.

Brogan—Lacey.

Miss Elzie Brown, George M. Hope III To Wed in November

Enlisting society's sincerest interest is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Furman Brown of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elzie Grace Brown, to George Melville Hope III, the marriage to be solemnized the latter part of November.

The bride-elect is a popular member of society's younger circles, having made her debut at a brilliant tea-dance given by her parents at the Capital City Country Club when she was a member of the 1934-1935 Debutante Club.

Miss Brown graduated from Washington Seminary, where she was a member of the Senior Round Table, staff member of the school's publication, "Miss Emma," and a member of the Sigma Delta sorority.

She completed her education at Hollins College, from where she graduated and where she was a favorite with students and faculty members. Miss Brown is a member of the Girls' Circle for Tallulah Falls school.

Miss Brown is a representative of prominent Georgia, South Carolina and Virginia families, her mother having been before her marriage Miss Elzie Tyler Morgan, daughter of the late James William Morgan and Alice Tyler Morgan, members of distinguished Virginia families. Mr. Morgan was descended from the Hamilton and Vance families, who took a prominent part in affairs in Virginia during the Revolutionary War period.

On her paternal side the bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Pinckney H. Brown and Nancy White Brown, who now resides in Anderson, S. C. Members of the well-known White family were early settlers in Georgia and took prominent part in the Revolutionary War and the Brown family is included among South Carolina's pioneers.

Mr. Hope is the son of George M. Hope Jr. and the late Mrs. Hope, the former Miss Mert Koplin Hancock. He is the grandson of the late Colonel George M. Hope, who was a leading figure in Georgia's political and social circles and a pioneer of this state. The groom-elect's paternal grandmother was the late Mrs. Kate White Hope, member of distinguished southern family. On his maternal side the groom-to-be is the grandson of the late Walter A. Hancock and Mrs. Mertie Koplin Hancock, members of pioneer Atlanta families.

The groom-elect is a graduate of the Boys' High school, where he belonged to the Alpha Sigma Pi fraternity. He attended Georgia Tech, completing his course with the class of 1937. He was a member of the Sigma Chi social fraternity, the Scientia Club and on the staff of the Technique, the Georgia Tech weekly paper, while enrolled at that institution. Mr. Hope is now connected with the Iron Fireman Corporation in Roanoke, Va., where he and his bride will reside after their marriage.

Bridal Couple Receives Gift From President and 'First Lady'

By Sally Forth.

MOST impressive among the many handsome wedding presents sent to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel O'Day on the occasion of their recent marriage was that bearing two cards, one of which read "The President" and the other "Mrs. Roosevelt." The gift is a beautiful console mirror, framed in light mahogany. Of oblong shape, it features a curved top, and it will doubtless occupy a conspicuous position in the New York apartment of the former Ida Sadler and Danny O'Day.

A great many of the wedding gifts arrived on the last two days before the marriage of the popular couple, and after the arrival of the relatives and guests from the east who were included in the wedding personnel. As you know, those last days were filled to the brim with parties galore, scarcely allowing time between to change costumes.

So in the breathless rush, the late arrivals among the presents went unopened—that is, until after the wedding. And the President's and the First Lady's gift was among the number.

ATLANTA socialites will find unusual interest in the forthcoming visit of lovely Margaret Chenoweth, of Birmingham, Ala., to Mrs. Harrison Jones. For Margaret possesses all the charm and beauty necessary to make her an acknowledged belle and, in addition, she is the daughter of a former Georgian whom Atlantans remember with much pleasure and interest. Her mother, Mrs. Beach M. Chenoweth, is the former Nouna Illges, of Columbus, and her most notable visit to Atlanta was on the occasion when she acted as maid of honor to the former Kathryn Gordon when she became the bride of Harrison Jones.

Margaret arrives on November 17 to spend two weeks at the Jones' home on Pace's Ferry road, and her arrival will be the signal for a perfect whirl of brilliant parties which will mark her visit. Brunette and exotic-looking, like her mother, she will doubtless cause many a masculine heart to accelerate its pace.

The first of the numerous parties given for the Alabama belle will be the open house at which Mr. and Mrs. Jones will be hosts on the afternoon of November 21 at their home, Whispering Pines. Sharing honors with the visitor will be Alice Armstrong, Ida Akers and Bebe Young, a trio of popular debutantes whose mothers are close friends of Mrs. Jones.

Mrs. Beverly DuBose plans a luncheon honoring Margaret and Mrs. John Hurt, who, by the way, is Margaret's aunt, will give a luncheon in her honor. Gordon Jones, young son of the Harrison Jones', and Howell Hollis will be among those entertaining for the visitor, their parties being scheduled for the gala week end that includes the Tech-Georgia football game. In fact, Gordon's party will also honor Ann Creekmore, of Athens, who will spend that week end in Atlanta with the young host's mother.

THE charming home of Miss Mary Goodrum in Newnan will be the gathering place for 100 members of Atlanta and Newnan society on Friday when Miss Goodrum entertains at luncheon in honor of her niece, Mrs. Goodrum Norris, one of Atlanta's loveliest recent brides. Miss Goodrum is a noted hostess and her home is often the scene of brilliant parties. Friday's affair will be unusually interesting, as she introduces the wife of her nephew to a wide circle of friends.

Mrs. Norris, a brunette of a distinctive type of beauty, is the former Mrs. Gene Wood Hodges, of Athens, her marriage to the prominent Atlantan having been an interesting event of the late spring.

Assisting Miss Goodrum in entertaining will be her sister, Mrs. A. M. Norris, of Newnan; Mrs. Alonzo Norris, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Nelson Arthur, of Athens, sisters of the honor guest; Mrs. John Armistead, of Rockingham, N. C.; Mrs. W. W. Anderson, of Atlanta, and Mesdames Frank Cole Jr., Elwood Snead, Garland M. Jones, Phillips Jones, Mike Powell, Donald Banks and Miss Clara Cole, all of Newnan.

DISTINGUISHED visitors spending this week end in Atlanta are General Elmer F. Straub and Mrs. Straub and General D. Wray Deprez and Mrs. Deprez, of Indianapolis, Ind. The foursome arrived yesterday by airplane to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McDargh at their home on Montclair drive. Mr. and Mrs. McDargh moved to Atlanta last February from Indianapolis and they have planned a round of entertainment for their Hoosier visitors.

General Straub is adjutant general for the state of Indiana and General Deprez is one of his aides. Both officers experienced service across the ocean during the World War and are prominent leaders in military circles in their home state.

The visitors will be shown a few of Atlanta's places of interest today, after which they will be introduced to a number of prominent Atlantans at the aperitif party at which their hosts will entertain.

Miss Henrie Hall Honors Debutante.

Miss Henrie Hall entertained at a football breakfast yesterday in honor of Miss Mary Morris, debutante. The hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. B. M. Hall Jr. and Mrs. H. L. Morris, mother of the honor guest.

The decorations featured Georgia Tech colors of yellow and white and each guest was presented a tiny corsage formed of small flowers in these shades.

DuBose—Arnold.

Mrs. Joel H. DuBose announces the marriage of her daughter, Sarah Sue, to Noel W. Arnold, the marriage taking place October 10.

Miss Grace Archer's Betrothal Announced to Jesse E. Dunbar

MISS GRACE ELIZABETH ARCHER.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Grace Elizabeth Archer and Jesse Emerson Dunbar is made today. The wedding will take place in December.

Miss Archer is the daughter of Mrs. Harriet Frierson Archer, of Atlanta, and George Lawrence Archer, of Winter Park, Fla. On her maternal side she is the granddaughter of the late Henry Grier Frierson and Anna Brumby Rich, of Manning, S. C. The Frierson family was among the pioneer settlers of Charleston, S. C., coming directly from Scotland, and the Rich and Brumby families were among the earliest settlers of the southern part of South Carolina. On her paternal side the lovely bride-elect is the granddaughter of William Joseph Archer and Elizabeth Martin, of Anderson, S. C. Her paternal grandfather was a descendant of the Archer and Anderson families, early settlers of Virginia, and her paternal grandmother descended from the Towers family, early settlers of Georgia. Miss Archer is a graduate of Washington Seminary and later attended Sullins College at Bristol, Va.

Mr. Dunbar is the son of Jesse Henry Dunbar and Pearl May Ellis, who have long been prominently identified with the growth of Atlanta. His paternal grandfather was the late Charles Henry Dunbar, of Georgia and North Carolina, and his paternal grandmother was the late Elizabeth Cross of Charlotte, N. C. His maternal grandfather was the late Rev. Alfred Ellis, of Edinborough, Scotland, who spent his life as a prominent Methodist minister in Kansas City, Mo. His maternal grandmother was the late Elizabeth Llewellyn, of London, England. Mr. Dunbar is a graduate of Tech High school where he was a member of K. D. T. fraternity. He attended Georgia Tech and is now associated with Brunswick Balke Collender Company, in Montgomery, Ala.

Laughlin-Mitchell Betrothal Announced

The engagement of Miss Sarah Margaret Laughlin and Hiram A. Mitchell, announced today by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pascal Edwards, is of interest throughout Georgia and North Carolina. The marriage will be solemnized at the home of the bride-elect late in November.

Miss Laughlin is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards. She was graduated from Girls' High school and attended the University of North Carolina. The bride-elect is a descendant from a long line of cultured ancestors. Her maternal grandparents are Mrs. Margaret Hallyburton Sparks, and the late James William Sparks, of Marganton, North Carolina.

The groom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Hamby Mitchell, of Atlanta. He was graduated from Tech and now holds a responsible position with the National Biscuit Company of this city.

Women Voters To Meet Wednesday.

The Atlanta League of Women Voters sponsors two important meetings on Wednesday. At 9:30 o'clock, a group of 30 women will meet with Mrs. Harry L. Greene at league headquarters. Mrs. Greene, who presided at the citizenship school, will conduct these women on the first of two tours to county institutions. Wednesday the tour includes the county jail, the Juvenile Home and the Alms House.

Following the tour, this group of women will attend a candidates' luncheon, where all candidates for county commissioner will be present, at the Atlantan hotel. Citizens who are interested in hearing the candidates may attend. Reservations for the luncheon should be made in advance by calling Walnut 6111. In the afternoon, Mrs. J. D. Thomas, chairman of government and its operation, will attend the meeting of the county commissioners, and those interested are welcome to accompany her.

Miss Coyne To Wed James P. Taylor

Announcement is made today by Mrs. Mattie Crouch Coyne of the engagement of her daughter, Margaret Adeline, to James Pickens Taylor, the marriage to be solemnized in December.

Miss Coyne is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Coyne and the late Charles Martin Coyne. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James M. Crouch and the late Mr. and Mrs. James Coyne. She is the sister of J. Prince Coyne, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Frank M. Coyne, Mrs. Clarence J. Massa and Mrs. John T. Buckley, all of Atlanta.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Girls' High school of Atlanta and of the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville. For several years she has been associated with the Atlanta public schools.

Mr. Taylor is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Frank Taylor, of Atlanta, formerly of Newnan. He is a descendant of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Key. His sisters are Misses Ruby and Marie Taylor and Mrs. Herbert W. Witte, all of Atlanta. Mr. Taylor received his education in the Newnan schools and Georgia School of Technology. He is connected with the Southern Freight Association.

Matrons' Club.

Mrs. Julia Whaley entertained members of Past Matrons' Club of Rose Croix Chapter No. 257, O. E. S., at dinner prior to the meeting. Mrs. C. E. McCrary conducted an oral examination of O. E. S. questionnaire. The prize was won by Mrs. Olive Dodson. The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mae Dickerson on Dunwoody road, N. E.

Iris Garden Club Plans Silver Tea.

The Iris Garden Club will entertain at a silver tea from 4 to 6 o'clock November 4 at the home of Mrs. Herbert Reynolds. Those calling will have the privilege of viewing some of the beautiful flower pictures painted by Mrs. Mary M. Wills. Mrs. Wills is a noted painter of wild flowers. Her collection of Texas wild flowers is in the state art museum. Georgia wild flowers will feature the exhibit at the tea.

Officers of the club are: Mrs. Owen Perry, president; Mrs. Alfredo Barili Jr., vice president; Mrs. William Wardlaw, treasurer; Mrs. Campbell Krenson, recording secretary; Mrs. Murdock Equen, corresponding secretary. Members of the club will act as hostesses.

Season's Buds Are Presented to Society At Brilliant Halloween Ball at Club

The lovely young belles who comprise the Debutante Club of 1937-38 made their formal bow to society last evening at the Halloween ball at the Piedmont Driving Club. Inaugurating the winter's formal social season, the brilliant affair assembled several hundred members of Atlanta society. Eery Halloween symbols, the decorative motif of the evening, featured a huge illuminated moon over the fireplace at the end of the ballroom and directly above and behind the E-shaped debutante table. Big black cats with flashing red eyes arched their backs on either side of the moon and at the opposite end of the room an enormous black witch rode her broomstick across the balcony. The tall white columns down the center of the room were sheathed in black and orange bunting and between hung festoons of black and orange.

Guests were seated at tables placed around the edge of the ballroom which were embellished with early fall flowers, Halloween favors and noise-makers. At the debutante table the escorts of the debutantes awaited their formal entrance at 9:30 o'clock.

Miss Ida Akers, president of the Debutante Club, led the grand march with Thomas B. Paine, and the other debutantes entering the room singly. They were attired in smart evening gowns and wore shoulder bouquets of orchids.

Miss Akers was escorted by Chester Kitchings and Jack Adair. She was gowned in a white satin model, offset by a cape of the same material. Miss Laura Hill, vice president of the Debutante Club, was accompanied by Frazier Eidson and Louis Corrigan. Her gown of white chiffon was embroidered in crystal and rhinestone feathers, with rhinestone shoulder straps and belt.

Miss Lewis' Gown.

Miss Sarah Lewis, Debutante Club secretary, was gowned in her mother's wedding dress of duchess cream satin with an off-the-shoulder neckline. Seed pearls and crystals formed a design over the bodice and the full skirt was fashioned with double folds of tulle. She was accompanied by Sims Bray and "Dub" Bethea. Miss Rachael Burton, treasurer, escorted by John Ridley and Stanley Holditch, wore a dress with a bodice of white sequins and a full skirt of white tulle showered with white sequins.

Klatt Armstrong and Sam Dorsey were with Miss Isabel Boykin, who was attired in white chiffon with a bodice of iridescent sequins. A striking model of white lace sprinkled with iridescent sequins was worn by Miss Dorothy Sanford, who was accompanied by Carrol Mastin and James Newton.

Miss Caroline Cooper was escorted by Tom Evins and Karl Brittain. She wore white chiffon with silver piping around the neck and armholes and a silver belt. Ewell Gay and Tom Perkinson were with Miss Amelia Hewlett, who chose for the occasion a dress of white jersey crepe with a gold metal belt.

G. B. Strickler and Jim Hancock accompanied Miss Emmakate Vretman, who wore French net posed over white taffeta and embroidered with tiny gold flowers. Miss Ethel Erwin was escorted by Billy Inman and Ward Wight Jr. She wore white net with a bodice of iridescent sequins and bands of iridescent sequins circling the full skirt.

Miss Anne Coppedge, accompanied by Otis Adams and Gardner Hill, wore white moire with an off-the-shoulder neckline. Jack Boykin and Larry DeGive were the escorts of Miss Catherine Calhoun, who wore a gown of flesh-colored lace outlined in silver thread.

Miss Hoyt's Escorts.

Miss Julia Hoyt was escorted by Frank Holt and Jay Glenn. She chose for the occasion a gown of imported white silk net showered with wheels of iridescent sequins. Denton Norris and Dr. Fred Minnich accompanied Miss Marianna Adair, who wore white tulle made with a silver sequin bodice and featuring broad tulle shoulder straps.

J. L. Riley and Willis Jones accompanied Miss Anne Atkins to the ball. She wore a white lace gown outlined in silver thread, with tight-fitting bodice and a skirt combining tulle and panels of lace. Miss Flora Wright, who was escorted by Walter James and James Franklin, wore white lace outlined in silver thread.

Roline Adair was with Robert Spalding and Pete Latimer and she wore green lame with a full skirt and a rhinestone clip at the V neckline. Lloyd Smith and John Magill accompanied Miss Alice Armstrong, who wore a white satin gown with the full skirt bordered with gold braid.

Frank Edmondson and John Young escorted Miss Frances Young, who wore silver lame made along empire lines with a bodice of black velvet. Miss Bebe Young was with John Morris and Bob Fuller, and her white brocaded dress had a full skirt and three bows suggesting a bustle effect.

Miss Margaret Preacher was accompanied by Bob Pringle and Charlie Yates and wore white and silver brocade. Philip Alston and Philip McDuffie were with Miss Wylena Upshaw, who was dressed in white net with a bodice of iridescent sequins.

Miss Mary Morris was with Fred Ward and Jack Gaston and she was gowned in ice blue taffeta shot with silver threads. Eddie O'Bierne and Blanton Smith escorted Miss Nancy Moody, who wore ivory brocade made with a full skirt, the hem of which was faced with scarlet satin.

Scott Poer and Alex Windsor were with Miss Helen Bell, who was gowned in white taffeta showered with rhinestones. Miss Tommie Quin was escorted by Fred Eve and John Simpson and her dress was of white net with a fitted bodice and a full skirt. Gold sequin comets adorned the skirt.

Escorting Miss Anne Brumby were Jack King and Mert Hedges, of Chattanooga. She was gowned in French blue moire with shoulder straps caught with rhinestone clips. Miss Helen Roberts was with Bob Regenstein and Charlie Motz and her dress was of white net.

Miss Kathryn Barnwell was accompanied by Joel Reeves and Billy Brooks and her gown featured a bodice of gold sequins and a bouffant white net skirt. Walter Kurst and Henry Swift, of Columbus, were with Miss Helen Aycock, who wore white satin sprinkled with rhinestones.

Directors' Table.

Seated at the directors' table were Frank Owens, president of the club, with Mrs. Owens; Henry Troutman, vice president, with Mrs. Troutman; Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Kilpatrick, Dr. and Mrs. William Campbell Jr., Mr. and Mrs. DeSales Harrison, Floyd McRae, past president, with Mrs. McRae, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox Jr. Harry Bewick, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Bewick, and Albert Thornton, director, and Mrs. Thornton were seated at another table with their families.

Among those who had tables were Dr. and Mrs. Ben F. Jones with their guests: Mrs. Forrest Adair Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Adair Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adair, Mr. and Mrs. James Dunlap, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Stone, and Bowie Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harrison Atkins, and others were together. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Cates had as their guests: Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Blalock, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Pugh, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dargan Jr.

Dr. and Mrs. Howard Hailey and Dr. and Mrs. William A. Garrett were together. Forming a congenial group were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Barnwell, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Jack C. Morris and Dr. and Mrs. George W. Fuller.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Lewis had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Morgan, Thaxton Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Vretman, Morgan Lewis, and others. Dining together were Mr. and Mrs. William Akers, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bellman, Mrs. Patsy O. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Allen Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon Zahner, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kitchings, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Thompkins.

Dr. and Mrs. N. M. Owensby had as their guests Miss Lucy Thaxton, of McRae, Ga.; Raymond Bryant, of Murfreesboro, Tenn.; Captain and Mrs. Joseph Harper and Mr. and Mrs. Holley Giles.

Debutantes and Escorts Make Merry at Town Hall Party

Constitution Staff Photos—Roton.

Miss Isabel Boykin and Stanley Holditch watch from the window of "The Town Hall" cabin of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kitchings on Peachtree road as Calvin Allen and Miss Ida Akers, lower left, star gaze under the trees and Miss Wileyna Upshaw and Ralph Boynton pause at the wishing well. The photographs were made at the recent "Town Hall Tonight" party given by Mr. and Mrs. Kitchens for a group of the debutantes. A feature of the affair was an amateur program staged by Chester Kitchings, son of the hosts, in which the guests took part.

Miss Peabody Weds Elmer G. Brown At Quiet Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Peabody announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Frances Peabody, to Elmer Gwynne Brown. The ceremony was solemnized at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at a quiet ceremony in the pastor's study of the First Presbyterian church, with Rev. William V. Gardner officiating. The ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate family.

After the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Brown left for Virginia, where they will visit the groom's parents, and upon their return they will reside here.

Junior Leaguers Leave for Milwaukee.

Representatives of the Atlanta Junior League, Mrs. Malon Courts and Mrs. William Nixon, leave today for Milwaukee, Wis., to attend the third technical conference on welfare being conducted by the Association of Junior Leagues of America, November 1-5. They will be among the 300 delegates from 145 Junior Leagues in the United States, Canada and Mexico in attendance at the meeting.

The program, to consist of lectures, group meetings, field trips and consultation service, is designed to give a broader conception of the responsibilities of lay organizations, such as the Junior League, to community welfare service programs and to present means by which members of such organization can serve most effectively.

The larger part of the program will be devoted to public welfare rather than the work of private agencies. Included on the program will be discussions of the layman's relation to social legislation, problems of public welfare administration, a new technique in therapeutic work, occupational therapy, present trends in family case work and the work of professional social works in relation to volunteers. Mrs. Peter L. Harvie, president of the A. J. L. A. and officers of the executive staff will be in attendance at the meeting.

Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Courts will return to Atlanta Sunday and will present a detailed report of the five-day conference at the next meeting of the Junior League.

bership luncheon Thursday at the new clubhouse. This unit has completed sponsoring a county fair in conjunction with its post.

Mrs. Edgar Pullen was the guest of the Augusta hospital recently and visited the veterans there. Mrs. Pullen, department president, accompanied by Mrs. W. M. Gorman, department secretary, will leave the state office in Cordele November 19 for Indianapolis, where they will attend the presidents' and secretaries' conference. All units are reminded to have their membership accounts into the Cordele office by this time. If for any reason they are not in the hands of the state officers on that day, unit secretaries are requested to wire them in to Mrs. Pullen before November 21 so that Georgia may present the largest possible membership showing at the telegraph roll call. Telegrams may be sent to Mrs. Pullen in care of the national auxiliary office in Indianapolis.

Toccoa will be hostess to the ninth district convention in November. The exact date has not yet been set. Mrs. E. R. Harris is district director. Mrs. A. R. Carlton is president of the Toccoa unit, which was the first to get its membership in this year.

Mrs. A. H. Lawe, of Raleigh, Tenn., was recently elected southern vice president general. Mrs. P. I. Dixon, of Thomasville, whom Georgia presented to the southern caucus as its candidate for this office, withdrew her name from the race, and graciously expressed her appreciation to the department for its enthusiastic indorsement of her. Mrs. Dixon is a past department president.

Mrs. Malcolm Douglas, new national president, who has already recognized Georgia in making up her official staff by appointing Miss Helen Estes, of Gainesville, to serve again as Area C child welfare chairman, will visit Georgia in the spring.

Miss Aiken Becomes Bride of Mr. Sheils

Miss Dorothy Aiken became the bride of Andrew Sheils at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Grace Methodist church with Rev. W. A. Shelton officiating. Charles W. M. Johnson, organist, presented a program of appropriate music and Mrs. L. O. Kimberly Jr., sister of the bride, gave a vocal selection. Mrs. Kimberly wore a gown of black chiffon velvet and a shoulder spray of talisman roses and valley lilies.

Palms, white chrysanthemums and Easter lilies banked the altar and on either side were sloping seven-branched candelabra holding burning white tapers.

Jack Eppley served as best man and ushers were Earl Churchill and John Jackson.

Miss Elsie Aiken was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant and she accompanied the bride to the altar. She was dressed in a street length model of wine chiffon with Irish lace collar and cuffs. Her flowers were talisman roses and valley lilies.

The bride wore a suit of Wallis blue wool with a platinum fox collar. Her blouse was of powder blue chiffon and she wore Wallis blue accessories with a shoulder spray of gardenias and valley lilies.

Mrs. Claudia E. Aiken, mother of the bride, wore midnight blue chiffon velvet with matching accessories and her bouquet was of pink roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. F. A. Sheils, mother of the groom, was gowned in black crepe with black accessories and her shoulder spray was of yellow roses and valley lilies.

After a honeymoon, the young couple will reside in Atlanta.

Care and Welfare of Veterans Stressed at U. D. C. Convention

By MARY LIZZIE WRIGHT, Of Elberton, Editor Georgia Division, U. D. C.

Business of importance was dispatched by the delegates to recent convention held in Macon and presided over by division president, Mrs. Frank A. Dennis. Of paramount interest was the care and welfare of the Confederate veterans and their widows over the state. Expression of this was given in resolution presented to the convention by its president, Mrs. Dennis, that the Georgia division go on record as bitterly opposed to the shifting of payment of veterans' and widows' pensions to the old age pension department of public welfare, thus causing pensioners to sign the pauper's oath, rather than receive pensions as heretofore as a merit of appreciation for services rendered. This resolution asked for the creation of a separate department and appropriation of separate fund for payment of said pensions, the request to be included in Governor's call for a special session of general assembly in November.

Another resolution of historical value was a request that senators and representatives see that the federal government returns to state of Georgia all Confederate records, or photostatic copies of same, removed from the state during, and just after, War Between the States.

Georgia division also went on record as endorsing the use of the full name, Jefferson Davis, when speaking of the illustrious ex-President of the Confederacy, and discouraging the phrase much in use, "Jeff Davis."

The home of Alexander H. Stephens, "Liberty Hall," now owned by the state, has been restored to its former condition and serves as a memorial to that statesman and a shrine of the southern Confederacy in Georgia. The only lacking feature in its completion being a paved street leading to the mansion, therefore the convention, through its committee on Stephens Memorial Park, petitions the state highway board to pave this avenue of approach in the immediate future. Mrs. Horace M. Holden is chairman of this committee and honorary president Georgia division, U. D. C., and is ever vigilant in creating interest in this home of her ancestor. Many gifts were received for refurnishing the home. One room is furnished by state Camp of Sons of Confederate Veterans as a memorial to Francis S. Bartow, that native son of the south who said "I go to illustrate Georgia."

Open house in honor of Mrs. Clyde F. Hunt, newly elected president Georgia division, U. D. C., was held in Thomson recently. Hostesses were members of Ida Evans Eve chapter, U. D. C.; the Baptist Philathea Class, which Mrs. Hunt has taught for years; Thomson's Woman's Club and others. The reception was held at the home of Mrs. B. F. Riley. Receiving with her were Mrs. Ira E. Farmer, president of local chapter; Mrs. W. C. McCommons and Mrs. Hunt.

Mrs. C. M. Orr and Miss Wilma Orr were hostesses to Charles D. Anderson chapter in Fort Valley. Miss Wilma Orr, president, gave a report of recent convention. Mrs. M. C. Flournoy was delegate. Program was in charge of Mrs. J. E. Broadrick, who presented Miss Norma Boyer in a group of readings. Mrs. Maxwell Murray gave "Life and Political Career of Judah P. Benjamin" during the War Between the States.

Americanism Chairman Leads War Against Subversive Influences

By Mrs. C. B. McCullar, Publicity Chairman, Milledgeville, Ga.

A relentless war against subversive influences seeking to undermine American institutions was launched this month by the Georgia department of the American Legion Auxiliary under the leadership of Miss Helen Estes, of Gainesville, state chairman of Americanism.

"If subversive groups show up under any guise in your churches or schools in your community notify the Legion's Americanism chairman, Walter LeCraw, county courthouse, Atlanta, and your department chairman, giving full particulars," Miss Estes said in a bulletin issued to all unit Americanism chairmen this week.

She emphasized the fact that the Legion and Auxiliary's program of Americanism is not just a watching out for the various "isms" in the country, but an active inculcation in the schools and other training centers of the country of appreciation of American institutions and understanding of American traditions.

The fifth district convention was held Wednesday at Brookhaven. Mrs. G. E. Harris, district director, presided, and Mrs. J. C. Anglin, unit president, was official hostess.

Encouraging Reports Feature Baptist W. M. U. Board Meeting

The executive board of the W. M. U. of the Atlanta Association held its fall meeting with the historian of the association, Mrs. J. L. Jackson, at her home, 1630 Johnson road. Mrs. W. O. Mitchell, vice president of the north central division, brought the devotional, using as her subject, "Prepare Ye."

The report on young peoples' activities the past quarter was gratifying. Mrs. J. D. Rhodes is young peoples' leader, her assistants being Mrs. R. N. Landers, Y. W. A. leader; Mrs. A. C. Thomas, G. A. leader; Mrs. P. D. Matthews, R. A. leader, and Mrs. L. O. Laney, Sunbeams leader. Mrs. Landers announced the annual school of missions now in progress at the First Baptist church with Mrs. Una Roberts Lawrence as the teacher. Mrs. L. O. Laney announced December 8 as the date for Sunbeams Council to be held.

The financial report as given by Mrs. R. D. McDowell, first assistant superintendent; Mrs. Joe Senn, Mrs. F. J. Cooledge and Miss Fannie Rudisell shows an increase in gifts. The growth in interest and support of the two Good-Will centers, Mrs. Malcom Long and Mrs. E. G. Jackson, supervisors, sponsored by the association, was an encouraging feature of the report. Many needed repairs have been made on the buildings. Total gifts for the Georgia Baptist hospital linen shower exceeded previous gifts. This shower, supervised by Mrs. C. O. DuVall, White Cross chairman, will go toward replenishing the hospital supplies.

Stewardship report was made by the chairman, Mrs. H. H. Strickland, who said the number of tithers exceeded the number reported last quarter. Mrs. E. E. Steele, mission study chairman, reported having taught classes in most of the district mission study rallies.

Mrs. E. G. Clinkscale, personal service chairman, reported the largest gifts yet to the Orphans' Home annual linen shower. Mrs. B. B. Barnett, director of the Business and Professional Women's circle, reported a number of new circles organized.

Mrs. W. Lee Cutts, training school chairman, reported ten Georgia girls preparing for definite Christian service—also one Japanese girl. Mrs. G. E. Wood, scrapbook chairman, reported some districts as 100 per cent in publicity.

The district secretaries are Mesdames John P. Armstrong, D. C. Russ, James N. Brawner, J. S. Price, H. G. Blair, R. A. Cook, Ben R. Padgett and V. M. Womack. Some reported mission study rallies had been held. Other announced rallies to be held in the near future.

B. and P. Circle To Meet Friday.

Business and Professional Woman's Circle of the B. W. M. U. of the Atlanta association will hold its semi-annual business program meeting at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Mrs. Ryland Knight will bring the devotional. Greetings will be brought by Miss Elizabeth Taylor of the hostess church. The response will be made by Miss Irene Dover, of the Kirkwood Baptist church. Mrs. Charles Chambers and Mrs. Luther Harper of the Second-Ponce de Leon church, will have charge of the music.

Mrs. J. W. Awtry, superintendent of the Atlanta Association of B. W. M. U., will speak. Mrs. B. B. Barnett is director of the organization. Miss Maude Mobley is the president. Miss Helen Schaid is the program chairman.

"Miss Bessie" Goes To California

Bessie Margolin, Regenstein's Stylist, To Buy Cruise and Resort Clothes.

MISS BESSIE MARGOLIN, better known to her hundreds of Atlanta friends as "Miss Bessie," left Saturday night for California's fashion centers to buy sports, cruise and resort clothes for the Regenstein's Peachtree store. California, long recognized as the playground of the nation as well as the center of the cinema industry, has attracted master designers in women's fashions from all over the world.

CALIFORNIA'S famous climate which makes possible sports of all kinds from surf bathing to skiing, from desert sunning to mountain climbing—together with the glamour of Hollywood has fired the imagination of designers until California is fast becoming the fashion center of America and is already accepted as an authority on sports, cruise and resort clothes.

REGENSTEIN'S, ever alert to fashion trends, is the first in Atlanta to send a representative out west to cull from these original and exciting fashions the things best suited for southern resort wear.

* * *

. . . And you can depend upon Miss Bessie to bring to the fashion-wise women of Atlanta the very finest California has to offer in this type of women's apparel.

Miss McKoy Marries Henry Fitzpatrick.

Miss Fannye McKoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. McKoy, of Newnan, and Thomas Henry Fitzpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Fitzpatrick, of College Park, were married Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Ambrose Brown, on East Harvard avenue, College Park, with Rev. W. S. Robison, pastor of the College Park Methodist church, officiating.

The marriage vows were spoken in the living room before an improvised altar of palms, with tall floor baskets filled with white dahlias, and candelabras holding white lighted tapers. A musical program was presented by Mrs. Reynolds Wheeler and Miss Josephine Gabrels.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Charles B. Wheeler, sister of the bride, wore black silk crepe with gold spangles, with accessories to match. Her flowers were talisman roses.

The bride entered with William A. Brown, who gave her in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Howell Slade. She wore a traveling suit of dark green trimmed in blue fox fur with accessories of green. A corsage of bride's roses showered with valley lilies completed her costume.

An informal reception was held. Mrs. Brown wore royal wine velvet, and her corsage was of talisman roses. The bride's book was kept by Mrs. William Thomas Wheeler.

Mrs. McKoy wore blue silk crepe with matching accessories. Mrs. Fitzpatrick wore black silk crepe.

The bride's table was overlaid with a lace table cloth and the bride's three-tiered cake graced the center with crystal candlesticks holding white waxed lighted tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick will reside on West Columbia avenue, College Park, after a wedding trip to Florida.

Cooper, whose formal presentation to Atlanta society will be made by her parents on November 17 at an afternoon reception at their home on Piedmont avenue. Miss Cooper is of that unusual type of beauty that combines burnished golden hair with deep blue eyes. Like her mother, she is quite artistic in addition to being a good swimmer and a talented equestrienne. Miss Cooper moved to Atlanta from Oxford, N. C., where she had previously made her home. Her likeness was sketched by Grace Scarboro from a photograph by McCrary studio.

State Parent-Teacher Congress Will Conduct Training Classes

Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers will conduct parent-teacher training classes in various places throughout the state during the first two weeks in November. Mrs. Charles E. Roe, field secretary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, will conduct the classes. Mrs. Roe has for the past 13 years been on the staff of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. She is a former teacher in the Colorado public schools and for 11 years has been a special lecturer and instructor in parent-teacher technics in summer schools. Her keen interest in community affairs has led her to engage in many types of public activity in various clubs, church, school, welfare and social groups, her main interest centering in parent-teacher work.

All associations, councils and districts are urged to send representatives to these meetings. The programs will include the purpose of the institute; the service of the state and national offices to local units; the service of local units to the state and national congresses. The theme for these meetings is: "Progress Through Knowledge." If parent-teacher associations are to progress in the various fields of endeavor, leaders in the movement should have a thorough knowledge of the objects, guiding principles, projects and activities of the organization. These meetings will be held in connection with the district conference in several of the districts in the state.

November 1 the fifth district division of Georgia Congress will sponsor the training class led by Mrs. Roe. This meeting will not be held in connection with regular district conference. Mrs. Byron Mathews, Atlanta, president, will be assisted by officers and members in sponsoring the meeting.

On November 2 the training class will be held in connection with the Ninth District conference at Dahlonega at the school building at 10:30 a. m., eastern time. Mrs. R. H. Sams, of Lawrenceville, president of the ninth district division, will assist with this meeting.

On November 3 the training class will be held in connection with the fourth district conference at Griffin at the First Baptist church at 10 a. m., central time. Mrs. E. R. Edwards, of Flovilla, president of the fourth district division, will assist with this meeting.

On November 4 the training class will be held in connection with the second district conference at Bainbridge at the high school, 10 a. m., central time. Mrs. Victor Balkcom, of Blakely, president of the second district division, will assist with this meeting.

On November 5 the training class will be held in connection with the eighth district conference at Jesup at the Jesup school, 10 a. m., central time. Mrs. A. J. Tuten, of Alma, president of the eighth district division, will assist with this meeting.

On November 9 the training class will be held in connection with the first district conference at Marlow Consolidated school in Effingham county at 10:30 a. m., central time. Mrs. R. E. L. Majors, of Claxton, president of the first district division, will assist with this meeting.

On November 11 the training class will be held in connection with the third district conference at Columbus, at the Woman's Clubhouse, Wynnton road, 10 a. m., central time. Mrs. Cooper Campbell, acting president of the third district division, will assist with this meeting.

On November 12 the training class will be held in connection with the tenth district conference at Washington, at the school, 10:30 a. m., eastern time. Mrs. J. W. Sibert, of Augusta, president of the tenth district division, will assist with this meeting.

National attendance cards will be presented to those completing five hours of class work.

Local associations which registered in the summer round-up are urged to send the report blanks to the national office by November 1.

Fourth District Will Hold Rally.

Americus Council of Public Safety Chapter D.A.R. Gives Luncheon

By MRS. J. L. MIMS,
Of Hawkinsville, State Editor of Georgia D. A. R.

Council of Safety Chapter of Americus entertained at luncheon at the Windsor hotel, celebrating the twenty-ninth birthday of the chapter and Columbus Day. Honor guests were Mesdames W. H. Hightower, Thomaston, state first vice regent; J. L. Mims, Hawkinsville, state editor; Mark Smith, Thomaston, state director D. A. R., and Sam Merritt, chapter regent. Mrs. Merritt was toastmaster and the program chairman was Mrs. Frank Randall. The flag salute and American's creed were led by Mrs. Rufus Lane. "America" was sung by the chapter, accompanied by Mrs. S. A. Scruggs. A talk on "Continental Congress" was given by Mrs. Walker Carter.

Talks were made by Mrs. Mims and Mrs. Smith, and vocal selections were given by Mrs. Sam Lott, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Randall.

Visitors were introduced by the regent, Mrs. N. B. Stewart, only charter member present, and all past regents were present. Mrs. Hightower gave an address on national defense and other D. A. R. activities.

Fort Early chapter, Cordele, met and in the absence of the regent, Mrs. J. M. Diffee, the first vice regent, Mrs. T. J. Royal, presided. Announcements were made of the standing committees appointed for the year. Mrs. Henry Mashburn, of Rochelle, was welcomed as a new member. Members were asked to inspect the D. A. R. traveling genealogical library on display at the library. A paper on "The Thirteen Colonies" was read by Mrs. W. P. Fleming; Mrs. Butler Ray read a poem on LaFayette, after which Mrs. Edgar Fletcher gave vocal selections.

Mrs. John S. Adams, state regent, began her fall travel itinerary on October 5 when she attended the state U. D. C. convention in Macon, invited by Mrs. Frank Dennis, state president. On October 8 she met with the state committee of junior American citizens at the home of the state chairman, Mrs. Hugh Hardin, in Forsyth, and later visited the James Monroe chapter, of Forsyth.

On October 13 she was guest of Mary Hammond Washington chapter in Macon as house guest of the regent, Mrs. John McKay. On October 14 and 15 Mrs. Adams was in Moultrie as guest of John Benning chapter where she was entertained in the home of Mrs. John Beneson. ## ATLANTA D.A.V.'S HIT MACON CHARGES

Resolution Condemning Veterans' Office Is Assailed.

Answering criticism of the veterans' office at the state capitol by the executive committee of the Disabled American Veterans in Macon recently, the Morton T. Nichols Chapter No. 28 yesterday charged the Macon resolution did not express the sentiment of the majority of Disabled Veterans of Georgia.

The resolution "merely expressed the sentiment of approximately a half-dozen disgruntled veterans who are always against everything that will tend to promote peace and harmony in the organization," the local chapter charged in resolutions adopted here Friday night.

"The members of this chapter regret very much that the members of the state executive committee sponsored and adopted a resolution criticizing Stanley Jones, who is serving as director of the veterans' service office of Georgia," the resolution read.

The Atlanta chapter went on record as opposing the resolutions passed in Macon and voted thanks to Stanley Jones and his staff of assistants "for the fine service this office is rendering to the ex-service men of this state."

Copies of the Atlanta chapter's resolution were sent to Governor Rivers, Stanley Jones, and other veterans' service officials.

SALARIES FOR 1938 COMMISSION TO SET

Longino Withholds Comment on Grand Jury Charge of Excessive Pay

Without commenting on the Fulton county grand jury's presentments which charged that county employes are paid too much, Commissioner George F. Longino yesterday announced that a special meeting of the commission will be held as soon as the present commission race is over to study fixing salaries of county workers.

The grand jury Friday said that the county pay roll is excessive and above the average paid by "first-class firms in private business." The grand jury suggested that a "committee of department heads" be appointed to bring salaries in line with those in private business.

Commissioner Longino said salaries of department heads and subordinates would be discussed at the called meeting after a commissioner is elected to fill the present vacancy.

Under the law, salaries of county department heads must be fixed yearly at least 30 days before the first of the year. Other employes' salaries must be fixed at least 10 days before January 1 each year.

In reference to the grand jury's statement that the county has no way of knowing how much equipment is maintained by the public works department, Commissioner Longino said the department has been moving up for some time in preparation of an inventory to cover every item in the department.

He said that a complete inventory record would be made and kept as a permanent record.

Dr. Boole Discusses W.C.T.U. Ideals At Annual Convention in Savannah

By M. Frances Meadors Burghard, Macon, State W. C. T. U. Editor

"The ideals of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union were inspired by Christian patriotism. The transforming of these ideals into action has been the continuing purpose of the organization," said Dr. Ella A. Boole, president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union, at the 54th annual convention of the state W. C. T. U. in Savannah on Wednesday evening.

"In all our lives ideals are a controlling factor," she continued. "The same is true of organizations. Constitutions may provide for the orderly processes of administration, but no organization can exist without a definite purpose."

"The World's W. C. T. U. owes much to the idealism of Frances Willard," she declared. "It was she who had a vision of a world organization of women. It was she who proceeded to make it real by definite action.

"White Ribboners around the world are total abstainers," she said, "not because they themselves were ever victims of alcohol, but because they have seen others suffer and are using preventive measures, as in the case of preventive medicine. Because it is easier to prevent an appetite than to cure. Our work is with mothers—that they set an example in the home; with youth—that they may establish right standards for health and efficiency; and with children—that they may know what alcohol is and does, and continues all their lives to refrain from the use of alcoholic beverages. To this end we favor the teaching of total abstinence by precept and example in the home, the school and the church."

Declaring that "this ideal was adopted by every national organization, and she named about 25 of the World W. C. T. U. missionaries, speaking specially of Miss Agnes Slack, of London, who continues this work. Mrs. Boole said, "The interchange of workers has been so frequent between Canada and the United States that the number cannot be named. Miss Slack has been indefatigable in traveling and visiting many lands and organizing and stimulating the work. She has been in northern Europe, India, South Africa, Palestine, central Europe, Ireland, Bermuda, and her latest adventure was organizing a W. C. T. U. in Warsaw, Poland. . . . So has the message spread around the world and left in its train organized groups of women prepared to act in accordance with their ideals."

Mrs. Boole discussed the relation of alcohol to highway accidents, communicable diseases, child welfare, infant mortality, maternal mortality and morality.

She declared, "The W. C. T. U. is a social service organization and in promoting total abstinence, it is promoting all means of social welfare. The natural consequences of being interested in improving conditions surrounding the home is an interest in civic problems. Therefore we study citizenship and foster intelligence on the part of voters. . . . Organized womanhood fired with zeal for a righteous cause is a political power to reckon with, as some politicians have discovered."

In closing Mrs. Boole prophesied: "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has gone forward; and the time will come when through the force of education poured into the hearts of the people, public sentiment will take shape and the world will find a way to a fuller life without the use of alcoholic beverages."

Planters' Garden Club Meets.

Planters' Garden Club met October 25 at the home of Mrs. Charles Nunnally on Northside drive. Reports on the civic work of the club were encouraging. The Peachtree station's upper garden is being planted in red tulips, given by Mrs. Thomas Daniel, to make a bright spring picture, and the steep terrace, bordering the railway racks, is being further developed. The beautification of Peachtree road from Palisades to Fourteenth street is under way.

Mrs. Arthur Clarke gave an instructive talk on "Perpetual Bloom in the Garden." The club voted to increase the membership to 50, and also voted to increase the dues to $5 a year.

Mrs. Willard McBurney made a plea for the Young Matrons' Circle of Tallulah Falls' School by requesting the Planters' Club members to participate in the card party to be given November 16 at Piedmont Driving Club.

Cooper—Guy.

HADDOCK, Ga., Oct. 30.—Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Ira B. Cooper of the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Leverette, to Captain Walter Carlisle Guy, of McBee, S. C., which was solemnized April 16 in Fairfax, S. C. The Rev. George Smith officiated.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper. She is a graduate of G. S. C. T., Athens, and also attended the University of Georgia. Her mother was Miss Mary Anchors, daughter of John and Christiana Anchors.

Captain Guy received his A. B. degree from Wofford College and the M. A. degree from Duke University. He is an officer in reserve, at present instructor in a Civilian Construction camp at Bulls Island and St. Mary's, S. C. He is the only son of Captain and Mrs. D. L. Guy, of McBee, S. C., his father being a retired army officer.

Miss Burnett, of Denver, To Wed Robert M. Strozier in December

DENVER, Col., Oct. 20.—Of interest is the announcement made by Dr. and Mrs. Clough Turrill Burnett, of this city, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lucile Burnett, to Robert Manning Strozier, of Carrollton, Ga., the marriage to take place in December.

Miss Burnett is a representative of well-known families here. Her father is a prominent heart specialist of this city and is a member of the faculty of the University of Colorado Medical College. Her mother was before her marriage Miss Lucile Hoyt, of Michigan, and her father is also a native of Michigan.

Dr. C. H. Burnett, brother of the bride-elect, is with the Presbyterian hospital in New York, and her sister Miss Jean Burnett, is a student at the University of Denver. E. H. Burnett, cousin of the bride-elect, is chancellor of the University of Nebraska.

The bride-elect attended Ward-Belmont College in Nashville and is a graduate of the University of Colorado. She is a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority and since her graduation she has done social service work in Denver and graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Mr. Strozier, the groom-elect, is the son of Mrs. R. J. Strozier, of Tallahassee, Fla., and the late Professor R. J. Strozier. His mother is the former Miss Mattie Stokes, of Pulaski county, and through her he is related to the Stokes and McLendon families of South Carolina. On his paternal side he is related to the Wrights and Lewises, of Georgia and Virginia. His paternal ancestors have been long prominent in educational circles.

The brothers of the groom-elect are Harry S. Strozier, of Macon; W. R. Strozier, of Bazley; J. H. Strozier, of Valdosta; Ben L. Strozier, of Rock Hill, S. C., and Fred L. Strozier, of Tallahassee.

The groom-elect was born in McRae, Ga., and is a graduate of the Moultrie High school. He later attended Emory University, where he graduated in 1929 and received his Master of Arts degree in 1930. Ltaer he was head of the langnage department of the Georgia State College in Tifton. In 1932 he studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and later graduate work at the University of Chicago. For the past four years he has been professor of French and dean for men at the West Georgia College in Carollton.

MISS MARGARET LUCILE BURNETT.

While at Emory he was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity and the following fraternities: D. V. S., O. D. K., Pi Delta Epsilon and Phi Sigma Iota, was editor of the annual in 1929 and was with the Emory Glee Club on their European tour in 1928.

The marriage of Miss Burnett and Mr. Strozier takes place in Denver during the Chirstmas holidays.

REHABILITATION OF PRISONERS IS A MAJOR REFORM OF STATE PENAL SYSTEM AT NEW GEORGIA STATE PRISON NEAR REIDSVILLE

FIRST NIGHT PHOTOGRAPH of the new $1,500,000 Georgia state prison at "Piny Woods," near Reidsville. Note the floodlighting system which will aid in keeping Georgia "bad boys" confined.

POWER GENERATION experts are being developed at the giant plant, a part of the equipment of the "prison city," located about nine miles from Reidsville.

IT'S TAG MAKING TIME and prisoners are seen as they process the cold rolled sheet steel into automobile tags which will be distributed to owners of vehicles next year.

PHOTOCRIME—"THE MURDER OF THE CAMPUS QUEEN"—CAN YOU TELL WHICH LOVER KILLED THE BEAUTIFUL CO-ED?

(1)
CHAMP GIFFORD is showing off his new car and Terence Clyne's old girl at the football game. The girl, Hilary Post, campus beauty, whispers to a friend: "Terence will be wild if he hears I'm out with Champ—but what the heck! I love 'em both and both of them love me."

(2)
TERENCE CLYNE not only hears of the affair, he sees Champ with Hilary a few hours later and proceeds to swing a haymaker to the jaw of his rival. Hilary calls Terence a "brute" and declares she never wants to see him again.

(3)
CHAMP TAKES HILARY FOR A WALK ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON. Terence has left town for the week end, still angry. Hilary had called Champ and told him she had made a choice between him and Clyne and wanted to talk with him about it. Certain that Hilary had chosen him, Champ had hurried to her sorority house and they had walked across the campus talking vivaciously.

(4)
TERENCE RETURNS TO TOWN on the 7:30 train that evening. A girl he meets at the station tells him Hilary is out with Champ. "I'll see about that," mutters Clyne as he stalks off through the rain.

(5)
SEVERAL HOURS LATER, Hilary's dead, rain-soaked body is found in a secluded part of the campus by a couple taking a short cut. She had been choked to death. Terrified, the couple spread the alarm, and inside of a short time every student at the college had heard of the tragedy, and many had gathered at the scene of the gruesome crime.

(6)
TERENCE AND CHAMP were kneeling beside the dead body when police arrived, accompanied by Detective Doane. Champ admitted he had been with Hilary, but insisted he had left her at 7:30 at the corner near her sorority house. Terence admitted he had been looking for Hilary, that he was angry with her, but denied having seen, or killed, her.

(7)
DETECTIVE DOANE goes over the scene carefully for clues, as soon as the body is removed. He is convinced one of the two rival suitors committed the crime, but which one? Terence, watching the detective, pulls a powder box from his pocket. It falls to the ground as both Terence and Champ try to catch it. Detective Doane eyes Terence narrowly, then dismisses the incident.

(8)
"HOLD THIS TEST TUBE FOR ME," says Detective Doane to Terence, a short time later. Terence takes hold of the tube, but it, too, drops to the paving and breaks . . . Doane then took the two boys to the police station, where he questioned them. A few hours later, after checking both boys' alibis, one of them was released, the other held for murder.

Which of the two was charged with Hilary's murder? What convinced Detective Doane of the other suspect's innocence? The solution will be found on page 4.

STATE of NEVADA TEST of COTTON FABRIC as REINFORCEMENT for CONCRETE HIGHWAYS MAY OPEN HUGE MARKET for SOUTHERN PRODUCT

A SCENE on a Nevada highway just out of Carson City where cotton fabric is being used to test the material as a major element in road construction.

See story in news section of today's Constitution.

THREE GRADES of the cotton fabric loaded on a truck ready for placement on the experimental road, the Pyramid Lake highway in the western part of the state.

A CREW of workmen unraveling the cotton fabric from a spindle. It is surfaced after being made fast to a specially prepared base.

FASTENING the material just enough to keep a surface, providing what is believed to be the first real test for this projected new use of cotton.

THE COMPACT COTTON FABRIC, over an oil base and covered with the gravel screenings is being rolled for compaction.

WORKMEN are shown dumping gravel screenings on the cotton membrane before the top is put on.

A Murder of the Campus Queen

The ground where Hilary's body had lain was dry. Therefore, her body had been there since before the rain. It was raining when Terence arrived in town. Therefore, he could not have committed the crime before the rain. The fact that he dropped things merely indicated nervousness. As soon as Detective Doane verified Clyne's story of having arrived on the 7:30 train, after the rain started, he was released. Champ had killed Hilary, as he afterward admitted, in a jealous rage after she had told him of her irrevocable decision to drop him and make up with Terence Clyne.

BAH! BE CALM YOURSELF! YOU'RE AS JITTERY AND SUSPICIOUS AS A RATTLER- WHY MUST THIS OAF, CECIL, FOLLOW ME EVERYWHERE? ARE YOU SCARED OF ME? AFRAID OF SOMETHING-

NO-I'M NOT AFRAID OF A THING- NOT EVEN OF A DOUBLE-CROSS FROM YOU--- AS LONG AS CECIL IS WITH YOU, PAL-

BUT IT'S MIGHTY FUNNY THEY HAVEN'T FOUND THAT BRAT IN TWO WEEKS- EVERY OLD BOOT AND SAFETY PIN IN THE RIVER--- BUT NOT HER--- IF YOU TRIED TO TRICK ME----

I SWEAR I DID MY PART- SHE'S THERE---SHE'S GOT TO BE- BUT IF YOU WANT TO START SOMETHING, O.K.- YOU MAKE JUST ONE PASS-

WHILE AT THE "HAUNTED HOUSE"----

NO, IT'S NOT AT ALL IMPOSSIBLE TO GET $100,000 ON A CHILD OVER TEN-SHE'LL GET WARBUCKS' ESTATE WHEN HE DIES- SHE'LL NEED COVERAGE FOR TAX PURPOSES THEN- THAT FURNISHED A LOGICAL REASON FOR TAKING OUT SUCH HEAVY POLICIES-

NATURALLY, UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES, DEATH AND ACCIDENT CLAUSES SEEMED IN ORDER- BEING SPLIT AMONG TEN COMPANIES, NO ONE POLICY WAS EXCESSIVE, EVEN WITH DOUBLE INDEMNITY FOR ACCIDENTAL DEATH- OF COURSE, THERE HAD TO BE A FAVORABLE RETAIL CREDIT REPORT--- BUT THAT WAS EASY-

IN SPITE OF WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT BLABBLE, DON'T FORGET HE, PUBLICLY, IS REGARDED AS A RICH, RIGHTEOUS AND SOLID PILLAR OF SOCIETY- HE VOUCHED FOR BRITTLEWIT- THAT WAS ENOUGH TO PUT IT OVER- PAYMENT TO BE TO BRITTLEWIT, HER LEGAL FATHER, OF COURSE- BLABBLE PUT UP THE PREMIUM MONEY-

THEN BRITTLEWIT TRIED HIS BEST TO MURDER HER- THINKS HE SUCCEEDED- BUT WE CAN'T EVEN PIN ATTEMPTED MURDER ON HIM-

NO- WHO'D BELIEVE THE TRUTH? ANNIE THE ONLY WITNESS- SHE'D BE BRANDED A VILE, UNGRATEFUL WRETCH, TURNING ON THOSE WHO HAD BEFRIENDED HER-

ANNIE WOULD BE MADE OUT A VICIOUS LIAR, A CRUEL AND VILE STREET ARAB, TRYING TO BITE THE LOVING HANDS HELD OUT TO HER- BRITTLEWIT WOULD BE EXALTED AS THE DISILLUSIONED SAMARITAN-

YES- FOR ATTEMPTED MURDER HE'D BE FREED AS A MARTYR --A HERO-

AND FOR HER SURVIVAL, ANNIE WOULD BE REVILED AND SENT TO A REFORM SCHOOL- NO- HE CAN'T BE PUNISHED-

AH- THAT'S WHERE YOU'RE WRONG, MY FRIEND - HE WILL BE PUNISHED - JUSTICE ISN'T BLIND- ONLY NAPPING- GIVE HER TIME TO WAKE-

OH, I KNOW- YOUR LAW OF NATURE, OR OF "DOG EAT DOG"- THAT'S AS WEAK AND FUTILE AS THE OLD SAYING THAT "HIS CONSCIENCE WILL PUNISH HIM"-

NOT EXACTLY- YOU SEE, I INTEND TO HAVE A WORD WITH JUSTICE WHEN SHE WAKES- IN FACT, I PLAN TO AROUSE JUSTICE- PROMPT HER A BIT, PERHAPS-

IT SOUNDS CRAZY TO ME- MAYBE, YOU'VE GOT IT FIGURED OUT, TOO, HOW TO PUNISH BLABBLE- THERE'S NO WAY I KNOW OF, UNDER THE LAW, TO REACH HIM, EITHER-

AH, YES- HE IS INCLUDED IN MY LITTLE PLAN- TOMORROW WE BEGIN WHAT I TRUST WILL SATISFY EVEN YOUR SENSE OF JUSTICE, MR. CHAIN-

BUT BLABBLE HAS KILLED FIFTY PEOPLE, AND IT CAN'T BE PROVED- BRITTLEWIT TRIED TO KILL ME, AND THAT CAN'T BE PROVED- AND THEY THINK I'M DEAD- BUT I'M ALIVE- IT ALL MAKES ME DIZZY

DON'T WORRY, ANNIE- THIS TIME JUSTICE WILL TRIUMPH- I GIVE YOU MY WORD ON THAT-

INDIAN FALSE FACES SHOWN IN AN EASY-TO-BUILD MODEL

MUSEUM
DIORAMAS
By HOLLING CLANCY HOLLING

SCISSORS, PASTE AND WRAPPING PAPER ALL YOU NEED TO MAKE THIS CUTOUT

Halloween masks, as you probably know, originated in Europe for celebrating the eve of All Saints Day, October 31st. But few people know that similar masks were made and are still being used by some tribes of American Indians in similar celebrations during the year. This Diorama shows you an ancient festival of Iroquois Indians who used masks in their ceremonies.

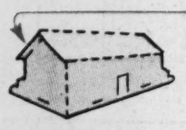

THIS IS HOW DIORAMA WILL LOOK WHEN FINISHED

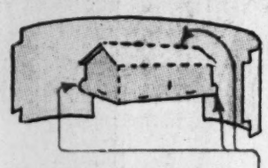

There are really only four parts to this simple Diorama—a Frame or front, a curving background, a cabin, and the Indians. In making this model we use heavy wrapping paper to stiffen the cutout pieces. First, cut all the cutout pieces from this page (but don't trim to outlines until later), because it is easier to paste them down separately. Spread paste (with small cloth swab) evenly over wrapping paper, just enough for one cutout piece at a time. When all the pieces have been pasted to the wrapping paper, place them under weights (such as magazines) to dry flat without wrinkles. When perfectly dry, make all inside cuts and slits and crease all dotted lines for folding. Then trim neatly to outlines and follow STEP ONE, STEP TWO and so on for assembly directions.

STEP TWO: Fold LONGHOUSE into proper shape, and paste down roof tab at No. 1.

STEP THREE: Curve BACKGROUND and insert tabs of LONGHOUSE into numbered slits.

Some masks represented imaginary good spirits which the wearer impersonated. "Wind Mask" thanked the Great Spirit for the four winds that bring the seasons. "Buffalo" gave thanks for good hunting. There were many others.

AMERICAN INDIAN FALSE FACES

The Iroquois Indians' New Year was celebrated with feasting, songs and dancing. Most masks worn in this festival represented good spirits. They were of carved wood, gaily painted and decorated with bright feathers. Before the feast, men and boys wearing "Beggar" masks went from house to house singing and dancing for contributions of food such as maple sugar, beans, squash, corn or meat. This Diorama shows the masked dancers on New Year's night entering the council Longhouse where the ceremonies continue until dawn.

Masks worn by the secret society of "Falsefaces" were made hideous for it was imagined that such masks had power to frighten away disease. When called upon, the "Falsefaces" treated the sick and performed a dance for them in return for food.

What Has Happened to Justice?

By PETER LEVINS.

Seven years ago a so-called "lovers' lane murderer," known as the 3-X Maniac, terrorized Queens. He committed three murders and never was caught—at least he never was identified. Within recent days death again struck on a lovers' lane in Queens when two young people, Lewis Weiss and Frances Hajek, were found slain in a parked car in Hollis Woods.

Almost invariably, when a crime of this type occurs, the assumption is that the killer must be a maniac and a stranger to the victim or victims.

Which recalls the Truesdale-Woods case in 1931, one of the most extraordinary of lovers' lane mysteries.

Midnight had come and passed, and still Mrs. John Woods waited up for her daughter, Thelma.

The girl had driven off in high good spirits early that May evening with her beau, 26-year-old Earl Truesdale, who lived in near-by Elida, Ohio. Earl had arrived at the Woods home in Lima shortly before 8 o'clock, and the pair had set out for the Memorial Day dance at McCullough's Grove, on the outskirts of town. Thelma, who was 17, had been warned not to stay out later than 12 o'clock.

She had always been an obedient child. She had never remained out this late before. . . .

One o'clock . . . Mrs. Woods went to the door and listened, hoping to hear Earl's touring car as it approached the house in the enveloping darkness. But she heard nothing but the pulsating noises of the spring night.

One-thirty . . . The mother called her husband.

"John," she said, "it's half past one, and Thelma isn't home yet."

John Woods grunted and rubbed his sleep-heavy eyes. "Not home yet? Why, she ought to be spanked! And we'll have to give that Truesdale boy a piece of our minds, too!"

"She never did this before. She knows how I worry."

"I'll talk to Earl's parents. He's a good lad, but he knows he should get Thelma home before 12."

"Do you think anything could have happened to them?"

Another grunt. "What do you mean? What could have happened? They're both young—and it's a fine night. They'll be along."

"I can't help worrying," said Mrs. Woods.

"Better go to bed. No sense in losing your sleep over a couple of silly kids." Woods tried to make a joke as he added, "You were young once yourself, mother."

Mrs. Woods went to bed, but she did not sleep. She lay wide awake the night through, listening for the sound of an automobile which never came. As dawn broke she again wakened her husband, telling him that Thelma and Earl had still not arrived home. Woods could think of no explanation except that the youngsters had eloped.

The Truesdales thought nothing of Earl's absence over-night. This wasn't the first time he had spent the night somewhere away from home. Besides, this was a week-end; probably he had stayed over in Lima; most likely Mr. and Mrs. Woods had put him up for the night.

The Sabbath sun began to climb high in the heavens. Still no word of the pair. Mrs. Woods telephoned the Truesdale farm.

"Thelma and Earl haven't come back," she said anxiously. "We know they went to the dance because we've called McCullough's Grove, but—we don't know anything more. We're beginning to think that they ran away and got married."

Mrs. Donald Truesdale, Earl's mother, could not believe that such a thing had happened. For one thing, although Earl thought the world of Thelma, she hadn't been the only girl in his life. For another, he hadn't been in any position to get married. Formerly he had worked in a locomotive factory in Lima and earned fair pay, but slack times had sent him back to the farm. Earl was far too sensible a chap, his mother said, ever to take a wife in such a penurious situation.

"He's told me time and again," she assured Mrs. Woods, "that he would certainly not get married, no matter how much in love he might be, until he got some kind of paying job."

"Then what could have happened to them?" exclaimed Thelma's mother.

Mrs. Truesdale had no answer to that. Although she did not admit it to Mrs. Woods, she entertained grave fears.

"What do you suppose could have happened to them?" she asked her other son, Loren.

"Oh, they'll turn up all right," he said with a shrug. "I wouldn't worry, ma."

But the hours passed, with still no word. Finally, at about noon Sunday, John Woods telephoned the Lima police.

Officers, feeling fairly confident that this was just another elopement, visited the Truesdale home, the Woods home, and McCullough's Grove. The information they gathered got them just about nowhere. Earl and Thelma had gone to the dance, remained until shortly before midnight, then driven off, apparently for the Woods home. Acquaintances who had seen them and talked with them at the party had not noticed anything unusual about their behavior.

Did Earl have any sizable amount of money on him? His mother was sure that he had very little.

"I'm positive," she said, "that he did not have more than $2 and some silver."

Hardly enough to finance a honeymoon . . .

By Sunday evening the police began to take the case seriously. If these kids hadn't eloped, then—what had happened to them. Obviously the thing to do was trace their movements from the time they left McCullough's Grove. If they had married, then some one must have performed the ceremony. No such person could be found.

Police officers followed the probable route Earl and Thelma had taken after leaving McCullough's Grove. This led to an abandoned quarry in the lonely section of town. For years this spot had been a trysting place for young lovers of Lima.

As a matter of course, the officers visited this spot, and made a major discovery—Earl Truesdale's car. It was parked on the embankment overlooking the deep pond. The ignition key was missing, the light switch was on, and the battery had run down.

No footprints could be discovered leading from the machine.

Close examination of the car offered no clues, but later Earl's father reported that a blanket, ordinarily in the back of the car, had disappeared.

The police could find no one who had visited the quarry Saturday night. If certain other young couples had parked there, they chose not to come forward, possibly through embarrassment or fear of parental wrath.

Thus egged on by inhabitants, officers plumbed the pool and to their dismay discovered that it was 60 feet deep. They said that it would be impossible to drain the thing, adding that most likely it was fed by springs. Besides, it would cost a lot of money.

But the people of Lima refused to take this as final. What if the job should prove expensive, they exclaimed — the mystery must be solved. Two young people of the community had disappeared; it seemed most logical that their bodies lay at the bottom of the quarry pool.

The harassed authorities now decided to summon marine experts from Toledo. The experts quickly agreed that it would cost a pretty penny to drain the pool, and suggested dynamite discharges as an alternative. If dynamite failed to dislodge the bodies, they said, then pumps could be called into play.

Crowds began to gather at the quarry. Inhabitants lined the embankment as six heavy discharges of explosive shot the water high into the air. After each blast officers pushed off in boats to check on the results. Suddenly—

There was a cry from one of the boats. An object had been sighted. It was resting on a ledge just a few feet under the surface. It was the body of Thelma Woods.

She had been struck over the head, her hands and feet had been tied, and rocks had been lashed to her body, placed in her bloomers, and tied within her dress about the chest. The marine experts said that, in view of this heavy weighting of the body, it had been pure luck and nothing else which had caused the corpse to be blown almost to the surface of the pool. Moreover, the low temperature of the water had preserved the body perfectly despite the fact that death had occurred approximately one week before.

It was quickly established that Thelma had been dead when her body entered the water.

When further discharges of dynamite failed to produce a second body, the police definitely leaned to the theory that Earl had killed his girl friend and then fled. Thus a nation-wide search for the missing youth was launched, and at the same time the local officers probed Earl's character and past for possible clues to his whereabouts.

But they could find nothing. He had an excellent record in the community — had been upright, thrifty and industrious. Though his wages from his father were small, he had managed to save some money. His only extravagance had been the purchase of a car, which had cost him less than $100.

The easy conclusion that Thelma had been slain by her companion failed to satisfy many people of the community, particularly the Truesdale family, and strong pressure was exerted in favor of draining the pond. Certain officials and citizens insisted this would be a sheer waste of the taxpayers' money, but in the end the county authorities had to yield. They hired some expensive equipment and the high-priced Toledo experts tackled the job.

Soon the project became the main attraction of the region. From miles around folks came to watch the level of the water slowly descend. On Sunday after the work started more than 20,000 visited the scene. Hot dog stands sprang up, and soft drink tents. The place had a carnival air.

Meanwhile investigators looked into Thelma Wood's activities and friendships. She had been a popular girl, they learned: had many boy friends, with Earl Truesdale at the top of the list. Mrs. Woods said that her daughter in recent weeks had repeatedly turned down other dates to go with Earl.

This phase of the inquiry uncovered what appeared to be a promising lead when officers learned that Thelma had known one James May, 20, who had a police record. He had been arrested two years before after a series of petty burglaries. The newspapers had dubbed him "the pinochle burglar" because after every theft he went at once to a police station in his neighborhood to sit in on or watch a pinochle game there.

He had confessed but, thanks to his youth and an appeal by his mother, had been sent to the State Hospital for Insane at Toledo. And he had recently been discharged.

The police pounced upon May at once, fairly confident that he held the key to the mystery. Naturally, they demanded to know where he had been and what he was doing the night of May 30th. He replied that he had been home most of the evening playing cards with his family. He had planned to take a girl to the holiday dance, which Earl and Thelma attended, but he had lacked the money.

He admitted that he had gone out with Thelma Woods on occasion but insisted that he knew nothing of the crime. All efforts to shake his story failed.

Young May offered to work with the local sleuths on the Lovers' Lane Mystery, as the case was being called, but they told him that they could get along without his services.

Thus the investigators were forced back to their original theory, despite the fact that not a single trace of Truesdale had been found. But whenever they suggested that the costly draining project be abandoned the inhabitants rose up in protest.

Day and night the pumps worked. Landslides often hampered the workers. Two weeks of this and then—

The level of the water had dropped to six feet when, once more, a great shout went up. The body of Earl Truesdale had been found.

It was wedged in the mud near a ledge about five feet from the bottom. He had been struck over the head many times. He, too, had died before he was dropped into the pool, and as in the case of the girl the body had been heavily weighted with rocks.

The investigators were extremely dazed by this discovery. All sorts of theories were now advanced.

Then—a new sensation. The missing blanket had been found!

The police announced that the

OCTOBER 31—SUNDAY: The entire day is favorable for improveing your position in life through social contacts, and through a gracious attitude towards others. You should receive welcome through friends, and profit through dealings with them. However, previous to 2:25 p. m., do not put exciting or radical ideas into effect.

NOVEMBER 1—MONDAY: New beginnings today will be susceptible to decided complications, chaotic conditions, wastefulness and extravagance. If shopping today or making and new purchases, be sure you have not agreed to pay out more than you can afford. Those born the early days of May and November, are apt to feel a rebellion, or have a critical attitude that should be held in check.

NOVEMBER 2—TUESDAY: Previous to 10:50 a. m. is inauspicious for consultations, written matter, travel or for large activities. There seems to be a general nervousness in the atmosphere, which is not conductive to good judgment. While this is not a favorable day to make changes, and undertake new beginnings, should you get in a "jam" take your troubles to the one who has the most authority, and be sure you do not hold back any of the facts about what you are attempting.

NOVEMBER 3 — WEDNESDAY: Today will be another day of strain, but if you will control any feeling of high tension, this should be a pleasurable day for travel, for dealings with legal people, ordinary business, literary efforts, communications, consultations, advertising, and contacting clever and progressive people. Be prepared, however, to change your tactics.

NOVEMBER 4—THURSDAY: Before 11:44 a. m. can be made a very important period if you will turn your activities toward practical outlets. There will be less haste around you, and you can work out affairs in a more commonsense way. This is a favorable time for attending to details, for real estate transactions, for consulting those who are conservative, and for serious ideas. The remainder of the day will prove favorable for dealings with prominent people, improving old methods, and advancing well laid plans.

NOVEMBER 5 — FRIDAY: Give your attention to routine matters today, and keep in the background. Don't try to work off your excess emotions by extravagance and indulgence. You are likely to run into too many today who have a hard luck tale to tell.

NOVEMBER 6—SATURDAY: You may see only the bright side of things before 7:33 a. m., but if you will look closer, new propositions have a "cat in the bag." Don't believe all you hear. After 7:33 a. m. you can come to agreeable solutions, make easy progress, and you can look for a few breaks or favorable developments. After 7:33 a. m. social life, dealings in artistic and pleasurable lines, mechanical ideas, and finances will progress favorably.

HOW A LAWYERS' BATTLE AND A 'VOICE FROM BEYOND' BROKE THE RICH POLITICAL BOSS' WIFE

Spirits Failed Mrs. Croker

Illustration by Marthe Moore.

By LILLIAN VERGARA

TRAGIC figure in an eerie, real-life ghost story involving the fabulous millions of Richard Croker, one-time lord of New York's political domain, Mrs. Bula Croker, his widow, today finds herself bankrupt, forlorn and facing an uncertain future.

The proud descendant of a mighty chief of the Cherokee tribes, whose wealth and power gained her fame on two continents, has fought a losing battle against an amazing series of legal actions. Even what she believes was spiritual advice of her departed husband, which she says was imparted to her from time to time, has been unable to break the chain of tragedy which has surrounded Mrs. Croker almost from the day of her much publicized marriage to the man whose name was a classic in political circles throughout the country.

When Richard Croker died fifteen years ago on his magnificent estate at Glencairn, County Dublin, Ireland, he departed this life believing that the handsome Indian girl he had married in 1914 was financially secure and that for the remainder of her life the luxuries to which he had accustomed her would be provided. For he left her his entire fortune of over $10,000,000 which included his valuable Irish properties as well as huge estates in both New York and Palm Beach, Florida.

Astute politician though he was, Croker could not foresee that the very reading of his will was to be the signal for a series of lawsuits that would clutter the courts of two nations for a decade and a half and eventually leave his widow bereft, as she is today, of even a roof over her head. Even though he could not foresee the future, however, Mrs. Croker believed that once her troubles had started, her departed husband was aware of them.

"I am in constant spiritual communication with my husband," she said once, when questioned as to whether she was worrying over the outcome of her many lawsuits. "He speaks to me through trees and flowers—and advises me constantly."

But despite this "advice," Bula lost the last of her possessions—her luxurious Palm Beach home—just a few days ago.

The recent auction of "The Wigwam," Croker's Florida estate, in payment for back taxes was the final link in a chain of tragic circumstances which began when Bula Edmondson, as a dark-eyed and raven tressed young beauty from the West, captured the heart of the ruthless Tammany Titan, who, though he had been widowed only five days, slipped an engagement ring on her finger and led her to the altar within six weeks.

For a little while it seemed that, like the heroines of fiction, Bula Edmondson Croker, whose romance had such an auspicious beginning was to "live happily ever after." If wealth and luxury alone could guarantee happiness, certainly the Fates had been kind to the Indian maid.

Her husband had retired from politics and spent his life enjoying the fruits of a successful life. The Crokers commuted between Ireland and Florida—their winters spent on the $2,500,000 Palm Beach showplace which recently went under the hammer, and their Summers in the palatial Glencairn estate. Glencairn was veritably a dream castle. The building alone was valued at over $1,000,000, and its furnishings at another $4,000,000. Magnificent tapestries, some appraised as high as $60,000 apiece, decorated its walls. A faint idea of its magnificence may be gleaned from the fact that when Croker decided to add a wing to the billiard room, it cost $150,000—with a similar sum required for the additional furnishings. Surrounding the mansion were 554 acres of farm land and the world-famed Croker racing stables which produced Orby, winner of the English Epsom Derby in 1907, and dozens of other famous steeds.

But the Crokers were not to be happy for long. They had been married only a short time when the ex-politician was sued by his own son, Richard Croker, Jr., in a matter involving his mother's estate. The elder Croker did not, of course, realize it at the time, but that one suit was to be the beginning of a series of legal controversies to rage long after his death—with his widow as the harassed defendant.

Croker and his first wife, Elizabeth, had been separated for twenty years before her death in 1914, and in the dispute between them, the four children, Richard, Jr., Howard, Ethel Croker White and Florence Croker, had sided with their mother. The breach between father and children was widened with Croker's second marriage. Two of the children, Howard and Ethel, lived with their mother until her death and Croker contributed $20,000 a year to their support besides establishing a trust fund of over $300,000 for his estranged wife. At her death, the first Mrs. Croker's will specified that the proceeds of this fund were to be divided among her four children.

Young Croker alleged in his suit that he made an agreement with his father to pay his share of his mother's estate to his brother Howard, if his father would pay a like sum to Howard and his sister Ethel. He claimed that he carried out his part of the agreement but his father had not. The court's decision favored the children. An appeal was filed but before it was heard the elder Croker died and left his fortune to Bula—and then her troubles began. The children sued their stepmother for the Dublin estate. They lost, but the court costs and attorneys' fees for the widow were terrific. The children then sued for the Florida estate. Again they lost, but it cost Mrs. Croker a huge sum. Other suits followed, with tragic persistence. Suits over real estate deals started by her late husband; suits for taxes; suits to settle ownership of various properties. For fifteen years Bula Croker has been a familiar figure in the nation's courtrooms. She mortgaged her home in Ireland to pay court costs and taxes. But to no avail. Today she has nothing.

Two of the nine commandments of Bula's Cherokee ancestors are "It is sinful to neglect or deride the old or the afflicted or to fail to share with them the fruits of the chase." When she had money Bula remembered the admonitions—and gave gladly to the old and needy.

Today she and her 77-year-old mother sit alone, ill and destitute. The trees and the flowers may whisper her husband's comfort—but so far, no one has come to Bula's aid.

A SHORT SHORT STORY
By JACK LAIT

Heart O'Manhattan

Pete tried to throw on the emergency brake, but all he could clutch was the handle that opened the hood ventilator.

NEW YORK is the only city on earth which is too big and too busy to publish its vital statistics.

A man, with the heavenly inspiration of a consuming love, may meet, woo and wed the human angel of his dreams; of that great passion may be born a son, who in turn may marry, may have children and may die—and yet, outside the musty typewritten records of the pigeon-holed files in city hall, there will never be a mention of any of these colossal phenomena—not even a line of agate type—and agate is the infinitesimally tiny font of which classified ads are composed.

But every time a horse is scratched at a remote race track, that is duly published; likewise daily arrival of buyers from Coshocton and East St. Louis, and bankruptcies, incorporations, market reports, real estate transfers, foreclosures and Jersey City baseball box-scores, for these things are important; New Yorkers either make or lose money on such.

And so it chanced that John Boeffiger Smathers was born—unannounced—in the shadows of tall buildings, amid the roar and the rattle of traffic one dawn in Manhattan.

Through the vicissitudes of metropolitan childhood and youth and maturity he progressed with the customary hard bumps, occasional thrills, hourly dangers and multifarious temptations.

And, when he was some 24, his eye first dwelt upon the charms of Mame Mentin.

Mame, likewise, had first seen the light dimly through the smoke and the fog and the heavy shadows of the Big Burg. She, too, without any public notation, breathed life, and grew and progressed to maturity with the customary hard bumps, occasional thrills, hourly dangers and even more multifarious temptations.

John looked upon Mame and Mame looked back upon John—and a great love was born. And in time John and Mame, hand in hand, stood before the assistant district leader of a Yorkville assembly division, and he asked them some questions and they gave him two dollars and he gave them a piece of paper.

With this document as the blessing of the law upon their love, they went to a preacher, and by him, with the blessing of the Lord added to the blessing of the law, they were united in holy wedlock.

Of all this the millions—all neighbors, all strangers—knew nothing and cared as many times nothing as there were people to not care.

Only John and Mame knew and cared. For they were complete unto themselves. That is, they thought they were, until they found in retrospect how incomplete they had been—before the birth of little Johnnie; and they were to find that even then they had not visualized the happiness that was to come with little Rosie—and little Peter—and little Kitty—and little Lillian—and so on.

They lived their difficult, exacting, circumscribed lives throughout the years. No one knew them, no one felt them and no one would have missed them. Oh, the other workers in the assembling plant where John worked smiled to him mornings and evenings, but after that they scattered and were far from his life; and the grocer, the butcher and the drug-clerk nodded to Mame, but after she made her purchases they never gave her a thought—for she paid cash. They didn't know the name of the family that lived beneath their floor or over their ceiling.

But they were content. Their love never entirely gave in under the grind of their routine, the discomfort of cheap existence in the swarming hive, the sicknesses and disappointments and accidents of person, employment, weather and economics.

The children grew and the parents were no longer young. And presently little Johnnie was no longer little, and he, in turn, met a girl, and he, in turn, went before the deputy city clerk and handed him two dollars, and a preacher sanctified the union, as unannounced as had been his birth.

And so John saw his family become a number of families, a number of anonymous, unhailed, unnoticed, unidentified families which were in turn to be the creators of other beings destined to be likewise absorbed into the vastness of the flyspecks on the surface of Manhattan's concrete, granite and steel.

John still worked. He still voted. He still paid rent and taxes, such as he could and had to. For he was a sober man, a steady man, too unimaginative to be individual, too tired to make himself conspicuous.

And Mame was a loyal, faithful woman who conserved her pennies, who cooked and sewed for her man, who bore and nursed and fed and rode herd on her brood through measles and mumps, through bruises and battles, through the panics and perils that stalk youth in the jungles of tenements and taxis, skyscrapers.

John's hair was gray now, and so was Mame's.

He couldn't hold up with the piece-work, and was switched to the lobster trick, where he couldn't earn as much as once he did. But the older kids were self-supporting now—self-supporting on about the same scale that he had been at their ages and stages.

For Mame he had paid and paid through a quarter of a century on a "straight life" policy, so that she would not be dependent on her children or on charity should he pass on before her. It wasn't a large sum, but Mame had never seen a large sum, and on a couple of thousand dollars could subsist for years.

And, as long as John could keep up his premiums and pay his rent and buy the few simple necessities of life that he and Mame and the youngsters who were still under their roof required, he didn't grouch or grumble.

He had aches in his bones and creaks in his joints. He wore thick bifocal glasses now. His arches had given way under the years of pounding the pavements and standing at his work. His hair was sparse.

He snoozed in his old, form-worn chair now, right after supper, and the children laughed at his snoring.

And not only the children—for now there was a grandchild, a third John Boeffiger Smathers. Had he been a Vanderbilt, he would have been John Boeffiger Vanderbilt III. But he was a Smathers, so he was just Little Johnnie, as differentiated from Big Johnnie and Papa Johnnie.

So, having done everything, all his life, with regularity, anonymity and obscurity, John Boeffiger Smathers (I) died as he had lived.

He belonged to no lodges, so no paid announcement was inserted in any newspaper. His end was an item only in the city's statistics, set down from the data on the doctor's certificate of death.

There was a $150 funeral, a very decent and quiet one. Two cars followed the hearse. In the two cars were all the bereaved Smatherses.

The driver of the forward car, carrying the younger survivors, noticed that Pete, who was driving the shiny vehicle that led the procession, was weaving.

Pete had, indeed, disappeared into a nearby saloon, while the necessary motions were being carried out, preliminary to starting off.

Many passersby turned to look at the weird, strange sight, for the wheeled repository of John's mortal remains was obviously staggering.

Suddenly, from out of the gate of a Long Island estate, ran a beautiful collie dog. It ran in front of Pete. Pete tried, in his befuddled way, to throw on the emergency brake, but all he could clutch was the handle that opened the ventilator in the hood.

There was a maudlin yowling, a crunching, a bumping. And the dog lay torn and expiring.

John Boeffiger Smathers, who had been born, had grown up, had married, had been many times a father and twice a grandfather, had lived righteously and died piously, had never had his name in a newspaper.

But now he had it in all the newspapers—for the dog was Hielan' Prince, a champion, and worth $5,000!

● ● Novelties have made cafes rich and internationally famous—

● ● Toots Shor has just installed table 'phones in his 48th Street Tavern, ala the Hollywood Brown Derby, so one may call or be called without laying down the knife; one of the first talks there, at a table with this reporter, was a transocean between Irvin Marks of Paris in New York and Louis B. Mayer of Hollywood, in Paris.

● ● The Beverly Hills Brown Derby features pretty waitresses (prettier than many of the film beauts) in belled stiff skirts that show shapely gams; Henrici's in Chicago started during the craze for dancing in cafes, the slogan "No Orchestral Din," which went around the globe—and got the Musicians' Union plenty burnt up; Tortoni's in Denver became a by-word everywhere because of the invention there of the dessert called Biscuit Tortoni.

● ● In Chi, a small restaurant called the Thirteenth Chair, which had just 13 stools, advertised that it specialized in steaks and didn't have a steel knife in the place. In New Orleans, Ramos' was advertised in all lands by its individual gin-fizz, and the Louisianne by its Southern fried chicken; the Knickerbocker Hotel bar on Broadway (since deceased) was renowned for the Maxfield Parrish painting of Old King Cole.

● ● George McManus immortalized Dinty Moore's and its corned-beef-and; the Hollywood Brown Derby has the greatest set of caricatures in the world on its walls, outstripping New York's Sardi's; a little place on Second Avenue, Manhattan, Ganzi's, has all the great cartoonists' work on its walls and draws carriage-trade; Benny's, a block away, is plastered with photos of Benny Tosti, its proprietor, and with sports celebrities.

● ● The Coq d'Or in Geneva is expensive but has the most varied gastronomic repertoire anywhere; the Adlon in Berlin used to (and maybe still does) serve the only palatable (to Americans) coffee on the Continent—it is labeled "American coffee," though we don't grow any; the Black Eagle in Geneva is the most cosmopolitan gathering place in the universe; but one of the toniest restaurants in that capital of the world is in the railroad station.

● ● Fouquet's, on the Rue, is the gathering place of Americans and other foreigners like no other Paris spot, its al fresco tables always hard to get; Manny Wolf, who had the politicians' hangout on Forsyth Street, has moved Tammany uptown to Third Avenue and 49th; Reuben's, Lindy's, Dave's Blue Room and Benny Leonard's get the Broadway late and early play, with the Longchamps chain drawing the heaviest dinner trade in the Big Burg; Hotel Lexington has the only genuine Hawaiian cafe in the U. S.

● ● Keeler's in Albany is famous for shell-foods and Democrats; the wise ones never pass up Simpson's in London, on the Strand near the Savoy, which has the most celebrated roast beef and puddings on earth.

Popular Atlanta Girls Guests of Italian Royalty

By MARGARET WALKER.

Imagine the glorious thrill—the glamor—of living in a magnificent palace in Venice as the guest of Italian royalty! Picture yourself seated in the box with the King and Queen of Italy to witness the launching of the world's largest battleship! And imagine receiving an invitation to attend a house-party at which the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were guests!

Anne Kenan, charming golden-haired daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Kenan, of 239 Fifteenth street, doesn't have to imagine any of these things. They really happened to her. During her recent visit abroad these were but a few of the experiences she had, all of which read like some enchanted dream.

The beautiful young Atlantan visited Count and Countess Carlo di Robilant at their villa at Gorizia, Italy, and their palace in Venice. The Count is a close friend of the powerful dictator, Mussolini, and is a commander of the Italian Air Corps. He is half Austrian, and a member of one of the most aristocratic royal families in Europe. The Countess is the former Miss Caroline Kent, prominent American girl, of Washington, D. C., and her invitation to Anne was extended through her young sister, Barbara, a classmate of the Atlanta belle at National Cathedral School. Accompanying the girls on the trip was the older Kent sister, Ruth, who acted as their chaperon.

Boarding the S. S. Conte di Savoia in New York on July 3, the trio set sail for Europe, little realizing the wondrous adventures that lay before them. Their first stops were made at Naples and Pompeii, where the ship allowed passengers a day for sightseeing. Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, with whom they made friends on board ship, accompanied them on a tour of the ancient city of Pompeii, and Anne describes her as "most charming and entertaining." They also met John Roosevelt on the voyage over, and liked the President's youngest son immensely.

"As the ship neared Portugal," Anne related breathlessly, "the most startling spectacle met our eyes. One morning we were on deck when we heard a great roar, and out of the skies swooped a big black airplane—a bomber! We nearly died of fright—and yet it was thrilling, too—when the plane roared all around the ship, and soared down on a level with the deck. We could see the three men inside, clad in black, and the machine guns! Our ship raised the American flag, and finally the bomber flew away.

"We reached Gibraltar at night," Anne continued, "and were told that submarines surrounded us, although, of course, we couldn't see them. It was terribly exciting going through the Strait of Gibraltar, for the Savoia was escorted by Italian battleships, and oh—it was the most marvelous sight imaginable."

Landing at Genoa, Anne and her companions took a train to Trieste, large seaport on the Adriatic sea, where they were met by Count and Countess di Robilant. The party then motored to Gorizia, where the hosts maintain a handsome villa. Gorizia is the finest equipped and one of the largest airports in Europe, and is noted for its historical battlefields.

"Peasants gathered at the entrance stared at us wide-eyed as we drove into the grounds of the villa," Anne smiled, "for they seldom see Americans. And when we had tea in the gardens they congregated about the high iron railing surrounding the villa, and peeped in while we took movies."

Asked about her royal hosts, Anne replied that the Count is six feet, three inches tall, handsome, with blond hair and blue eyes, and has a cordial, fascinating manner.

"And he was so much fun," she said, "not at all like you'd expect him to be. He called me Georgette because I was from Georgia. Caroline, the Countess, is lovely, too, with big violet eyes and brown hair and terribly attractive. They have two darling children, a boy, Tinker, who's 7, and a little girl, Olghina, 3. Tinker can converse in Italian, English, French and German, and tiny Olghina speaks Italian and a little of the other three languages. We had lessons in these languages every morning from their governess."

Misses Ruth Kent, Anne Kenan and Barbara Kent were called "The Three Graces" by fellow-passengers on board ship returning from a glorious trip to Europe where they were guests of friends at Gorizia, Italy, and in Venice.

Il Duce always lunches with the Count and Countess when he is in Gorizia, and while the young Americans were there, he was due for a visit. However, official duties in Rome prevented his arrival, and naturally the girls were greatly disappointed at not meeting Italy's dictator, as had been planned. The Duke of Oaister is commander of the entire Italian Air Corps, and is little Tinker di Robilant's godfather. Later, when Anne and Ruth went to the Lido, Barbara visited the Duchess of Oaister at Brioni.

"How are the Italian men?" Anne was asked, to which she promptly replied, "Wonderful."

"At dances they kiss your hand after waltzing to Viennese melodies, and they are very gallant and attractive."

Anne also danced frequently to the rollicking strains of "Goody-Goody," as this American song is very popular in Italy.

After sojourning at the villa, the party left for Venice, and their hosts' palace there. Breath-taking in its magnificence, it is situated on the Grand Canal, where it has long stood—the home of the famous royal family, the Moncinegos, ancesters of Count Carlo. Posts standing at the steps are painted blue and white to indicate the Moncinego family.

"I expected to ride in a gondola," the youthful Atlantan related, "but instead, Carlo had a motorboat with a cabin to travel back and forth in. It was beautiful going down the canal. And as we drew up at the palace, I felt so strange, stepping out onto marble steps and walking into the entrance."

Confronted by such gorgeous splendor, one can well imagine Anne's impressions as she entered the hall of the palace. Standing before her was a perfectly enormous statue of Napoleon, which was taken from the Piazza San Marco, and is one of that famous group of statues erected in the Piazza. Massive, carved furniture adorned the rooms, and the palace is a veritable art gallery, with its priceless paintings done by old masters. A wide marble stairway winds majestically from the first floor, composed of halls, to the fourth floor. On the second level are salons and dining rooms and occupying the third are the bedrooms.

Anne, Barbara, and Ruth were simply entranced with their apartment on the top floor. Originally a ballroom, it was the scene of many a brilliant ball in the days of long ago. One pictured, said Anne, noblemen and their ladies bowing, courtsying and waltzing gracefully to the strains of music ensuing from the balcony above, where the orchestra played.

The girls spent the week end in Venice, but, of course, came back later for a long visit. Their next destination was Vienna, and they had an awe-inspiring trip by plane across the mighty Alps. On the plane they met a handsome young man who offered his assistance to them in Vienna, if needed, as they spoke no German. They later found their friend to be Count George del Bona, second secretary of the legation in Vienna, and a friend of Count Carlo.

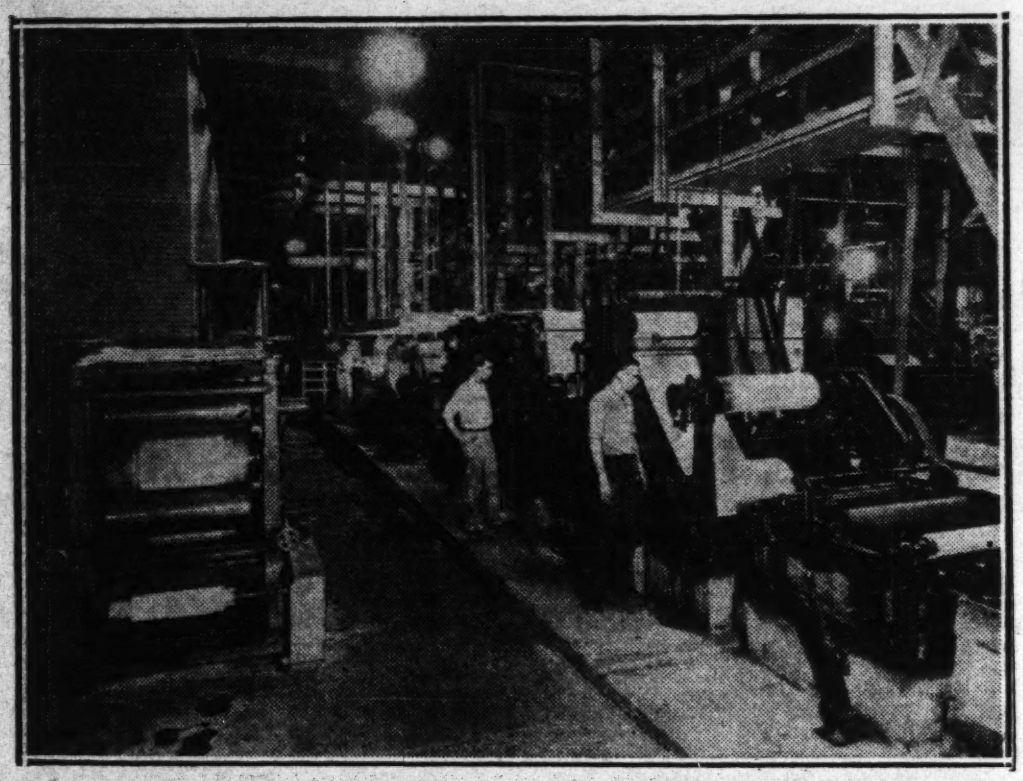

"The first bad luck of our trip occurred in Vienna—" Blue-eyed Anne then added that it was not so bad after all, for it gave them an opportunity to call upon Count del Bona. "Barbara was stricken with tonsilitis," she explained, "and Count George secured a doctor for her. But poor Barbara was sick during most of our stay in Vienna."

The pretty girls were invited to the Count's home, the modernistic beauty of which fairly dazzled them. It has a gorgeous swimming pool and a guest-house made almost entirely of glass. Here Anne and Ruth went swimming every day, and met Tony Cylem, an intimate friend of the Duke of Windsor. He calls the former King of England "Windy."

Anne told with sparkling eyes of the thrilling invitation to go house-partying with the most famous couple in the world. "Tony was invited to visit the Wien de Chrietzys, members of the Austrian royal family. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor spent a part of their Austrian honeymoon with

"Dream of the Pines . . . Comes True" . . .

Through the years, Dr. Charles Herty has plodded in his Savannah laboratory toward his goal of turning pine into paper and rayon. He is now happy in the fulfillment of his dream.

By EMILY WOODWARD.

In a squatty, unpretentious building of pine lumber and corrugated iron on the river's bank at Savannah, the fascinating, history-making experiment of turning southern pine trees into paper and rayon has been in progress for a good many years.

The drab, gray-coated exterior of the building had no word or sign to indicate what was going on within—no heralded attempt to focus the attention of the world upon the miracle which science was performing inside.

Yet, the eyes of the world are turning to this simple structure that hovers the nidus of science like a great gray marsh-hen nesting on the river's bank.

Out of the process of incubation which has gone on beneath the dull gray wings, facts, world-wide in economic influence, have emerged. The zeal of human purpose, moving quietly and steadily has become a powerful force whose energy is reaching out over land and see, electrifying the minds of men everywhere.

From England, France, Germany, Sweden, Finland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Mexico, South Africa and other countries, have come manifestations of the strong current of interest set in motion by this quiet force, which this month has drawn a vast world-wide gathering to Savannah.

In a small, partitioned corner of this insignificant building in Savannah, before a plain pine desk, sits the lithe straight figure of the man whose genius has directed this incubation of scientific ideas which are making the world sit up and take notice. Dr. Charles Herty with the snow of more than 65 winters on his head, but with eternal spring in his heart and mind, has kept plodding along through the years toward the fulfillment of his Dream of the Pines.

Like every genuine apostle of science searching for truth alone, Dr. Herty has been faced along the way with many discouragements—barriers of the self-interest of others and circumscribed human vision which inevitably obtrude themselves in the way of evangels of light and progress. But in his boyhood days, the gray-haired scientist played baseball and he learned then that victories can often be won when defeat appears most certain.

Many times in this experiment when Dr. Herty has felt confident that he was on his way to another base, opposing forces have obstructed him. Fortunately, however, for the man who as a boy knew the thrill of hitting a home run when the game seemed lost, kind mascots have managed to step in at the right time and provide the support needed to keep the game going, leaving the indomitable man at the bat free to work out the scientific strokes which are now bringing victory for him and the south.

There seems to be some significance in the fact that since the experiment began, the broad street leading to the gray building by the river in Savannah, has had its almost intolerable roughness removed by a kindly stream of smooth concrete. However, at the end of the street, immediately before the entrance of the building, nothing has been done to smooth the jolting old concrete blocks that found their way there from the loins of America's first ships where they served as ballast.

As a result of the hatching of the scientific eggs under the iron gray hen nesting on the river bank at Savannah, pine trees, standing yesterday in Georgia forests, are today, after passing through the magic brooder, lying in neat rolls of high-grade newsprint, book and wrapping paper. More amazing still are yesterday's pines changed through a process of scientific spinning into long, fine strands of glossy rayon, ready to be converted to cloth and other materials important in the world of trade.

Georgia and the south are promised a permanent source of revenue from the brood of scientific truths which have from time to time poked their heads from under the ruffled wings of the iron hen sitting so quietly while the dynamic chicks have been breaking their shells.

However, at the end of this way to greater economic freedom in the south which science has so effectively blazed, the cobblestones have not been removed. Even though perfectly hatched, scientific chicks like their bird counterparts, cannot be left to scratch for themselves. They must be given support and protected from predatory forces. Southern capital and southern loyalty are needed for this support and protection.

There is a challenge here to intelligent men and women of the south to help clear the way of these last cobblestones—to support and protect this valuable scientific brood so that the feathers may be garnered for southern rather than distant nests.

them at their castle at Cryntha, and were there at the time. Tony invited us to go with him, but Barbara was still very sick, and we could not leave her. Of course it was a bitter disappointment, but we were thrilled to death, anyway, just to receive the invitation."

When Barbara recovered, they went to Semmering, a resort nestled among collosal snow-capped mountains. Skiing is the favorite sport here in winter, but the girls found it delightful to go swimming in a beautiful heated pool, with snow all about them.

Ruth was "just determined" to see the Danube river, although she had heard it was not all that Strauss' waltz inferred it to be. And alas, reports were right. From Vienna to Budapest Anne describes it as grayish-green with a swift current, and the scenery along its banks as ugly. "However," she added, "we were told that it really is beautiful and blue at other places with gorgeous scenery." So let us not be entirely disillusioned.

"Our boat was flat-bottomed," she continued. "and we careened from one side of the Danube to the other, stopping continually to take on passengers. When too many people gathered on one side of the boat, some of us would rush to the other side to keep it from capsizing."

At 9 o'clock at night Budapest came into view, Buda reflecting its brilliance over the water from one side, and Pest from the other—a beautiful sight, said Anne.

"What a predicament in Buda," she laughed. "The hotel manager hadn't received our telegram reserving rooms, and the hotel was filled. So we sat out in the middle of the street on our baggage with other tourists, wondering what to do. Photographers snapped our pictures. We certainly must have looked comical."

Finally, the party found a wretched little hotel in which to stay.

Prague, the beautiful capital of Czechoslovakia was the next stop in their travels. Here they saw the great St. Stephen's Cathedral and the many architectural gems for which the city is noted.

In Paris, the Kent sisters and Anne were beautifully entertained by the latter's uncle, Colonel Owen Kenan, who lives at the Ritz. After nine days in the French capital viewing the Exposition, the art galleries and all the gay bars and night spots, they returned to Venice.

In Italy, Anne encountered some of the most marvelous experiences a girl could ever imagine—even in rosiest dreams. She took frequent jaunts to the Lido, which is just outside Venice, and was delighted to see celebrities—gorgeously gowned and scintilattingly bejeweled—parading about the famed resort.

"I met Countess Haugwitz Reventhlow, the former Barbara Hutton, who is a good friend of Caroline's. She was wearing red satin beach pajamas, and looked stunning." The American heiress and Countess di Robilant often go on yachting parties together.

Handsome young Prince Maximilian, of Austria, whom they also met, told Count Carlo he was charmed by the young American girls. The Prince is descended from Archduke Maximilian, once ruler of Mexico.

Later they returned to Gorizia, from where they continued to visit the Lido. One day the Count announced he was taking them to see his ancestral home, Castello Gorizia, a great castle where he lived as a boy. No one lives there now, but it is guarded by soldiers day and night.

"It was like the wonderful castles you read about in medevial history," the enthused Anne related," and we were simply awed by its ancient splendor. Carlo showed us how he and his brothers played "bear" with the big bear rugs on the floors when they were little. He then took us to the chapel where the family worshipped. Each royal family had its own chapel on the grounds, and this one was perfectly lovely. Underneath the chapel are buried Count Carlo's ancestors, and we took candles and went down by way of stone steps." Anne shuddered—"Ohh—it was spooky down there—we saw coffins covered with cobwebs, and the cave seemed haunted by the spirits of those long-dead noblemen."

The King and Queen of Italy invited Count and Countess di Robilant and their guests to occupy the royal box with them when the world's largest battleship, belonging to Italy, was launched in Trieste.

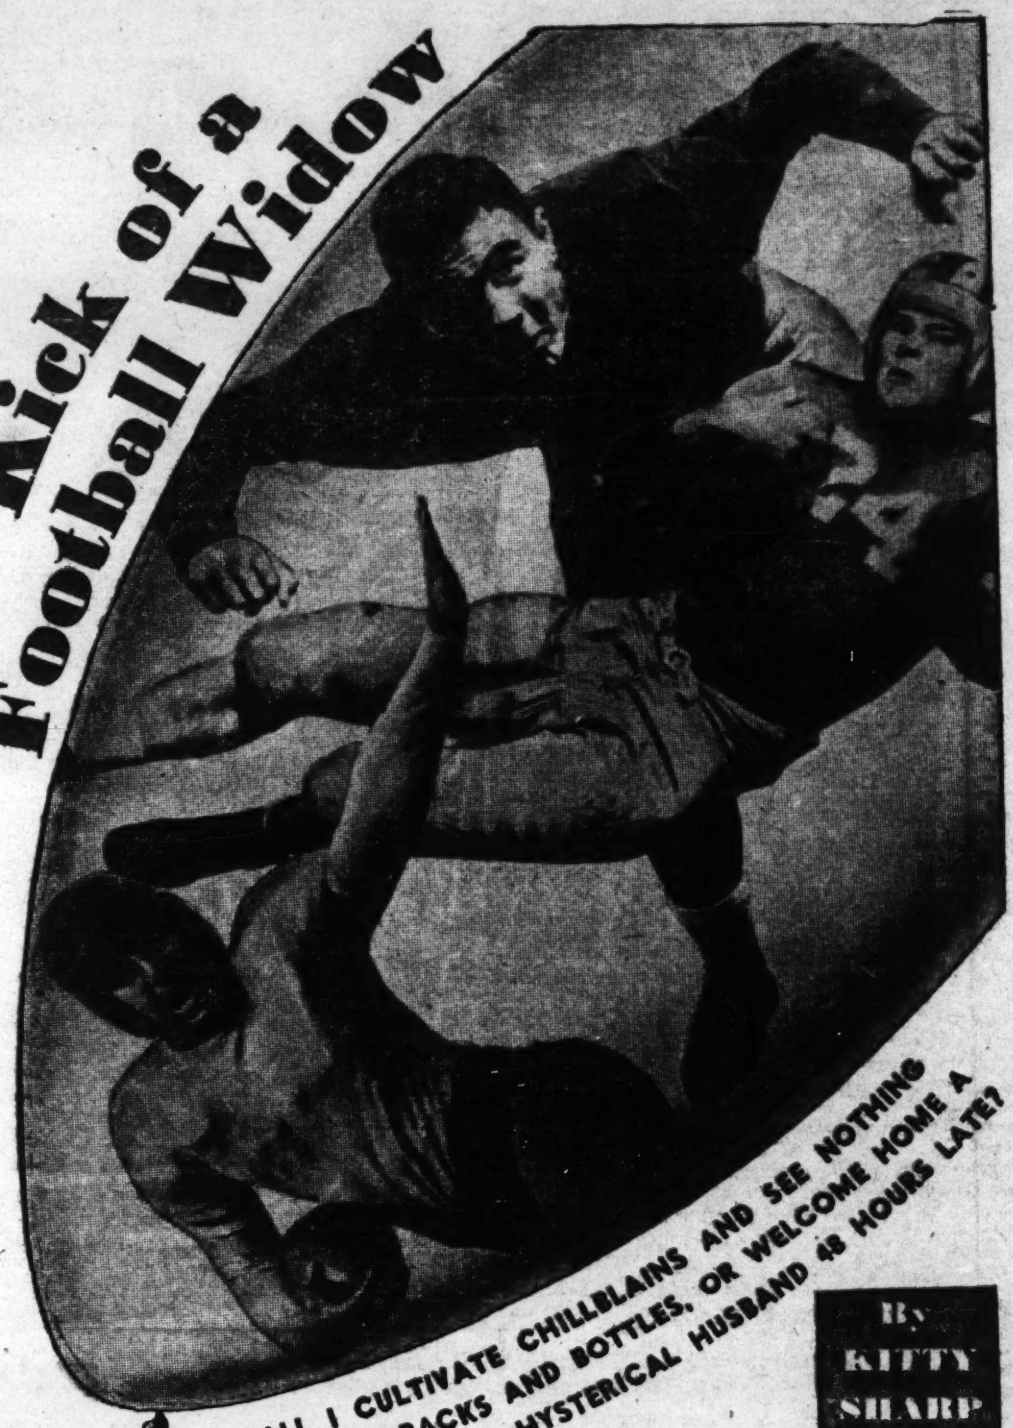

Let Anne take up the story: "After little sleep, no breakfast because of the early hour, and a long motor trip, I felt awfully weak, and guess what happened when I entered the box to meet the King and Queen? I fainted! When I came to, soldiers were all around me, screaming 'aqua, aqua'."

The King, Anne describes as being barely five feet tall, while the Queen towers above him. However, the King, who is such in name only, has a strong face, and the Queen is very stately. She affectionately kissed the mother of one of the builders of the battleship, who chistened the great craft.

Another of the glories of the trio's Italian visit was the lavish dinner party they attended at Trieste, given by Count and Countess Banfield, of the Austrian nobility. Their vast estate boasts terraced

Kick of a Football Widow

SHALL I CULTIVATE CHILLBLAINS AND SEE NOTHING BUT BACKS AND BOTTLES, OR WELCOME HOME A HYSTERICAL HUSBAND 48 HOURS LATE?

By KITTY SHARP

IF YOU'RE wondering about that funny noise you hear at this moment, I might as well admit that my teeth are still chattering. I'm chilled to the bone, and while my woollies itch and irk me I can't say that they do much towards the impossible job of making me warm after I've been parked for hours on a seat of frozen concrete with the chill October breezes blowing. The only consolation I have right now is that the calendar informs me that we have one month down with just a few weeks to go on this year's football season. Maybe then I'll know what it's like to be warm again.

Why, I wonder, must all the nice men I know change their colors with the coming of Fall and insist upon submitting their women-folk to the rigors of watching football games? From Thanksgiving on through the Winter, Spring and Summer, most of them will be fairly considerate of a gal's comfort; but just let the old alma mater swing open her doors for the semester and every rah-rah boy who has grown fat and forty, and who has learned and forgotten lots of things since he left the campus, will feel a strong resurgence of the old varsity spirit and expected you to spend your Saturday afternoons with him following the teams. Unless you're a stronger woman than I've been up to this point there's nothing much for you to do but shiver and take it until the football season's over.

Of course, it may be all very well for young and romantic children to find a thrill in all this rah-rah business presumably inspired by two groups of huskies savagely fighting their respective ways towards the opposite goal posts; and I can remember back in the days when the newspapers and Scott Fitzgerald used to call us "flaming youth" that we used to get quite excited about the Big Game. But whether that was youth (flaming or frozen) or the hysteria caused by the single stiff shot of white mule, or high-proof gin that had been brewed in a dormitory bathtub ("just to keep you warm"), I'm not at all sure. I only know that today even romance and the finest spirits bottled in bond are insufficient to raise my enthusiasm for football in the face of the weather and a stadium full of grown-up freshmen, most of whom ought to be home with the wife and kiddies.

The boys know all about the weather conditions under which football must be played, too; but they get themselves so thoroughly "fortified" beforehand that they are incapable of sensing the arctic breezes that blow across the field, just as they are unable to follow the fine points of the play. But that doesn't seem to hamper their appreciation of the game much. They seem to be trained to follow the maneuvers on the gridiron with a sort of animal response to the crowd hysteria, so they have a swell time. In the meantime you, not having got "in tune" with the spirits, have to sit on your cold perch suffering your boredom and nursing your chilblains simultaneously.

Even if, in desperation, you try to reawaken your old interest in the game it doesn't do much good. Because every time a crucial play is made (and frequently for much less reason) the whole stadium in front of you is not only on its feet but standing on the seats so you can't make out what's going on even if you are interested. That's the reason why I got at least one big laugh out of the football news this year when I read that the new regulations require players to wear their numbers on the front as well as the back of their jerseys to aid spectators in identifying them. Haw! If the boys want to plaster the numbers fore and aft on their civvies when they come off the gridiron, of course, we'll be pleased to meet 'em. But imagine a little thing like a number making much difference when there is a mob of high-jumping, bottle-waving fans between you and the field!

I am informed by some women that the hardships they are called upon to endure in the name of football make my chilled bones, chapped cheeks and frozen nose seem like something less than a slight cold. They are the Football Wives whose husbands (ardent football fans that they are) disappear completely over week-ends during the season. These boys, however, belong to the modern age of football fans, and at least their wives do not have to lie awake over Saturday night worrying about them catching cold. They cheer Dear Old Rutgers on to victory in the "football bars" of clubs and hotels which are equipped with steam heat, radios, direct wires and movable scoreboards. And of course the cup that cheers flows evenly through victory and defeat.

If the team wins, then they're on the town to celebrate. And if it loses they go out on the town just the same in order to wash away the bitter taste of defeat. When they arrive home on a late train on Sunday afternoon they simply explain that it was football. And the wife of every Football Husband understands. It was football, even if the old boy did remain mercifully untouched by the Wintry breezes of a cold stadium.

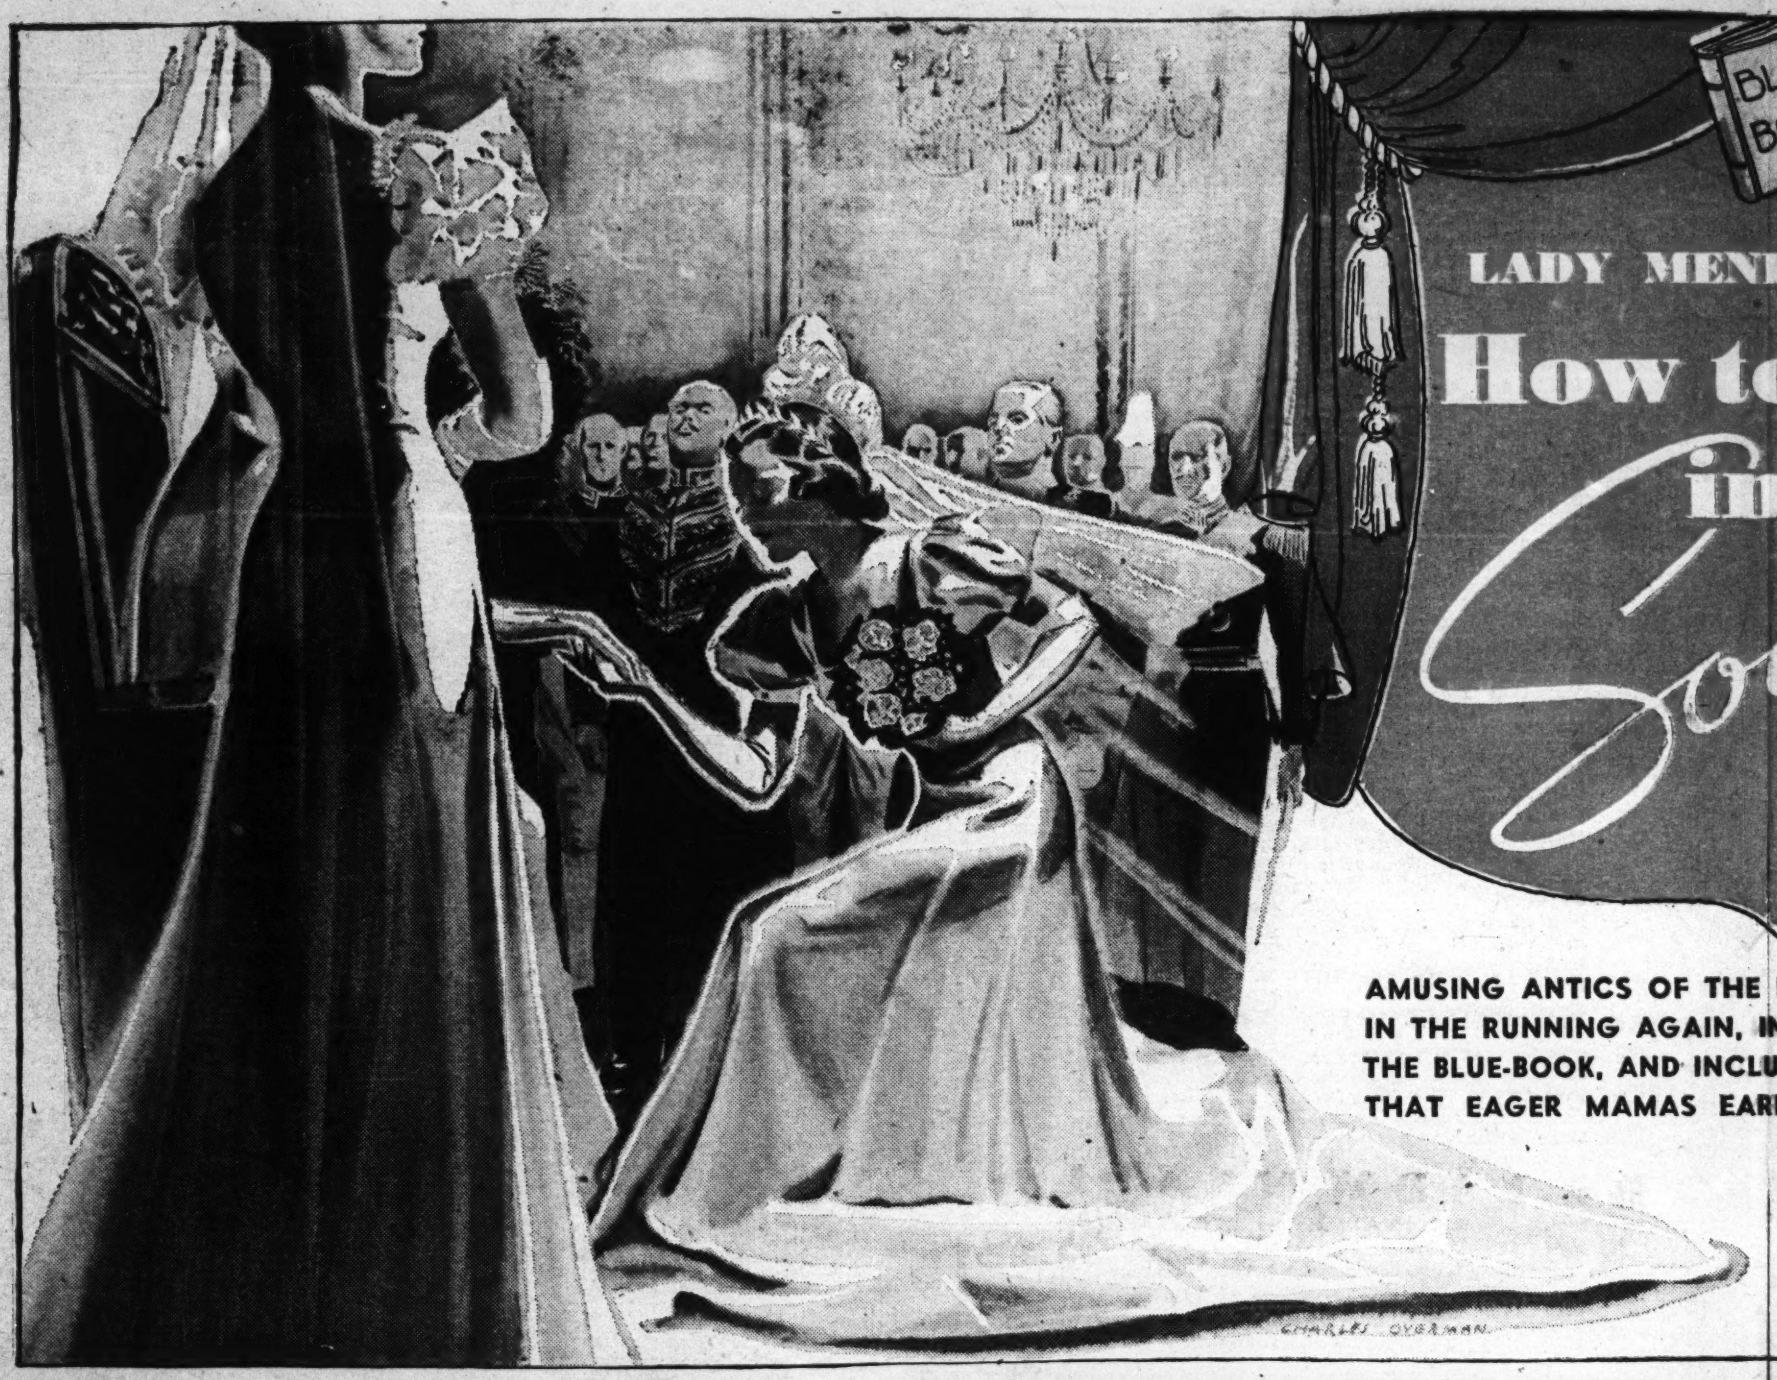

But I think the boys have got something there. Just the germ of an idea, perhaps, or its mechanical outlines. Doesn't steam heat, radio, movable scoreboards suggest something to you? Football in the home! (Just the spectator part of it, I mean.) Now there is something I might go for. A comfortable chair, a crackling fire, highballs and sandwiches, and Ted Husing, Graham McNamee or Eddie Dooley reporting the game. Bring on your football fans! I don't care how much college spirit the boys work up then, so long as they don't break up the furniture or trample the children underfoot.

I offer the idea as a solution not only of the girls like myself for whom football and frozen feet are a seasonal affliction, but to the Football Wives who can have their husbands back for October and November week-ends if they want them.

I'll gladly root for any team the boys are backing, so long as the room is comfortable, the food and drinks good, and the company congenial. I'll even agree to talk football, with any one who must talk football, on off evenings during the week and promise not to inject a single sour note into the conversation.

But football from a concrete seat, with the north wind blowing, and probably a young blizzard obscuring not only the field but my vision of the wild men in the row ahead of me?

Take it away, Ted Husing!

If they were young and beautiful they might catch the eye of the then Prince, and thereby win presentation at court.

FOR fifty years now I have been watching the species known as social climbers. They are always amusing and often amazing.

In using the word "climber" I do not refer to those men and women who, through their gifts and achievement or the advantages of education and culture which wealth affords, come gradually into distinction without any conscious effort on their part. In a changing world this is merely a process of adjustment through natural selection. Rather do I mean those ambitious women—in a great part, American—who spring up as the flowers in May whenever society foregathers in a determined effort, whatever the cost, to crash their way into the inner circle.

My introduction to them was in London during the season when I was presented at the Court of Queen Victoria. I was very young then and knew nothing of the great world, and was often wide-eyed at the stories I heard about them. They were divided, I would say, into two groups—those with established positions at home who were now seeking international horizons, and those not so secure at home, who felt that if they were to succeed in England they would automatically be sought after in America. Some of them were ambitious in their own right. Others had daughters to launch.

Their opening wedge was presentation at Court. For while of itself this did not give one the entree into the higher circles of society, it did mean that one was admissible to the royal enclosure at Ascot and was invited to the royal garden parties. Society then, both at home and abroad, drew a much finer line than it does today. Money was necessary, of course, as a means to an end, for the cost of the campaign was excessive. It meant either taking a house for the season or putting up at a smart hotel. It meant an extensive, and I might add expensive, wardrobe, a box at the opera, and constant entertainment. But money in itself was not an Open Sesame. Family background and tradition were the real essentials if the aspirants were to be admitted.

If they were not successful in their efforts to be presented at Court—and it was not easy to be presented then—then letters of introduction to the nobility might open the way. Failing these, there was one remaining hope—if they were young and beautiful, they might attract the Prince of Wales (later King Edward VII), who had an eye for lovely women. When odds were against them in London, some of these women transferred the scene of their activities to the watering-places where the Prince of Wales passed his holidays. One of these was an exquisite creature with a charming little girl. Her husband had made his money overnight—oil or gold, I forget which. She had tried without avail to "get in" at home. Her sally on London met with the same results. So she hied herself to Homburg, where His Royal Highness was doing the cure.

It was his habit to stroll in the garden at a certain hour every day. And every day at that hour the lady installed herself on a bench in his path. A Gainsborough type, she dressed the part in a soft, trailing gown and a large picture hat, and always a bright parasol to bring the delicacy of her rose-petal skin into relief. For some reason or other the Prince did not see her. She had noticed he was fond of children. One day as he came into the garden he was with a man whom she had met. Calling her little girl, she instructed her to roll her hoop on the walk, and to trip and fall as the Prince came by. The child did as she was told. The Prince picked her up, remarking to his friend: "What a beautiful child! Whose little girl is she?" He was told that she belonged to the lovely lady on the bench. The Prince asked to have her presented to him. After that she was often seen in his company and later on was entertained by him in London. She took care that the news of her conquest reached the society editors at home. Upon her return she had no difficulty in being taken up by the most exclusive hostesses.

And there was Mrs. X. of New York. I knew "Kate X.," as she was called when I first went to France. Certainly her introduction came about through persistent propinquity. At Biarritz, one season when the Prince of Wales was there, she instructed her chauffeur to keep her informed of royal activities. When the Prince went for a drive in his car she invariably followed him in hers. One afternoon, when she was trailing him, his car broke down. Stopping her car, she asked the Prince if she could be of any assistance. As it was going to take some time for repairs, she offered to take him back to Biarritz. Through this—although she was neither young nor beautiful—she became a great friend of the Prince's, and later, when he was King, he commanded her to the royal garden parties. Subsequently she attained her goal, making a very good place for herself, in international society. Very amusing, she became famous for her malapropian reand in the habit of giving nicknames to those who contributed to their gaiety. When they returned to London, one of them said to the King, "I have been hearing a good deal about you this week-end, sir."

"So?" he laughed. "And who may it be? Tell me the lady's name."

When he heard the name he said, "What then shall we call her, this lady who knows me so well?"

"The kingfisher, sir," was the quick retort. Ever since that the lady, who is now very well known in London society, is always spoken of as "the kingfisher."

Another climber, after a consistent campaign endowing hospitals, art galleries, and philharmonic orchestras, all of which seemed to get her nowhere, went abroad, returning with a whole flock of newly acquired ancestors in the way of portraits by the old Dutch masters, purchased, so it was rumored, from Sotheby's in London. The city where she lived was famous for its provincialism, and, like all provincial cities, it was a hotbed of snobbery. The ancestors succeeded where her altruistic endeavor had failed.

The perseverance of the climbers is often incredible. And their patience and long-suffering. They may be repulsed year after year, and yet they return, at the beginning of every season, their eyes blinded and their ears closed to the cruel slights to which they are subjected, until by the force of their persistency, and perhaps because society is weary of opposing them, the barriers are let down and the persistent ones are allowed to march in.

To gain their end they will even subject their daughters to indignities. There was Mrs. Y, who managed, through her donations to charity, to have her daughter put on the list of a cotillion club. It was in the days of chaperons and she accompanied her daughter to the party. It had scarcely begun when the girl disappeared. The mother found her in the dressing-room, crying her heart out behind a screen.

"Why, what is the matter with you?" the mother was overheard saying.

"Mother, I want to go home," sobbed the girl. "They don't want me here. I'm an outsider."

"There, there, dear!" soothed the mother. "You must be patient. Remember it is something just to have been invited."

One of the most successful climbers I know of was the wife of a political boss in a large Eastern city. The methods by which he had acquired his money and his power were none too savory. The wife in her earlier years had committed the indiscretion, in Mayflower vernacular, of "being talked about." She was ambitious not so much for herself as for her daughters, who were charming girls in their early teens. She planned her campaign years ahead, so that by the time they were grown the way would be open for them. She knew that her chances of winning her goal at home were slight. And at the best it would be a long, hard game. So she took her daughters abroad to school, placing them in a convent, the pupils of which were drawn from the old French aristocracy.

She remained in Paris for several years, where she leased a lovely home on one of the fashionable avenues. She gave generously to the "right" charities, and had a box at the Opera, went to the "right" church. Choosing her friends very carefully, she gradually got a toe-hold in Parisian society. During the children's vacation she took them to the fashionable watering-places, where they were allowed to associate only with the young people whose parents' position was unquestionable. If her old friends came to Paris she managed to be out of town, or she entertained them quietly when there were no other guests. It happened—and it was a magic stroke for her—that the daughter of one of them, whose husband had made an enormous fortune, married into one of the oldest families in England. When her daughters finished school they were taken to London, where they were presented at Court. Because of their beauty and accomplishments they were invited to the best houses. She saw to it that this was given notice, not only in the papers in her own city, but in the marks. I always thought she spoke perfect French and made mistakes intentionally to make people laugh, for they certainly enlivened many a dull dinner. A story that went the rounds was that once, when engaging a butler and wishing to explain to him that his laundry would be taken care of, she said, "Je vous donnerai cinq cents francs par mois et la blanchisseuse."

"Merci, madame," he replied. "C'est inespere, mais je suis deja marie."

Another time, wishing to rent her apartment, she said to her prospective tenant, "Oui, l'appartement est charmant. J'ai toujours le soleil sur mon derriere."

One night at dinner she gave as her definition of a Filipino as "Deux amants sous le meme couverture."

I think another of the reasons why she was so widely taken up was the fact that she had the best chef in Paris. Her epitaph was well spoken by one of her most intimate friends who had constantly wined and dined at her house over a period of many years. When he heard of her death he said, "Encore un restaurant qui se ferme."

Later when Edward was King there was an enormously wealthy New York hostess who had an unassailable position at home, but was an ardent climber on the other side of the water.

An oft-told story—and I have it on authority—grew out of her and her husband having been invited to dine with the King on his yacht at Cowes. Shortly afterwards she was asked to a house party by one of the reigning hostesses of England, when, not knowing that one does not mention one's friendship with royalty, she sprinkled her conversation with references to "my friend, the King." It so happened that among the guests were several belonging to the King's intimate little coterie, noted for its trenchant wit gardens of incomparable loveliness, which slope down to the bay. Dinner was served in these gardens. Myriad lights embellazoned terrace after terrace of floral beauty, and below, boats moved upon the bay, casting shimmering lights over the dark waters.

Surely the world's most unusual night club is the Dux Castello. Built centuries ago, it was an immense fort, and now, at the top surrounded by guns, a jazz orchestra plays for dancing couples. An evening spent here was particularly fascinating to the Kents and Anne. Below the fort, where prisoners once suffered in dreary dungeons, they chatted gayly over cocktails at a modernistic bar. A court outside the fort is now used for presentation of plays and musicales.

The mystery which shrouds activities in parts of Europe today prevents Anne from relating all of the phases of her visit in Italy, but she was completely captivated by the country and its people, and wants to go back. And she may.

Countess di Robilant has invited the beautiful belle, who has a delightful personality and much poise for one so young, to come back and visit her in Cortina, Switzerland, during January, February and March. Skiing is enjoyed here by internationally known socialites, and if Anne's parents consent to her going she will partake of a brilliant social life as guest of the Count and Countess. The visit will have its educational advantages, too, for if Anne goes she will have a private tutor, and in addition to regular subjects, will study French, German and Italian.

Leaving Italy the middle of September, the girls continued their fascinating travels. Their ship, the Vulcania, docked at Greece, Sicily, and Africa before crossing to America. They were much intrigued by the Arabian quarter in Algiers, and went up into the top of an old fort at Gibraltar, the southernmost point in Europe. Anne laughingly said she frightened two of General Franco's soldiers in Spain when she insisted on crossing the border at Gibraltar "just to say she'd been in Spain." Here battleships passed all night, throwing spotlights upon the Vulcania. Otherwise, they saw no war activities.

They toured the Azores, and found the volcanic islands gorgeous. They then headed for home, and on board ship were called the "three graces." The captain entertained at a dinner in their honor one evening, having printed upon the menus that his dinner was in honor of "Misses Ruth and Barbara Kent, and Miss Anne Kenan."

The all-so-glorious trip is over, but Anne will live it again and again in memory, many and many a time.

Lady Mendl's Expose of Social Climbers

New York society columns. Before going home she spent a month in New York, where the new friends she had made abroad entertained for her daughters. When she finally reached home her publicity had gone before her. Without any further effort on her part, the entire family was at once taken up. Her daughters made brilliant matches. She became one of the formidable dowagers of the city. Like others of her kind whom I know, she quickly pulled the ladder on which she had risen up after her, and now sits securely on the throne in her social heaven, happy in her belief that she has always been there.

Today society has stepped down so that the ambitious have not so far to climb up. In Europe so many of the old families who had so long held themselves sacrosanct from intrusion are now impoverished. In America the depression served to let down the bars, so that it is comparatively easy for the socially ambitious to scale the ladder. Many of the socially elect are not averse to accepting gratuities for introducing the eager postulant into the fold. Then so many great leaders have their pet philanthropies—old men's homes, children's hospitals, missionary societies. There are museums to be maintained, philharmonic orchestras to be subsidized. And the mighty are not only willing, but anxious, to welcome those whose money will keep these things going.

The way I feel about the society racket today is that it should be called "The Charity Path to Society." Indeed, the charity game is in itself a racket. Some phases of it are little more than a hold-up. Women of position do not hesitate to call up those in the act of arriving in order to solicit donations from them. "Oh, Mrs. Blank," they will say, "I am putting you down for a thousand dollars for the Children's hospital. It is what I am giving." They are probably giving no such amount, but they know that the women they call upon, though not at all interested in ailing children, will meet the demand rather than put themselves in the bad graces of hostesses who can give them a boost.

Yes, in international circles at least, charity, I would say, is the most facile tool of the climber. The next best is a flair for giving unusual and amusing parties. The hostess with a good cook and a good cellar and a fair acquaintance, who spends her money freely, can always gather the smart young people around her. Where they go the elders will go.

In New York, during depression days, the gates were thrown wide open. Especially was this so for the anxious mother with daughters to bring out. If she sends them to a good school—and the exclusive finishing schools have let down their bars—and the daughters have personality, they are sure to make the right kind of friends. And there are bureaus conducted by women of family and tradition which, for a consideration, take over all the details of launching a girl in society. All that one needs to get on the list is money—plenty of it—and a certain quota of respectability. The modus operandi is simple. The mother lists her daughter's name with the bureau. The bureau investigates. Then if the girl is eligible—that is, if she has been properly educated, has gone to the proper schools, the father has financial standing, and there has been no overt scandal in the family—the girl is accepted. A date is set for the debut. And as a preparation for it her name is added to the invitation list of the smart dancing clubs and of all the coming-out parties. Some of the older and haughtier hostesses have not taken too kindly to this. I heard one of them say that she never knew half of the guests who came to the parties she gave for her young sons and daughters. For this reason not a few have tried introducing their daughters at their country estates during the summer. Their attempt has proven futile. The young people today, even in the most exclusive families, have thrown off their old ties and traditions. They like to be amused. And if they can't have the companions they like in their own houses, they go where they can do so. So in self-defense their parents have had to accept their friends, many of whom cause the cold chills to run up and down their aristocratic spines. And so into the sacred purlieus enters such anomalies as Prince Michael Romanoff (?), in other words plain Harry Gerguson.

And I must not forget animals—and sports. Many young people are taken up today because of their prowess in tennis or golf. The world loves success. Even pugilists are not denied their little place in the social sun.

The wider dispensations of today are, I think, a welcome change. It was often quite deadly, under the old era of exclusiveness, meeting the same people day after day and year after year. One always knew what they were going to say and to do. And what they had to say and to do was often devastatingly boring. Now the new blood in society's veins makes it much gayer, much more vivid, and certainly more exciting. I like the variety which gives a tang to life.

Parents have had to accept their daughters' friends, many of whom cause chills to run up and down their aristocratic spines. And so enter into Society's purlieus such anomalies as "Prince" Romanoff.

If they can't have the companions they like in their own homes, they go where they can have them. This brings on complications.

HOW SUDDEN MILLIONS PROVED TO THE HUMBLE THAT THE RICH ALSO SUFFER

When Servants Take All

By CHARLES NEVILLE

ILLUSTRATION BY FRANK DOBIAS

FROM SERVANTS TO MASTERS, THEY DEFIED LAWYERS AND RELATIVES

"It's the rich what has the pleasure,
It's the poor what tkyes the blyme,
It's the syme the 'ole world over—
Now, ain't it a bleedin' shyme?"

MANY a time, William Lowe, the precise and impeccable English butler, and Olivia Olsen, lady's maid to Mrs. Frederic de Puyster-Foster, of Tuxedo Park and Park Avenue, heard that Cockney ballad chanted. They may have sounded the weeping chorus themselves in their long period of service, for Lowe acted as major-domo of the de Puyster-Foster family for seventeen years and Olsen was maid to the mistress of the manor for twenty-nine years. Envied the pair were, to be sure, by the lesser servitors who little understood the heartaches and the headaches that accompany the responsibility for the code of conventions in an old, aristocratic family. William and Olivia could have told you that, like Gilbert and Sullivan's policeman, their lot was not a happy one!

If only they were mistress and master of the de Puyster estate, if only they could direct affairs as they knew they should be directed, if——

And suddenly, the "if" was eliminated, their dream came true and they found themselves monarchs of all they surveyed. The transformation occurred like magic. A few swift scratches of a pen and it was done. Several other faithful retainers of the wealthy profited similarly in the past few years—with disillusioning denouements.

Mrs. Foster died last Summer and when her last will was offered for probate, the servants and several outraged relatives found that the aged widow had bequeathed her entire estate, $1,200,000 in cold currency and gilt-edged securities, plus the Westchester and other real estate and personal possessions which may bring the total to $3,000,000 or even more. The servants were millionaires—and almost at once they realized that the rich inherit troubles too.

They moved from the servants' quarters to the $500,000 mansion on the manor only to find they lacked money to buy food. They were forced to give their former fellow servants short notice. Of course they could not pay a man to mow the spacious, velvety lawns or prune the many trees.

With millions about to pour on them, they were penniless because the will had not been probated nor the estate legally administered. Relatives rose to contest the testament. Another will—earlier by months—was offered as the legal document governing the estate. This first will left $25,000 each to butler and maid, lesser bequests to friends and remote relatives, and the huge residuary estate to a nephew, Frederic Foster de Rham, whose wife is chairman of the ultra-fashionable Autumn Ball this year. But this will carried a codicil, adding $10,000 to William and Olivia's legacies, so paving the way for the later will which left them all the widow possessed.

S. Sloan Colt, president of the powerful Bankers Trust Co., John Luft, president of the Tuxedo National Bank, were substantial beneficiaries under the first will. But the second will, excluding them all, was written personally by the aged widow and witnessed by the local pharmacist, a telephone workman and a doctor. Shrewd and sound witnesses they seemed and those who read the testament saw in it a final, sardonic expression of contempt and derision by the widow toward the society which she had so long adorned. A jest from the grave.

With the contest raging in the courts, William and Olivia held possession of the Tuxedo estate and none could touch the cash or securities. They hold it still, for isn't it written that "an Englishman's home is his castle?" Although nine lawyers representing first will heirs and remote relatives, even to British claimants, fought the servants' attorneys in court, the pair held firm to the land. "Possession," asserted William shrewdly, "is nine points of American law, they sye." And so in the midst of plenty they are penniless virtually, but dogged does it and they are standing the siege in grim silence although victory may be years away and death may deprive them of all, for William and Olivia are well past middle age.

Luckier far they are, at any rate, up to now, than the servants of Mrs. Florence Pratt, heiress of Singer sewing machine millions, who bequeathed $1,000,000 to her chauffeur, Leonard C. Kay, and another million to her bodyguard, a retired policeman, then cut them both off in later wills.

But favorable to the Tuxedo servants' cause is the recent will of Lord Ormathwaite, of England, former Master of Ceremonies to the Royal Household, who, at 77, bequeathed all he possessed, more than $600,000 in realty and currency, to the wife and sons of his valet, Frederick Spary, who had served him long and faithfully. Like Mrs. Foster, His Lordship was childless and the Spary family all were in his service. Here, surely, was a man who was a hero to his valet, despite the proverb!

Rosa Christoph, the pretty Bavarian maid in the Montclair, N. J., home of Edwin M. Rine, former vice-president of the Lackawanna railroad, was bequeathed $100,000 in a trust fund by her employer three years ago. She was also bequeathed the income of $150,000 by the magnate if she survived his wife. Maid and mistress settled their dispute out of court but Rosa went back to Bavaria wealthier than ever she dreamed.

But closest parallel to the fortunate Foster servants were the retainers of Mrs. Jessie A. Goddard, of Newtown, Mass. The estate on which they had served the aged widow was bequeathed to William Wilson, chauffeur; and his wife, Annie; Margaret Macauley, cook, and Jane Douglas, maid. The widow's final testament appointed the chauffeur head of the manor but stipulated all should reside there and all share in any income from sales or rentals.

John W. Clark, wealthy Brooklyn contractor, left $128,000 to his housekeeper, Tessie Levy. The octogenarian contractor's fellow townsman, Justice Harry Howard Dale, left the bulk of his estate to Marion Kumm, a nurse. Before the employees of either employer could benefit under the wills, law suits were launched and lawyers swarmed to the scene. Alas, too often, where there's a will, there's a war!

One servant, the humblest of all, did benefit to the utmost desire by the will of a generous mistress. The servant was "Pet," a tiny white Spitz dog, to whom Margaret McDermott of Chicago bequeathed $25,000 in a trust fund last year.

Being the Second Book.

When "The East Wind" came from the pen (or typewriter) of this gifted author, he announced that it was first book of The Four Winds of Love. Highly praised, readers have been waiting for his second volume which picks up, after a lapse of 12 years, from the first of this tetralogy. Whereas the characters in the first book were left in the first year of the twentieth century, this new work plunges them into a life which in a year or two will be completely changed by the great war.

Action and adventure are the keynotes of this novel. In America, the Russian revolution, the Aegean Islands. In the same way that "The East Wind" gave us a picture of the opening of the twentieth century, as viewed through the eyes of an imaginative man, so "The South Wind of Love" is a panorama of the courageous, tragic war years and the two immediately preceding them.

Although an integral part of the four volumes which will complete this set, this book is at the same time complete in itself. And it covers a sharply defined and curiously isolated era within our century, an era during which takes place the greatest crisis of our modern life.

Art and Industry.

No casual study this, but a comprehensive survey that draws from the past to point the path for the future. Mr. Eaton has drawn in detail the picture of the mountains, their people and the revival of their arts, and has shown how, through this revival, these people have found greater happiness as well as an extended source of income.

No small part of the perfection of this volume is the photographs taken on the scene by the late Doris Ullmann. The cold eye of the camera has been blended with the discerning touch of the true artist in the illustrations used by Eaton in connection with his text.

To those who are now familiar with the handicraft work of the mountaineers, Eaton's book will be of great interest; to those who have not known much of this work it will be a revelation. W. G. K.

The Little Corporal.

THE RIDDLE OF NAPOLEON. By Raoul Brice. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York. 331 pp. $3.75.

Raoul Brice's "The Riddle of Napoleon" is an examination of Napoleon such as might have been instituted by an intelligent grand jury had such existed at the proper time. Brice believes that a good deal has been overlooked, or at least distorted. He offers rather good proof, too.

Specifically, he considers Napoleon's Corsican background, and his hatred of England. He believes the former explains the man, to a large extent. The rabid, almost wolfish hatred of England goes farther along this road. Family pressures contributed, of course. And there is, finally, the matter of Napoleon's illnesses and their influence.

The things which add up to Napoleon's "secret soul" had better be left to the author to explain. But his diagnosis of Napoleon's illness, particularly of his last illness, is expert and fascinating. The legend that the Emperor died at St. Helena of cancer of the stomach and that this disease was hereditary among the Bonapartes is still current. Brice agrees with Surgeon-Colonel Abbatucci, of the French colonial army, that "Napoleon died from the effects of an abscess of the liver complicated by amoebic dysentery contracted at Longwood."

The attendant revaluation of many familiar landmarks in Napoleonic history is likely to interest any general reader with the energy to attack the book in the first place.

Life of Ups and Downs.

AARON BURR. By Nathan Schachner. Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York. 563 pp. Illst. $3.50.

Aaron Burr has been excoriated by so many biographers that it is a relief to find an author who, in his researches, discovered that the man really possessed genius, had some remarkably fine qualities, and up to the time of his election as vice president of the United States, had no more marks against his record than other foremost politicians of that period.

Jefferson, idol of so many biographers as the father of democracy, does not appear to advantage in Mr. Schachner's account of his connections with Burr, and the reader is left to speculate how different the fortunes of Jefferson and Burr might have been had Burr been elected president and Jefferson vice president. According to this biographer Burr, who led Jefferson in many ballots of the house of representatives, could have been elected president had he agreed to certain terms proposed by Federalist leaders. He refused; the same terms were submitted to Jefferson, and it is said he agreed. Jefferson feared the popular Burr, and after his evelation to the presidency we read that he used every means in his power to ruin Burr politically; financially, no aid was needed, Burr's penchant for borrowing and spending being enough for that.

Mr. Schachner's biography is most complete and a scholarly condensation of the entire life of this misdirected genius, who had a penchant for going wrong when prudence pointed in the opposite direction. If the reader finds the biographer treats his subject with extreme kindness in some instances, at the same time scoring his enemies, perhaps he is hewing close to the truth. Politicians all have some good points, but they were no more angelic in the early days of the republic than they are today.

Burr's "great conspiracy" is handled in exhaustive detail, and it becomes quite evident that the brilliant leader went "loco" as the concerted plan to ruin him politically was mercilessly pressed. Withal the work is a valuable addition to Burr literature.

Absorbing Mystery.

"Death for Dear Clara," some say, was rather too much of a good thing!

Nine persons were known to have called her names—and those nine were known to have visited her in the offices of the Literary Advice Bureau during the few hours before she was found slumped at her desk with cold steel in her back.

For most of her callers, death came for Dear Clara at a particularly inopportune time, for it, and they, left a multiplicity of clues which all but completely muddled Timothy Trant's investigations. A host of motives reared their ugly heads, and it was discovered, too, that Dear Clara was writing a new will the day Death came for her. And then, too, there arose the question of how she received the income upon which she lived in her accustomed style.

All these things—and the solution of her untimely demise—are revealed by Q. Patrick in an absorbing story of the "Death of Dear Clara." J. T.

Historical Romance.

BARBARY BREW. By Zelda Stewart Charters. Stackpole Sons, New York. 361 pp. $2.50.

In this day of the historical romance, it is refreshing to strike one which is a little different, and one that has little pretensions to do more than entertain—which "Barbary Brew" does in a delightful manner.

Mrs. Charter's novel projects a young American physician into the court life of Tripoli in the era preceding the memorable days when a young American navy sailed into the Mediteranean and wiped out this nest of pirates for all time (although another nation now seems to be stealing a leaf from their history.)

The physician, McDonald Thorpe, although held as a slave, becomes the palace physician and when he finally escapes, as all good heroes must, he takes with him the beautiful daughter of the by-now former Bashaw of Tripoli. The story is rich is atmospheric detail and local color and is definitely entertaining. W. G. K.

Something Different.

WHEN BEGGARS CHOOSE. By Katharine Newlin Burt. Macrae-Smith Co., Philadelphia. 255 pp. $2.00.

"When Beggars Choose" is a story of an entirely different sort and it is not a love story. In fact it is best described as a book of adventure. Four beautiful sisters are sent by their mother to find homes with relatives of their dead father. Each girl is given railroad fare and a small amount of cash and sent to live with a different branch of the family. These girls have very exciting experiences as they try to adapt themselves to the mode of living they find in the strange families to which they have been sent. Each has her share of trouble, but the story ends delightfully when their mother returns for them.

What happened when each of these high-spirited girls was thrown on her own resources, makes one of the gayest, most lively and amusing novels Mrs. Burt has ever written.

Beneficent Dictator.

Today Turkish women go unveiled, wear Parisian gowns or copies of them, accompany their husbands to entertainments and have the right to vote; Turkish flappers use the lipstick, go bare-legged, giggle and flirt in public, wear shorts and kick up their heels in school athletic exercises; men have abandoned the fez and baggy trousers, substituting therefore habiliaments similar to those worn in the good old U. S. A. They no longer hearken for the call to prayer by the muezzin, for the Mohammedan religion has gone into the "ash can" along with all the traditions and customs of old Turkey.

All of this is because of the vision and iron will of Kemal Ataturk, who as an army commander aided in stalemating the British, French and Italians during the World War; defied them afterward, whipped the Greeks to a standstill, and finally secured European recognition of Turkey as an independent nation. Having done all this Kemal Ataturk exiled the Sultan and head of the Mohammedan religion; then he proclaimed Turkey to be a republic, with a written constitution and an assembly to enact laws. The assembly promptly elected him president for life, and he tells them what laws to enact—but they are all for the good of the country, so the people idolize their dictator. It appears to be a good plan to do this, as mild objectors are exiled and dangerous conspirators are hailed before a judge who knows his business and does it speedily.

Hans Froembgen's biography of Kemal Ataturk is also a very good history of corrupt, bankrupt Turkey from the date of this powerful man's birth to the present time. Volume after volume has been offered the public concerning three other dictators who arose out of the chaos of the World War. It is refreshing to contrast this biography of Kemal Ataturk with those of Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin, and learn more about a dictator whose only aim and ambition is to be let alone and allowed to build his nation educationally, spiritually and commercially.

A Good Book.

THE MARSH. By Ernest Raymond. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York. $2.75.

If any one is looking for a good book, a nice book, a book that a young daughter might read, he should pass "The Marsh" by. But if one is looking for a book of strength and power, a book of reality, and of gripping, commanding importance, he must not fail to read "The Marsh." Those who read the author's "We the Accused" will understand.

The mash is East London where laborers homes—if homes they can be called—are crowded together, huddled together, forming a community of under-privileged, under-nourished, kindly, often desperate, people. Homes are of one or two rooms where whole families eat and sleep—they live upon the street. Here privacy and security are unknown, here hunger is seldom absent. Here robbery and prostitution are occupations, carrying adventure and somewhat of romance, respected if well done. Here are minds fallow, ready to receive the seeds of radicalism, seeds that are scattered broadcast by hands trained through suffering. Here ambition and hope, like tendrils of delicate plants, feel about, searching for something to take hold of to support them in their growth, but finding nothing.

It was in this East London that Danny Counsel, a bright comely, fair-haired boy, began his search, and failed to find. Unemployed, thwarted in his ambitions and his love, urged on by a hydra-headed hunger, he was compelled through forces he never understood but which were unescapable, on to his death by a bullet from his own gun which he knew not why he carried. His love story, his and San's, is as beautiful, as tender, and as true as any sanctified by priest and society.

Danny is a likable boy, the delight of his mother, the hope of his teachers and the social worker, trusted by his companions. Even through the 10 years of decline and failure caused by unemployment, rejected love, hunger, prison, crime, to death, even through his searching for justification and his self-pity, he remains likable, holding our sympathy, compelling us to suffer with him and to long for his deliverance. But deliverance is not possible, the end is inevitable, he must go as a sacrifice to a social system that whelped the marsh. And his was an empty sacrifice, for no redemption resulted.

An Argument: What Is a Good Garden Fertilizer?

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

Well, we asked for an argument and we certainly have gotten one. Two weeks ago today we suggested that any one interested in our controversy over the use of cotton seed hulls and cotton seed meal as fertilizer and as mulching material to write us, and our first reply came from Dallas, Texas, which enclosed a very interesting booklet called The Inside of a Cotton Boll. This booklet is published by the National Cotton Seed Products Association, Inc., which has its home office in Dallas, Texas, and we want today to quote from this booklet some interesting information that will be of value to you as a gardener.

"Too often, the thought of cotton brings to our minds only the lint or fibre value of the plant. But, we should remember that every 500-pound bale of cotton has its complement of approximately 900 pounds of cotton seed. We should know and appreciate the contents of these tiny seeds that nature has so carefully wrapped and protected by the lint to which they cling. These seeds are storehouses of wealth for the south. Cotton oil appears in our kitchens in the refined cooking oils and shortening and on our tables as salad oil and margarine. Cottonseed meal and hulls consumed by dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep, swine and poultry appear on the dining tables in our homes, hotels, cafes, and dining cars as milk, butter, beef, mutton, pork, eggs and poultry. Linters enter into the manufacture of hundreds of articles of commerce. Hundreds of millions of dollars of new wealth have been created because man has used science in the development of new products that are important and valuable in meeting the needs and wants of an advanced civilization. This hidden treasure in the cotton boll was considered a waste product in most southern states as late as 1860. The skill and labor of the great army of men employed at cotton oil mills and refineries have converted this "waste" into marketable products that add to man's comfort and well-being and have made the farmers' cotton seed a cash crop worth millions of dollars annually.

COTTONSEED MEAL AND HULLS AS FERTILIZER

"The conservation of soil fertility is one of the greatest problems of agriculture. The growing of crops, especially cotton, is a heavy drain on the nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash—the plant foods of the soil from which the growing crops must draw their life-building material essential to their proper growth and development. The cotton plant draws heavily on the soil fertility and, unless we put the vital plant food elements back into the soil, we cannot hope to continue to produce healthy, fruiting cotton plants and larger yields. It would seem that the cotton plant is mindful of its debt to the soil and, within its own cotton seed, it provides a means, if properly utilized by man, for restoring to the soil much of the fertility taken away by the growing cotton plant.

"In the growing of a 500-pound bale of cotton, stalks are produced that contain, approximately, $10.00 to $12.00 worth of fertility. If the stalks are cut and turned under the soil, there will be no loss of fertility by way of the stalks. The lint in the 500-pound bale of cotton contains only about 37 cents in fertility value. The thousand pounds of cotton seed contain, approximately, $7.00 worth of fertility. If the farmer carries back to the farm 500 pounds of cottonseed meal, feeds it to his dairy cows or other livestock, and utilizes properly the resulting manure on his land, he will return to the soil 65 to 85 per cent of the original fertilizer value of the cottonseed meal.

"Under ordinary conditions, prime quality cottonseed meal is worth more as a feed than as a direct fertilizer; and this method of getting the DOUBLE value from the meal by feeding it to the farm animals and utilizing the resulting solid and liquid manure is the better one to follow. However, there are times when cottonseed meal can be profitably applied direct to the soil as a fertilizer. All three of the essential plant foods — nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, are found in cottonseed meal. A ton of the meal contains an average of 141 pounds of nitrogen, 52 pounds of phosphoric acid and 36 pounds of potash.

"Cottonseed meal broadcast at the rate of about 600 pounds per acre, and worked well into the soil a month or two before planting, will be very beneficial on garden and truck crops. In soil that is 'tight,' a mixture of cottonseed meal and hulls will tend to loosen up the soil and put it into better physical condition. Luxuriant golf greens and lawns are the result when cottonseed meal is used as a fertilizer, applying the meal early in the spring before the grass starts its new growth. Again, our little cotton seed—through its by-products, cottonseed meal and hulls—proves of economic value because of this plant-food content."

We will give publicity to some of the other answers that we received from our article two weeks ago within the next two or three weeks. In the meanwhile if you have information about the use of cotton seed meal or cotton seed hulls, if you have used it in the past and found it satisfactory, or, if you have used it in the past and not found it satisfactory, we will be pleased to have you write us your experience.

WHAT TO PLANT IN NOVEMBER

PLANTS: Set out roses, strawberry plants, all kinds of shrubbery, iris, both Japanese and Spanish Dutch and peony crowns.

BULBS: November is the best month for planting bulbs. Plant snowdrops and crocuses for early spring flowering. Plant tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, ranunculus, anemones and grape hyacinths, out of doors. Plant paper white narcissus, soliel d'or and Chinese sacred lilies in water. Use freesias, double and single early tulips, Roman hyacinths and Dutch hyacinths in pots.

SHRUBBERY: Mulch your shrubbery with a mixture of peat moss, sheep manure and bone meal. Plant all kinds of shrubbery this month.

ROSES: Now is the best time for planting roses. Prune your old bushes and mulch them thoroughly. Put on plenty of mulch if your roses are budded. Most of them are.

LILIES: Plant regal lilies, golden rayed lilies, tiger lilies, speciosum magnificum and lily of the valley.

VEGETABLES: Sow your lettuce, cabbage and onion seeds in the cold frame. Plant your asparagus bed now.

FRUITS AND BERRIES: Now is the best time to plant all kinds of fruit trees and berries, grapes and nut trees.

WHAT TO DO IN NOVEMBER.

IN THE HOUSE: Preparation should be constantly made for bulbs and other flowering plants for use in the house. Jardinieres should be resurrected and cleaned ready for pots for lily of the valley, paper white narcissus, hyacinths and other flowers.

SHRUBBERY: This is the proper season of the year for mulching roses and shrubbery as well as perennial borders and beds and this may best be done with the use of peat moss and leaves or straw. Too many leaves will sometimes cause rot by holding too much moisture, but if the leaves are mixed with peat moss and straw there will not be much danger of rot.

TREES: This is the proper season for protecting and repairing all kinds of trees. For the lesser injuries such as small broken limbs this can be done very simply, but in the case of large cavaties, an expert had best be called.

BOOKS

While the book is a condemnation of the social system as it exists, it is not bitter or vicious. Those who drove Danny to his end, those who meeted out his punishment, and those who hunted him to his death, are also victims. They are kindly even in their unrelenting pursuit and leave San alone with her Danny until less-lenient death takes him away forever. And while the book is the story of England's social problem, it is America's, too, and every country's. It is the problem of man, of men who are not born free or equal, but born to fight a losing battle against conditions that are.

This is a masterful piece of writing, a convincing, convicting argument, a story well told and well worth the telling.

A Search for Faith.

THE FLOWERING ALOE. By Sylvia Stevenson. Henry Holt & Company, New York. 341 pp. $2.50.

Acclaimed before publication date by distinguished critics, Sylvia Stevenson's newest book already has been called one of the most important novels of the season. It is an exquisitely composed story of a middle-aged woman's search for faith in the flux and instability of modern life. As long as she could remember, Selina Chantry had acepted the humdrum existence allotted her. Then suddenly comes the shattering year in which she seems to find no place in the pattern of contemporary living.

Near tragedy in the lives of her three children brings her a sharp perception of their need and her own inadequacy. Dimly aware of the smouldering enmity between her two sons, helplessly watching her daughter, Caroline, enmeshed in an unhappy love affair, Selina seeks a revelation to sustain herself and dumbly hopes for the means to aid this new and strange generation which is so far removed from her.

The story of her experience—ending in victory as well as defeat—is a rich emotional narrative, told with a profound understanding of character and fundamental truths.

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By MRS. FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

Question: Can you tell me what is the matter with my hardy candytuf? It dies out in spots, and near the ground the seem is covered with white, crusty formations.

Answer: I am quite sure that your candytuft has scale. I would use an oil spray on it. Carefully follow directions of the brand used.

Question: When shall I divide my lily-of-the-valley?

Answer: You can divide them at any time from now until very early spring. Place the pips about an inch under ground, remembering that they like a cool, woodsy soil. They like to be fed on well-rotted manure early in December. Place at least two inches of this over your bed, but have it well-rotted. I have been told by good gardeners that coffee grounds placed on this bed is beneficial.

Question: What shall I do with the leaves that are falling. Oak leaves take so long to decompose; can I hasten them?

Answer: Do not make the mistake that so many do at this time of he year and burn the leaves. Save every one that you can get. I dig a hole about two feet deep and four feet square. It can be larger or smaller. It should be screened by evergreen vines or shrubs. I place at least a foot of leaves in this hole, then depending on where I am to use this mold I add either lime, acid phosphate, or very fresh manure. Either of these will assist in quickly decaying the leaves, but if lime is used do not use this mold on your azaleas or any acid-loving plant.

Then I add a layer of soil that I have taken out in digging the hole. Repeat leaves, acid phosphate, soil, on and on. The leaves settle, and great quantities of leaves make only a small amount of leaf-mold. You can never have too much, all plants appreciate humus in the soil. Fork over this compost pile occasionally, keep it damp and usually in a year it can be used, and another one started. Add all rinds and peelings from the kitchen, they are rich in potash.

What Has Happened to Justice?

blanket had come into the possession of Elmer Hubbard, 35, caretaker of the quarry and an acquaintance of James May. Hubbard had come forward voluntarily, he said, and informed them that he had picked up the blanket, lying on the ground near the car, the day after the young couple disappeared. "I wanted the blanket for our baby," he explained, "so I took it home, had it washed, and have kept it since."

Ah, so he had washed it? Why had he washed it? He replied that it had become soiled. Soiled with blood? No, he said, it was merely soiled from being on the ground.

The police were not inclined to believe Hubbard's statements, but chemical tests failed to disclose any traces of blood on the blanket. Nor could the police establish a motive that might involve Hubbard and May.

In the midst of this excitement, following Hubbard's arrest, the authorities received an anonymous letter which stated that couples visiting the quarry at night often were robbed and compelled to submit to indignities. It was the practice of these marauders, the writer said, to demand money or jewelry for their silence. In some instances girls had been attacked.

Hubbard and May both repeatedly denied that they had ever engaged in any shakedown racket at the quarry. Hubbard was finally released after a week of grilling; May won his freedom the next day. The authorities now said the two suspects had convinced them of their innocence.

Another bombshell burst when the police excitedly announced that three young men friends of Thelma Woods had left Lima hastily the day after the couple disappeared. But this sensation was shortlived, for it developed that the boys had gone off on a vacation trip to California, and had left town on Memorial Day because school had closed.

Nothing more happened for so long that most people believed the case closed. All sorts of theories were advanced to account for the double murder. C. J. Roush, investigator for County Prosecutor Ernest Botkin, clung to the theory that the killings grew out of a shakedown game. Earl Truesdale had been a thrifty and courageous lad, and might easily have shown fight in such a situation. Chief of Police Willis Kipker had staked his hope of solving the case on James May, while Botkin declared "this crime has wider ramifications than any thus brought out."

Meanwhile the county had a $10,000 expense bill to pay.

The next development in the mystery hit the headlines the following January after this United Press dispatch flashed over the wires:

"Mansfield, Ohio, January 21—Authorities today believed they had solved the mysterious slaying of Earl Truesdale and Thelma Woods, which has been under investigation for more than eight months.

"Lloyd Ziegler, serving a robbery sentence in the Mansfield Reformatory, told his cellmate, Earl Frunfelter, that he, James May and Donald Smith participated in slaying the young couple, whose bodies were weighted and thrown into a deserted quarry near Lima, May 30, 1931.

"Police at Lima were instructed to arrest May and Smith at once. County Prosecutor E. N. Botkin said Ziegler would be taken to Lima tonight for a check of his story.

"A guard overheard the account as told to Ziegler's cellmate. Ziegler said, according to the guard's story, that he, May and Smith had been drinking. May, former sweetheart of Miss Woods, was described jealous of Truesdale. The three followed the Truesdale car to the quarry. May challenged Truesdale and the two youths fought.

"May called to Ziegler for aid. Ziegler took a hammer from the automobile and struck Truesdale in the head. Miss Woods screamed. May was said then to have taken the hammer and struck the girl.

"'We decided to get rid of the girl because she would tell on us,' Ziegler was quoted.

"The statement recited that the boys hid blood-stained garments in the weeds and returned to the scene later to destroy them."

And so the Lovers' Lane Mystery was cleared up at last? By no means. Within an hour after his return to Lima from the Mansfield Reformatory the 19-year-old Ziegler thoroughly repudiated his alleged confession. He knew nothing about the quarry killings, he insisted; if he made any statements in jail they were false and imaginary. A complete check on the story told by the guard tended to exonerate the young convict, and he was returned to the reformatory.

By this time, the reader can well understand, the Truesdale-Woods case had become a great pain to the authorities of Allen county. But their troubles were by no means at an end. Private investigators lured by an offer of $1,500 reward, scurried about busily in search of clues, and every possible theory was thoroughly probed—some of them very fantastic theories indeed.

Then, 15 months after the crime, the most staggering sensation of all broke like a thunderclap and left the entire nation stunned.

Loren Truesdale, brother of Earl was named as the killer!

Here is the first Associated Press dispatch on this astounding development:

"Lima, Ohio., September 1.—County authorities tonight announced Loren Ellsworth Truesdale, 23, of Elida, had confessed he killed his brother, Earl Truesdale, 20, and Thelma Woods, 17, on the night of May 30, 1931, and threw their bodies into an abandoned stone quarry near here.

"Truesdale was taken into custody last night by private detectives employed by the Allen county prosecutor to work on the case several weeks ago.

"Authorities before whom the confession was made quoted Truesdale as saying jealousy prompted the act. They said he told them his brother had 'taken several girls away from him' and that he had made up his mind to get even with Earl.

"The confession, which the authorities said was made in the presence of Truesdale's mother and father, told of meeting Earl and the girl in the business section here on the night of the crime. Truesdale said he stopped them on the street, got into the car and that after they bought some liquor the trio drove to the stone quarry.

"There, he said, he and his brother argued over the girl and Loren got a hammer from the car and struck Earl over the head three times.

"Authorities said he told them he struck Miss Woods with the hammer when she threatened to report him. Later he weighted both bodies with rocks and threw them into the quarry.

"He didn't worry over his act, he said, except to make up his mind that if any one else was arrested and convicted of the crime, he would confess."

"According to the police, what touched off Loren's fury was the sight of his brother and Thelma petting on the automobile blanket. He had seized the hammer out of the car kit, struck Earl a powerful blow, then had hit the girl when she screamed.

Officers believed that Loren's act had been the culmination of months, possibly years, of gnawing jealousy, for Earl had been the family favorite since childhood, and had always been able to get the best of everything at home.

"The quarry mystery has been solved at last," said Prosecutor Botkin.

But he spoke a little prematurely.

Loren Truesdale repudiated his purported confession. His attorney asserted it had been obtained under duress and had no basis in fact. The accused youth's parents, it was said, refused absolutely to believe that he could be guilty of such a ghastly deed.

Tried for murder in December, 1932, Truesdale's defense was that after he and Earl drank from a bottle of whisky on the night of the murders his memory failed him upon all that happened. The jury of nine men and three women failed to agree and on December 22 Judge Everett discharged them.

The following March the authorities sustained their final blow in this case, for Loren Truesdale was acquitted in his second trial.

The two trials added $6,823.10 to the expenses of the costly investigation—and matters were back right where they were many months before when the mystery first broke upon the community. Since Truesdale's acquittal there have been no new developments—no new arrests or "confessions," and the $1,500 reward remains unclaimed.

Today Loren Truesdale works on his father's farm and does odd jobs for other farmers. His conduct has been exemplary. He admitted, long ago, that he had "a better time with Earl away."

Dresses For Dream Girls

FASHION NEWS FROM HOLLYWOOD AND NEW YORK

By CAROLYN CREW

(Noted Writer and Fashion Authority.)

Never did you see such tones in metallic cloth as these of 1938. (Left) steel-colored lame taffeta, real silk, a Directoire gown with a jewel ornament.

Fresh and pretty as a Valentine, the cloudy froth of shell pink tulle which makes Priscilla Lane's ruched dancing frock. The neckline is very low in back.

DREAM GIRL, 1938 model, has the pick of the ages gone before to make her the insomniac's delight. Here she pops up as pretty as a Victorian Valentine; there you see her revived from the elegant Directoire days; look quick, and this time she has borrowed a few tricks from the Spanish Main or the Romany Queens.

It's a great career, this being a decorative belle, and take it from one who has seen them making their lovely social bows for years, this season's crop of debbies is the prettiest in ages. Lots of the wide-eyed expression, the dear little girl look, which last year's buds went in for is still with us, but it's spiced this season with more worldly effects. That Vionnet frock of gold cloth appealed to a lot of the youngsters, and they fell as youth has always fallen, for wicked black sequins which for once are very much in the junior miss brackets.

Hats, to be frank, are more cockeyed than ever. Even the felt numbers to get your tweeds or your sheared beaver coat around town are dippy —like G. Howard Hodge's pirate hat which Rita Johnson shows above. The orangey feather looks for all the world like a rusty scimitar pinning back Captain Kidd's sombrero. (Not that the captain's cutlery was ever rusty, but for that matter, you musn't underestimate a pretty girl's weapons, either.)

Here's a check list on gadgets just getting into circulation for Winter ensembles: A transparent catalin box, shaped like the expensive and fashionable silver cig boxes, one side opening for loose powder and a mirror, the other to offer a dozen cigs; antelope bags as big as newspapers, hanging from the wrist by a band and bow. All-white flower toques to wear with your fur coats when the occasion is dressy. Baroque gold Cupids for twin lapel clips; very high, very off-the-face picture hats for dinner dress with lacy veils touching the floor behind.
